PREFACE

The present volume of Khotanese Saka studies of Khotan, the land of Jade, is the fulfilment of a plan formed in 1934, forty-four years ago, to make available to Iranisants all Iranian material extant in the texts hvatanau 'in the Khotanese language'. The plan required first the printing of unpublished manuscripts and the slow elucidation of the whole corpus of texts. It is a book concerned with the one Saka dialect of North Iranian of which Ossetic (Arsia) in the Caucasus and Wakhī in Wakhān in the Pamirs are other branches. Though etymological connexions are stated throughout it is no more than one contribution to the far vaster project of the etymological dictionary of all Iranian languages. It is, moreover, a strictly personal book; there has been no wish to list the different interpretations and etymological connexions proposed by others. I see no value in the pedantic citation of, for example, Sten Konow's interpretation of dānave (actually BS dānapati- 'patron') or E. Leumann's translation of byūrru (actually 'ten thousand'). It is then a statement of personal views at present preferred, in a suspensive state awaiting further knowledge wherever the absence of bilingual or parallel textual evidence does not assure the meanings. Since the texts are mainly of the Buddhist religion only Buddhist expertise can finally decide on a nuance of meaning. Some word for word renderings are intelligible only within the Buddhist context. But for the Iranisant it is the straightforward meaning which imports. Names, ethnical (like hvatana- 'Khotan' and ttāgutta- 'Tibetan'), personal (like Vīma) and place-names are here rarely included: they demand a separate study. Foreign words too, as from Greek sera 'ounce' or from Chinese phąuva 'penalty', are few. The Buddhist Sanskrit vocabulary, and particularly the varieties of Prakrit, require a separate treatment and with few exceptions are excluded here.

References for the words of other Iranian languages are omitted (with few exceptions) and must be sought in the glossaries of books cited in the Bibliography. The fairly copious quotation of Iranian cognates is intended to assure the Khotanese word and to situate it within the dialects. It has been found necessary to retain the spellings of various sources; no uniform system exists. For Armenian dz has been used, not j; similarly the j of Pamir languages and Pašto has been replaced by dz (to reduce the many different uses of j). Where the Old Iranian forms are lacking, Zoroastrian Pahlavī, Sogdian and loanwords in Armenian are important for the oldest attested forms. The Indo-European quotations (where J. Pokorny's Dictionary has been invaluable together with the etymological dictionaries of Lithuanian, Slavonic, Greek, Latin, Sanskrit and Germanic) are added to make this Iranian Saka material of use outside Indo-Iranian.

In citing Chinese words, instead of using Chinese characters, references are given to the numbers in the older book of B. Karlgren, Analytical Dictionary of Sino-Japanese (where a better system of rendering Mandarin Chinese in Latin script is used) in preference to his later Grammata Serica recensa.

Tumshuq Saka is only occasionally cited. It is a study still hardly developed and requires separate treatment. Sogdian too is still under investigation, the Buddhist texts being now largely reduced to glossaries, the Manichean texts partially known and the Christian still the subject of intense study. Chorasmian has been rarely cited: though four scholars have worked at the material, it has not been possible to find time to make a personal study of the texts. Tokhara languages A and B have been under investigation for some seventy years but a large part, mainly B texts, remains unpublished; here they are cited for the occasional evidence to the adjacent non-Iranian Indo-European of Central Asia.

Bilingual evidence for the Khotan Saka vocabulary is found in Buddhist Sanskrit, Pali, Tibetan and Chinese books. This is the explanation of the many Sanskrit and Tibetan passages cited to establish meanings. Apart from these bilinguals, the Buddhist texts parallel to these from Khotan can often be cited. The difficulties which restrict the translator are to be found in the non-religious texts and official documents, although even here some parallels can be found in Kroraina or Tibetan documents from the same area of Central Asia and approximately of the same time.

The date of the Khotan Saka linguistic facts may be set between A.D. 300 and 1000. One Kharoṣṭhī document (no. 661) dated from Khotana is extant belonging to the period of the Kharoṣṭhī texts of the Shan-shan (Kroraina) kingdom around A.D. 300. The Chinese traveller Hüan-tsang in about A.D. 640 cited the local pronunciation of the name of the Khotan kingdom as huan-na which is the later hvaṃna, hvana of the Khotan Saka texts, which replaced the hvatana- of the older texts. A document of the reign of the Kashmir king Abhimanyugupta (who reigned A.D. 958–72) belongs to the half-century before the Turkish Khans occupied Khotan in A.D. 1006. Over the period of some seven hundred years changes of large development can be traced. Here in this commentary and dictionary it has not often been attemped to mark the various stages (as was offered in KT VI); some words are known only in the oldest form, others only in later or latest stages. Reference however to the full printed text will immediately reveal the stage in each case. It is clearly necessary not to explain a later form as if it were older or the reverse.

The Khotan Saka language is in a middle stage of development if the Old Persian inscriptions and the Avesta are called Old Iranian and if the modern New Persian of the past thousand years and other dialects are termed New Iranian. Hence a frequent ambiguity in tracing older Iranian forms (being extant in a deficient vocabulary) of the Khotan Saka words.

Though in certain features Khotan Saka is more archaic than Avestan as -zn- in gyaysna- 'sacrifice', Avestan yasna-; ggūysna- 'deer', Av. gavasna-; as -zm- in rraysma, 'rank', Av. rasma-; as hvar- 'eat', Av. xvar-; as -dz- in dajs- 'to burn', Av. daž-; in -rt- in Tumshuq Saka rorda- 'given', Khotan Saka hoḍa- 'given', Av. -rt- but also -š-; yet Khotan Saka has transformed most intervocalic consonants (which Sogdian and Zoroastrian Pahlavī have retained), thus -p-, -b- to -v-, -t-, -d- to -y-, -k- to -g- or lost, -g- lost; -f-, -θ-, -x- to -h-, later -ž- lost (but often marked by a subscript hook), -ṣḍ- beside -ḍ-, preverb fra- to ha-, prothesis of h- to initial vowel, frequent i-umlaut of a, ā, ū, o (absent from Tumshuq Saka), loss of medial vowel as in gyasta- 'worshipped one', from yazata-, bīḍä 'he bears' from barati, ysīḍaa- 'yellow' from zaritaka-; genitive plural -ānu, -āni, later -āṃ, -ā; suffix -atāti-, to -ttā, -dā, oblique -tte, -de; -āmata, to -āma, and in latest texts loss of nasal before the medial consonants -k-, -g-, -d-, -b-. At times several older Iranian forms coalesce in Khotan Saka. The convenience in the older texts of using doubled śś and ṣṣ for the unvoiced consonant and the single ś and ṣ for the voiced is not consistently employed, the one text may often have both doubled and single consonant.

In the translations an imprecise English word is used where precise definition is not possible; hence, for example, 'covering' is used for various words referring to dress. For Buddhist technical terms one word is selected, thus dharma-doctrine for dāta-, dharma-element for hära- (where the Sanskrit has only dharma-), deva- for gyasta-, Buddha- for balysa-, kleśa-affliction, pāramitā-perfection, saṃsāra-migration, saṃskāra-factor, samādhāna-trance, doṣa-state.

Since the book is intended for the Iranisant, the Buddhist Sanskrit sandhi- (conjunction of vowels) has for the most part been dissolved both in compounds and between separate words (here indicated by a subscript mark ˽). The lemmata of similar words have not been numbered. Hindu or Brahman Sanskrit is occasionally used to distinguish it from Buddhist Sanskrit, while in etymologies O.Ind. (=Old Indian) is the term preferred.

Botanical names, abundant in the medical texts, present a difficulty even when the Buddhist Sanskrit or Tibetan equivalents are known. The Sanskrit names are variously translated in the dictionaries; the Bower MS has an index by A. F. R. Hoernle with precise translations which have been often used, but the botanist would probably always prefer more certainty.

Editions of the Khotan Saka texts are in the following books and articles: E. Leumann, Zur nordarischen Sprache und Literatur, 1912 =L; B. Nebenstücke Buddhistische Literatur, nordarisch und deutsch, 1920 =N; Das nordarische (sakische) Lehrgedicht des Buddhismus, 1933–1934, 1936=Z; Sten Konow, Vajracchedikā and Aparimitāyuḥ-sūtra, 1916; Saka Studies, 1932; H. W. Bailey, Khotanese Texts I–VI, 1945–67; Khotanese Buddhist Texts, 1951; facsimiles, Saka Documents; text volume 1968; J. P. Asmussen, Bhadracaryādeśanā, 1961; M. J. Dresden, The Jātakastava, 1955; R. E. Emmerick, Huntington folio, AM, n.s., 15, 1969, 1–16; Nanda, BSOAS 33, 1970, 72–81; Colophons of the Sad-dharma-puṇḍarīka-sūtra, Mémorial Jean de Menasce 383–8; new edition of Z, The Book of Zambasta, 1968.

References to Khotanese Texts are by Roman numeral I–VI with page and line and to Khotanese Buddhist Texts by K and page and line; but by name Bcd Bhadra-caryā-deśanā; Manj. Manjuśrī-nairātmya-avatāra-sūtra; Sid. Siddhasāra; SuvO. KT I 232–41 Suvarṇa-bhāsa; SuvP. KT I 242–9; Z, The Book of Zambasta, ed. E. Leumann and R. E. Emmerick.

Corrected numbers are given from K 42·48 (see V 387, P 2834·48) and from III 81·174 (by one); for II 37·12 a and b are verso and recto. Frequent improvements in the texts have been incorporated, where syllables were left isolated (as K 4, 14115 ttattīka) or sometimes wrongly grouped (as sau mīrai). A few syllables were misread (as Sid. 10412 u for ña). In the order of letters ä i ī; u ū; e, ai; o au are grouped together. Use of ɪ for the inverted -i-syllable (formed like the high -ā-) has been kept; it is mainly in K 113–35. For u and ū in later texts some syllables, that is, u, ū; ku, kū; gu, gū; tu, tū; du, dū; ru, rū; śu, śū are quite distinct, others have been transcribed according to the syllabic tables. Where āṃ replaces older au, ū, u, it has been kept.

In Ossetic, though with regret, a is used where the Old Iranian had -ā-, and ä where it had ă.

Work known to me to be in progress is in the hands of R. E. Emmerick, Dieter Weber, M. J. Dresden, and O. von Hinüber.

This long task from 1934 to now has left unwritten the planned grammatical study of phonology and syntax, and the complete translation. Both these tasks will lie in other hands.

I owe thanks to all who have sent to me books and articles and here gladly dedicate this volume to all Iranists.

This work has proved long and laborious and to the Press most especially so: I wish to express the warmest thanks for their magnificent effort against so heavy a task.

See aha-, ahạ-, inst. plur. ahyau. For -hv- note also ahva-, aha- 'belly'.

ahva- 'belly', as first component in ahva-rīysa- 'fear' from rrīys- 'to tremble' and ahva- 'belly', as the source of 'fear'. See aha 'belly', and rrīys- 'to tremble'. The meaning is from the use of a name of part of the body for the affection in that part, as O.Pers. uši 'intelligence' from uš- 'ear', Av. karəna- 'ear' and 'deaf', like Georgian qur-i 'ear' qru 'deaf', Megrel 'uru 'foolish'; Greek ἰσχίον 'hip', ἰσχιάς 'pain in the hip'. Hence O.Pers. afuvā- 'fear', O.Ind. ápvā-, apvā́ 'fear', from the source 'belly'. Note Al-Tha'ālibī, Histoire, ed. H. Zotenberg 714 fa ashala 'l-xaufu baṭana-hu 'and fear loosened his belly'. Similarly O.Ind. śaṣkulī 'ear', and 'disease of hearing'.

ahvañe 'not to be spoken', III 73·188 mire a ahvañe ṣṭāna 'I shall die since it is not to be spoken'. Base hvan- 'to speak', hvaña- 'to be spoken'.

ahvarīysätä 'lack of fear' (variant aharīysätä quoted by S. Konow, ed. to V 113, 35v1). Possibly a subscript small a added before hva, hardly visible on the photograph, but reported by Konow. The scribe may have intended a- 'not' before ahva-rīysätä (instead of an- as in a-uysānä) or has wrongly written hva for -ha- in aharīysa- 'not trembling'. The ending -ätä may represent either the suffix -ita-, or stand for -ā, as in V 77, 145v5 viysäte 'lotus' for viysä, with buśānätai 'scented' for buśānai.

ahvyāñe 'not produced, eternal', III 128·2–3 śukye ahvyāñe saṃtsāru baṃdani-śāl⟨e?⟩ guchāme udiśāyi 'for escape from the universal (one =universal) eternal transmigrational prison'. āvya 'in a parable', III 52·99 sumīra garu śaśvā tta tte āvya bāvyarä 'the mountain Sumeru and the mustard seed, so meditate on its parable' (tte = tta with yi). From āvā-* 'something spoken', ā-vāka-*, to N.Pers. āvā (ā-vāka-*), Av. vāka-, fravāka-.

āvrrye 'surrounded', III 6, 135–VI cirāmyau aysä... byanaṃggāryau hiryau āvrrye īmä 'by which hindering things I have been surrounded (covered)'. From ā-var- 'to surround, cover', with the meaning of BS āvaraṇa, hence possibly a loanword from O.Ind. ā-vṛta-. See cognates s.v. baṭha-.

āśi 'axe (?)', K 36·113 āśi skaṃdhīnā dva kathiri bīdi 'he carries on shoulder two (axes), the āśi and the kathiri'. The āśi could be traced as Iranian to the base as- 'to sharpen' (see s.v. haska- 'tusk'), but since kathiri is from O.Indian (Khowar kuter, O.Ind. kuṭhāra-), the āśi may also be Indian, then to O.Ind. This seat of Śakra is in Buddhist texts BS pāṇḍu-kambala-śilā, Pali paṇḍu-kambala-silā. Reconsideration of the word ījījaa- led to comparison with Waxī īžīn 'carpet' and ijīn, yijīn 'felt cloth' (G.Morgenstierne, IIFL 2.553). Further reference to a letter to me of Helmer Smith dated 10.2.1938 drew my attention to his quotation of a Sinhalese commentary: 'there is a sīlāsana named pāṇḍukambala. . . if you sit down, you will sink into it to your navel as in a blanket (=āstaraṇa)'. O. von Hinüber showed me similar in the Pali Dhammapada-aṭṭhakathā I 273·12 yattha nisinna-kāle upaḍḍha-kāyo pavissatī uṭṭhita-kāle ūnaṃ paripūrati 'when sitting down half the body sinks into it, when arising the empty part fills up again', and Pali ibid. III 219·7 the analysis as a compound silāyaṃ paṃḍukambale 'on the stone, on a yellow blanket'.

The Mahāvyutpatti dictionary 7127 has pāṇḍukambala-śilā-talaṃ. The Chinese rendered by 'a stone like a bright cool tablet', for which the Japanese edition gave 'a stone like a yellow blanket'.

The Tibetan has a loan-word 'a-rmo-ni-ka, with variants 'ar-mo-nig, 'ar-mo-li-ga, *'ad-mo*ź*ig*, 'a-mo-li-ka, 'a-mo-nig 'long carpet, blanket', according to the gloss stan-riṅ, in Mongol *sa*ḫ*alag debse* 'hairy saddle-cushion' to render pāṇḍu-kambala-. This Tibetan word may be an Iranian armānika-* or armaunika-* through Buddhist Sanskrit from the base ar- in Khotan Saka haḍa- 'dress, cover', see haḍa-. Possibly with this belongs also Kroraina arnavaj'i 'a kind of cloth', measured in ells (hasta-), and with epithet śpeti (fem.) 'white'.

The adjective ījījainaa- is made from ījījaa-, hence meaning 'forming a cushion of leather'. The same suffix is in III 89·174 juṣṭīnainai from juṣṭīnaa- adjective of juṣṭa- 'jute'.

Earlier in BSOAS 19, 1957, 55–7; BSOAS 21, 1958, 540; AM, n.s., 11, 1964, 26; AM, n.s., 11, 1965, 112 an attempt was made to connect with Sogd. (P 8·119) 'ynkwynč 'of steel', Tokhara B eñcuwo, adj. eñcuwaññe, A adj. añcwāṣi, Ossetic ändon.

As 'leather', ījīnaa- has -j- from older -xy- (as in ṣpuljei 'spleen') with Av. izaēna-, īzaēna- 'leathern', and cognates s.v. hāysa-. Here belong Zor.P. zēn 'saddle', N. Pers. zēn, Persian Sanskrit jayana-, from izaina-*, distinct from Zor.P. zēn 'guard' in zēnīk, and zēn-hār 'guard', (dyadic with har- 'to guard', Georg. zenaar-i), and distinct from Zor.P. zēn 'weapon', dyadic in zēn aβzār, Sogd. (P. 7·52) zyn 'knife', from zayana-*, to Av. zaya- 'tool', Georg. zein-k'al-i 'armourer, metal-worker', and distinct from N.Pers. zēnah 'ladder' and 'exit', Zor.P. uzēn, uzēnak, beside atēn 'entrance', from uz-ayana-, ati-ayana-. The initial ī- may represent earlier either i- or ī-.

The further epithet iḍā may be a Chinese spelling of Khotan Saka īra- 'jade', dyadic with (tai-) pu, as kuhä: is duplicated by jinave (BS janapada-). The Chinese title is given BSOS 9, 1939, 541. Note III 81·(173=)174 ttāḍai 'forehead', in the Turkish vocabulary from Iranian tāraa-*, Khotan Saka ttāra-.

See īriye. From alya-*, base al- 'be wild, mad, make wild', Av. ara- 'mad', Oss. DI. ärra 'mad', Sogd. "r'k āraka-* (see BSOAS 24, 1961, 473–8). IE Pok. 27–8 al- 'wander, be foolish, mad', Greek ἄλη 'wandering', ἀλύω 'be outside oneself', Lit. aliótis 'foolish'. The abode of Kubera, the Alakā city, may in its name allude to the amorous sports there. But anīratete jsa from a-naryatāti-* above.

See cognates s.v. īrata-.

īrū 'oleander', Sid. 104r5 karavīrai, ṣṭi īrū hīya bāta ṣṭe 'karavīraa- (BS karavīra-) oleander, that is the root of īrū'. Oleander is a poisonous plant called in O.Ind. aśvamāra- 'horse-killing', Italian ammazza-cavallo 'killing horses', N.Pers. xar-zahrah '(poison to asses') oleander', Arabic zaqqūm 'oleander', with zaqqama 'give deadly food'. Similar is the name Oss. D. dzalyädä, I. zalyäd 'poisonous wood' for the azalea pontica, rhododendron ponticum' which is toxic in honey. Hence īrū is from īra- by suffix -ū (inflected -uvi) as in stīrū, stirūvi 'rigid, irresistible', see īra- 'intoxicant drink'.

īrū proper name, III 147·12; b2; b7.

īrauda 'drunken, intoxicated', III 106·35–6 khaysa khāśe... kūṣḍau vī īrauda mūñe 'he drinks the drink... in the mansion he stays drunken'. Adjective to īra- 'intoxicant drink'.

īraudrū, īraudū 'pragmaticus (knower of affairs and laws)', from īraudra-, īrauda- with u 'and' enclitic, III (ed. 2) 145, 50b1, 3–5 tte hyāṃ hīye ṃ⟨ve⟩śda-lalaka sī īraudrū pīsai hyāṃ... mvaiśda haraysde 'the Tei-uang's majordomo, the learned pragmaticus and teacher Uang bestows favours (gifts)'. This is repeated with variants in III 144, 50a2–3 and III 145, 50a6–8. The second form īraudū occurs in III 145, 50b2. 4 īraudū u pīsai, and ibid. 3 ⟨īrau⟩dū u pīsai. The enclitic u is repeated after īraudū. The basic form is made difficult to decide by the presence of -r- in one of the forms. If the -r- is primary, it may be derived from ērāva-dara-; if it is secondary, it may be ēravanta-. The basic word is arya-, ēra-, īra- 'thing, affairs, laws', with suffix -āva- or -vant-a-. This īra- stands beside the other word hira-, hāra-, later hīra- 'thing, wealth; the dharma-element in Buddhist philosophy'. The Armen. lw ir 'thing, affairs, laws' has i- from either Iranian i-, or -ī, but not ē-; the i- is preserved in the derivative irau 'justice'. The corresponding words in M.Parth.T. 'yr, M.Pers.T. xyr, x'yr, xyr'n and Zor.P. 'yl, kyl have uncertain vocalization. Pāzand varies with haēr, hīr, xīr, xir, Parsi-Persian hyr. See TPS 1959, 71–4. If ēr is read, the source is arya-*, if īr is read it corresponds to Khotan Saka hira- from rya-*, as N.Pers. mīr- 'to die' from mrya-* corresponds to Khotan Saka mir-, mār-, later mīr. For duplicated u 'and' see s.v. u. The Tei-uang is an important potentate in the text KT II 110–4, translated in AM, n.s., 11, 1964, 1–5.

The place Besanāña- may be the place III 82·8 Bisanāña. The form ūtceṃ occurs before an empty space in V 187, 61a2 ///nabhadrä sudabhadrä udeṃdabhadrä ūtceṃ, possibly gen. plural; ibid. V 187, 62a1 ///ūtca ca hvaṇḍa followed by proper names. A compound is ūtca-hāle, V 187, 62a1 ūtca-hāle kālä (at the end of phrase). The word kālä is a title in II 126·11 hīñi hīvī kālä, which is compared with ḳāka- 'protector'. If -hāle is traced to base har- 'to protect' it would be dyadic with kālä. Possibly also ūtca- was near in meaning to kālä, kālai (here V 187, 62a1). A connexion with ūy- 'to survey' is possible. In IV 156 a source usćya-* from uska 'up' was thought of, but seems too imprecise. The base har- was used in Zor.P. zēn-hār 'guard, watch'.

utcī 'fluid', III 92·241 paysau pettä, jīye utcī narāme 'the festering gall (BS pitta-) is diseased and fluid issues'. Printed utcī, possibly adjective suffix -īya- to utcā-, hence 'watery stuff'. Connexion of a word tcī with -tcī of haṃatcī is excluded by the contexts. From utcā-, note also III 80·30 utcāla kauysā 'water-pot'.

Bcd 57v1 utvaḍirūve, BS atīva. See also tvaḍa- without initial u-, a-, and ttuvare. From ati-bar- 'to carry beyond', with utvar- from ati-bar-, utvar-, ttuvar-, twar-, note also ati- > ti-, V 184, 1v5 tirandä vyata 'have crossed', and ati- > ī- in īṇāta- 'invading', īśtmä 'covering'. Hence ati-baratara-*.

A second form occurs in Zor.P., N.Pers. šan, Kroraina ṣaṃna, O.Ind. śāṇa-. If the basic word is Iranian and meant 'fibre' it is named as the 'twisting stuff' from base (s)kan-, inverted ksan-, attested in Khot. Saka tcanā- 'wrinkle', kaṃjīta- 'wrinkled', N.Pers. šikanj 'twisting or coiling rope'. The Khotan Saka forms can be analysed: kanab(h)a-* > kanfa-* > kaṃha-, with later -āṃha- through -uṃh-. For flax the related Khotan Saka word is kuṃbā, BS atasī, Sogd. kānbā from older kanaba-*, with -uṃb- < -aṃb-.

kaba 'a measure (of oil, medicinal plant)', I 179, 97v4 kuṃjsavīniṃ rūṃ dva kaba gvūha rrūṃ dva kaba 'two kaba-measures of sesame oil, two kaba-measures of butter', III 92·239 śau kabä sperka jṣąīāīnä 'one kaba-measure of sparkā-plant to be boiled' (sperka, sparka, BS sprkkā). If Iranian, kaba is from kapa-* 'container', with O.Pers. καπίθη, Zor.P. kapīč, Armen. lw kapič 'a measure', Oss. I. k'äbic 'storeroom'; with -čaka-, N.Pers. kafč, kafčah 'spoon', Sogd. P 19·7 'δry kpčky 'three spoonfuls' (see TPS 1954, 146–156). Turkish Uigur qapčuq 'small bag' is from Iran. kapčik* (as Turk. place name Lopčuq from older Napčik, Khot. Saka dapāci). Possibly also Hittite kappi- 'a measure' belongs here. Waxī kapč 'spoon' without -aka-; Balōčī kapātag 'basket'. Iranian origin seems more likely than Chinese K 71·1 xo < γâp, Uigur qav.

kabä 'horse(?)', V 310 viir2–3 u vara hä śī bārai ājtdāṃdä u [deleted kabä śī] vāra āṃna kabä śī-pve 'and there they brought a white riding-animal and an excellent(?) reddish(?) horse, white-legged'. Without contexts also ibid. r1 kabä. From the context r4 śī bārai bidä bvestä 'he mounted the white steed' and v3 gāṃna bvestaṃdū 'we mounted the gāṃna-animals'. Possibly kaba- to Lat. caballus '(poor) horse, working horse', later replacing equus; Lat. cabō, -ōnis 'large horse'; O.Slav. kobyla 'mare'.

kabi 'hero', K 73·40 kabi cū sākyi hącyāra jauna 'a hero whose foes are broken in fighting'. Dialectal form of older kavi- 'epithet of kings and princes', see kai, plural kā. For -b- older -v-, note also the words III 49·35 bāṃdabīnä 'relationship' (to BS bāndhava-), and lw JS 19v1 jīyabaña, BS jetavana; and barbīrye, beside baravirnä 'pregnant'.

From kam- 'to cover' with suffixes; kamaiśka- passed to Turk. kimiškä (Al-Kāšyarī) 'a variegated felt from Kāšyar'. Hence originally a Kančakī word (earlier language of Kāšyar). For the variant meanings note the parallel Khotan Saka karasta- 'skin garment', Yidya karast 'hide, skin', Waxī karast 'fur-coat', Pašto krāst 'felt, woollen cloak'. For kam- see also khamūḍa-. Possibly here the Latin camisia 'shirt', a word of either oriental or Gallic origin. kạrä 'title', II 73·9 ttägutta kạrä ṣau ṣarrnädattä u hvaṃna kạrä ṣau ṣaṃdū 'the Tibet kạrä-official the ṣau-official Ṣarrnädatta and Khotana kạrä-official ṣau-official Ṣaṃdū', II 74·44 hvaṃna kạrä ṣau ṣaṃdū; IV 16·5 kạrä gaudä nāte 'the kạrä-official Gauda received'. The form kạra in II 22, 16a3 u kạra sikha ysanaji vā hirä ha⟨raṣṭā?⟩ 'and the kạra-official Sikha of Ysana presented (thing =) money'. Then kạrä has the epithet salya-bāyai 'president of the year' in IV 72a2 salya-bāyai kạrä va haṃbāṃ and occurs with other title in II 33, 3b8 salya-bāyai pharṣa sāṃdara, 'president of the year, judge Sundara'. In a different phrase there is also V 10·2·1 ṣṣau ṣacū salya 'in the year of ṣau-official Ṣacū' (also V 4·2·1). More common is the documentary use in connexion with 'gifts', IV 33a1–2 še hvaṃḍye kamalajä haṃbä 400 mūri u kạrä va rāysai va 9 mūrä hvaṃḍe 5 mūre 'for one man the individual share 400 mūrā-coins, and for the kạrä-official for a gift 9 mūrā-coins, for a man 5 mūrā-coins'; IV 33b1 še hvaṃḍye 260 mūri paśä avaśäna u kạrä va rāysai va 5 mūri hvaṃḍe 6 mūre 'for one man 260 mūrā-coins, for those commissioned and those not, and for the kạrä-official for a gift 5 mūrā-coins, for a man 6 mūrā-coins'; to this kạrä va rāysai the phrase IV 72a2 kạrä va haṃbāṃ is parallel assuring the division of va from rāysai. After a proper name V 3·1·6 spāta sīḍaki va rāysai/// shows that va is separate from kạrä. The word rāysai also precedes hīvī in IV 45a3 haṃtsa kạri va rāysai hīvī vāra 'together the portion of the gift for the kạri-official'; IV 55a1–2 karä va rāysai hī-(vī) herä hamye aharaṣṭä 'the thing (= money) of the gift for the kạrä-official has not been presented'; IV 53b1–2 kạrä va rāysai hīye bīye hvaḍä 2 'the two textile(?) men of the gift for the kạrä-official'. Once the inst. sing. occurs IV 43b1 haṃtsa kạrä va rāysaina 4 'together four with the gift for the kạrä-official'. The verb associated with this phrase is harays- 'to stretch, offer, give', IV 72a2 kạrä va haṃbāṃ haraṣṭādä 'they presented the share for the kạrä-official', and IV 55a2 aharaṣṭä 'not given'. With this context can be compared the loan-word prahänaja- 'gift', BS praheṇaka-, Pali paheṇaka- 'gift', II 14, 2b2 uspurrä prahänaji hoḍi 'gave the full gift'; II 14, 2b7 prahänaji śä müra 5 heḍä 'the gift one müra-coin, he gives 5'. See SDTV 4. The two earlier attempts to interpret these phrases in IV 146, and SDTV 4 are here superseded. The title kạrä is from older käṣa-kara-* 'watcher, protector, keeper', to the base käṣ-:käṣṭa-, with kara- 'maker', beside ḳäka- 'protector from käṣäka-*'; note the bases käṭ- and ḳ- in käṭäña-, ḳäña- 'to be cared for'. For the absence of -iš-, see ḳätai 'opened', Zor.P. višätaka-. The word räysai 'gift' is from raz-, as Greek ὀρέγω 'to stretch out, give'. The earlier rendering of kạra by 'region' AM, n.s. 2, 1951, 9 is unsatisfactory.

karä 'surely, indeed', V 389, 19v4–5 ku ye ttumäṣa byehäte balysäna ku karä ttīma ne jīye 'where one gets Buddhaic great fields where the seed does not fail', BS G 37, 14b1 kṣetre tu sukṣetre uptād bījān mahāphalaṃ; K 32·29 rre ṣi jsāṃ dāyī kari asaida na īdā 'the righteous king surely does no evil (BS asiddha-) at all'; =K 23·75 dana rre jsai pä kīḍa bvara adā (na īdā) 'the king Dana does no unrighteousness at all' (here kari = kīḍa, see käḍe). Here the kau baida is parallel to ibid. b5 āśạu baida 'to the āryas', that is, the bhikṣu-monks. The kai, plural kā (beside the dialectal K 73·40 kabi above) has retained the two original meanings specialized of 'royal hero' and 'wise man'. From kavi-, Av. kavi- of the king Vištāspa-, later kai Vištāsp šāh, and the kavi- 'wise man' with the karapan- 'incantator' (connected with Armen. lw karap the 'singing' bird, the 'swan' as O.Engl. swin 'song', swan 'swan bird'), and with the professional suffix -anyú- O.Ind. krpaṇyú- 'singer' (debased in Chorasmian krb- 'to mutter'). Later Zor.P. kai 'title of king', kayān, N.Pers. kai, kayān, kayānī, and dialectal kav 'hero'. The Manichean used kavi- of the Giants, M.Pers.T., M. Parth.T. k'w, k'w'n, for Greek γίγαντες and Arab. al-jabābirah, Sogd. qwy, kw'y, plur. kwyšt. In Sasanian inscription archaistic kdy kai*. For the kavi- with karapan- the Zor.P. gloss is kyk kaik* or kayak*. IE Pok. 587–8 (s)keu- 'to observe', O.Ind. kavi-, ākúvate 'intend', Greek κοέω 'to notice, hear', κόης, κοίης 'priest'. In Anatolia, Hittite kawi-, Hieroglyphic Luwian kawai-, Lydian kaveś, Greek acc. κανειν 'priest' to Artemis and other deities. From keu- also O.Engl. hāwian 'to look'. The word kai therefore suited well for the monk, the bhikṣu-, called honorifically ārya-. See SDTV 33.

kẹca 'cleft, ravine', JS 9r4 gara kẹca māñaṃdä 'like a mountain ravine', JS 11r3 gara kẹca khuṇāstā-raṃgą 'the mountain ravine with banks full of caves'; loc. sing. JS 5r4 hīña ttūrre kẹcaña ṣṭāṃ thīyẹ 'in (=from) your own jaw you pulled (the tusks) out in a cleft'; JS 13r2 cuai vāṣṭä thīyai gara kẹcẹña ṣṭāna 'for whom you pulled them out in a mountain cleft'. The syllables -ẹca-, -eca- occur in tcalcā-, later tcẹca 'border, edge', and haṃbeca 'compact, summary', older haṃbirsta-; hence kart-čā-* or kirsta*- to base kart- 'to cut', like dara- 'ravine', from dar- 'to split, tear', N.Pers. darrah 'defile'. Parallel to BS giri-kandara- 'mountain cave, defile'. For base kart-, see pātālt-. Armen. karč 'short', and kirč 'defile, pass' may be Iranian loan-words.

From ka with u (<uta). kạu a particular art taught to a young prince, mentioned after cakṛṇa 'with discus weapon'; Z 24·241 iṣvastu cakṛṇa kạu rraukyo haṃkhīysgyo 'archery, discus-throwing, slinging, calculation, counting'. From kaupa*- to kaup- 'to throw' in Zor.P. kwpyn kōpēn*, gloss to Av. fradaxšan- 'sling', but N.Pers. kōbēn 'hammer'. Possibly with kau- 'send out, shoot', see s.v. kūstai, uskoś-, naṣkoś-. For the hook note also ḅū 'perfume' from bauda*-, Oss. D. bodä.

kauce 'hindrance, obscuration', dyadic with BS āvaraṇa-, III 129, 158·20–1 ttrāmą ttū satvā bāji karmi āvarṇa kauce, baśdẹ ṣadāvā dīśẹ yināmane 'so for the beings we, being believers, can make confession of karma-deeds, hindrances (BS āvaraṇa-), obscurations, sins'. From base kaud- 'to cover', from IE (s)k(h)eud-, to Pok. 951–3 (s)keu-, O.Pers. xauda- 'hat', Waxī skīd from skauda*-. The -c- of kauce is due to secondary contact -d.č-. See khoca.

kaucāhạra 'covering', II 110, 17–18 pajsa kīṇa jsāṃ kaucāhạra va hūḍaudū 'five kin-pound (value) we gave for coverings (dresses ?)', II 110, 19–20 pātca vā āṣe kaucāhạra ā śau hatca ḍausvera jsa 'then Āṣe took one covering together with cover(?) (ḍausvera)'. The ā marked for deletion may stand for nā 'took'. Possibly from kauca- 'covering', see kauce, and āhạra*- from ā-ʃara- to base (s)p(h)ar- 'to cover', as in Zor.P. spar, Armen. lw aspar, spar-, N.Pers. sipar 'shield', Greek-Pers. σπαραβάραι, 'shield-bearers', note Armen. aspara-pak 'covered by shield'. The same base in Oss. D. p'aruä, p'arä 'skin, film', I. vārv, Armen. p'ar 'thin skin, film; shirt' (see BSOAS 20, 1957, 52–3); IE Pok. pel- 803. Georgian p'arva 'to cover' may be from Iranian. Bud. Sanskrit has phara-, pharaka- 'shield' from Iranian. Vedic pharva- occurs in prapharvī. The compound kaucāhạra 'covering' is dyadic.

kauysä 'pot', III 80·30 utcäla kauysä 'water pot'. See kūysa-.

kaura 'sheep', III 89·178 kaura hvāṣi 'the herb kaura-' or 'of the kaura-animal', II 59·4 kāṃra kagä 'skin of the kaura-animal', and ibid. 60·22. From kāura*-, kāvara*-, with Kurd. kaur, Aurāmī kawrā, kawir 'lamb, sheep, ram'. If with -u- from older -p- to IE Pok. 529 kapro- 'goat', Lat. caper, O.Norse hafr, O.Engl. hæfer, Greek κάπρος 'boar', Celt. Welsh gafr, O.Ir. gabor.

korakä, kaurakä 'pigeon', Sid. 9r5 korakä, BS kapotaka-, Tib. thi-ba; Sid. 17r5 kaurakä, BS kapotaka-, Tib. thi-ba. Both Khotan Saka aṣṣäṇakä 'pigeon' and Sogd. kp'wt'yčh kapōtīčā*- 'pigeon' are named from the colour 'blue, grey'; one may expect the same for koraka-. The base IE keu-:ku- or ḱeu- is found in Greek κύανος 'dark blue thing', Hittite kuuanna(n)-, kunna(n)- 'copper, copper blue'. To this kau- belongs kora- with suffix -ra-. For kua-:kū- see above s.v. kūra- 'grape'. For IE ḱeu-, see s.v. svaṃdūṃ 'sulphur', and hīśśana-.

kaurka, see kūra-, N.Pers. kēr.

kauvaji 'coat(?)', V 258, 1b1 paṃñe hvaṃḍye kauvaji mūri 53 'for each man a coat 53 mūrā-coins'. From base kau-p- (or kau-b-) 'to cover' from kau- 'cover' with labial increment (as often to a base in IE -eu-) to IE Pok. 951–3 (s)keu- 'to cover', see s.v. buṣkve, and khoca. Connected with O.Ind. kavaca- 'cuirass', BS kavacikā, Pali kavaca-, koca 'mail', Prakrit Kroraina kavaji, and the ko- of BS kocava-, kocca, Pali kojava- 'coverlet', O.Ind. (Arthaśāstra) kaucapaka-.

kauvāle 'magician', parallel to BS K 32·45 sādhaka, K 24·93, K 16·150 sādaka, from sādh- 'to perform magic'; K 32·33–4 cu ṣṭā pīrūyi maṃdri sāhye kalpa kauvāle ṣaṃdyu ī rāhā: nāve, raṣṭā 'who prepared the ritual of an ancient mantra-charm a kauvālaa- possessing the faith (-force); at once truly he felt pain'; in place of cu ṣṭā the two other texts have tta tta khu 'so when'; K 32·42–3 tta tta khū sādrra spāṣṭi kauvāle maṃdrra 'so when the kauvālaa- looked at the potent mantra-charm'; here the two other texts differ, K 24·91 tta tta khu s(ā)-hyāṃ madrra sa(ttra), K 16·147 tta tta khu sāhyāṃ madrra sattrra 'so when he prepared them potent mantra-charm'. Earlier proposals for kauvāle were uncertain (see BSOAS 29, 1966, 520–1). Here a new interpretation is attempted. From kaub- 'to practise rites, pray', attested in Oss. D. kovun, kuvd 'to pray, celebrate a communion offering', kuftitä, kuvdtitä 'offering', I. kuvyn, küvd, küft and derivatives, Vedic kobh- attested in RV 5·52·12 (Marútas) kubhanyáva útsam á kīríṇo nṛtuḥ 'the ritualists danced, the kīrin-beings at the well (soma vat)'. See E. Benveniste, Études sur la langue ossète 12–3 for base kaubh-; and kau- s.v. kūstai, uskoś-, naṣkoś- for bases kauθ-, kaus-, Sogd. kau- 'to send out, give'. Pašto cwab 'longing' is excluded by the meaning. IE Pok. 955 skeu-g-, skeu-b-, skeu-bh- 'send out'. Thus kau- of kauvālaa- is from kauba-* 'practice of magic'. The second component is vālaa- from older varda-ka-* 'practiser'; this vard- is either a dialectal form of varz- 'to work', Greek ϝεργ-, with -d- from -ĝ-, as Khotan Saka paḍā- 'axe', acc. sing. paḍu, plur. paḍe from par(a)-tu-*, Oss. DI. färät 'axe', beside O.Ind. paraśu-; or the increment is different, then var-z-, var-g-, var-d-. The form varda- is attested in Armen. lw vardapet 'teacher', and the proper name in the Sasanian inscription of Šāhpuhr I. Parth. 27 wrdpt prštkpty, Pers. 33 wrdpt ZY plstkpt, Greek 64 goulbad τοῦ ἐπὶ τῆς ὑπηρεσίας 'over the service'; and Parth. 28 bgdt wrdptykn, Pers. 35 bgdt ZY wldptkn, Greek 67 badou goulibēgan. This same -vālaa- is below in mātṛvālaa-, BS deva-pālaka-, Tib. lha bon-po. Elsewhere Prakrit pālaka- 'protector' occurs in JS 4r2 hasta-vālaa-, =BS hastipālaka- 'elephant-keeper'. Here sādrra, sattrra 'potent' will be BS sādhra-*.

kyera-, see cera-, relative to ttera-.

krraḍiñä 'planning times', II 54·26 sera hvūṃ-śī haḍāṃ krraḍīñä śe 'the second, the organiser of the envoys, Sera Hvūṃ-śī' (Chin. fəng-ṣī 'censor', K 30·7; 526·2). From kara(t)-rata-* 'making the rota' with the suffix of position or status -īñä (see bāṃdabīñä 'relationship'); adjective dahīña- 'male'. From the governing compound kara-rata-*, with rata- 'row, turn', Zor.P. ratak 'rank' (Dātastān ī dēnīk 36·19), N.Pers. radah, Tokhara lw B retke, A ratāk 'troop'; with -ā- Oss. D. radä, I. rad 'row, turn', rad känyn 'to make the row, turn', Khotan Saka, below, rrāyä 'turns, times' (see VI 302). Hence kara-rata-* > krarta-* and krraḍa-; for the lost -a-, note also prūva- 'fort', Kroraina pirova; and pra- < parā-.

krrasanīca 'plant name, BS karkoṭa(ka)-'; Sid. 107r5 kākoṭā krrasanīca hīye bāta 'root of the plant', BS karkoṭa-mūlasya, Tib. karkotakahi rća-bahi phye-ma 'powder of the karkotaka root'. From kars- (> kras-) with suffixes -ana- and -īca- (see also salīca), to IE base Pok. 938–47 (s)ker- 'to cut, bite, sting' with increment (s)ker-k-, Iran. kars-, beside (s)ker-k- in Zor.P. karčang 'crab', O.Ind. karkaṭa- 'crab', karkoṭa- 'poisonous animal', and Greek καρκίνος 'crab', Lat. cancer (kar-kro-*), and beside ḱer-k- in O.Ind. śarkóṭa- 'poisonous animal'. Association of 'scorpion' and 'crab' is shown also in Tib. sdig-pa 'scorpion', sdig-srin 'crab' (srin-bu 'insect, worm'). Hence krrasanīca 'plant of the poisonous animal', mechanical rendering of karkoṭa-, as Khotan Saka khuysaa- 'the frog-plant' renders BS maṇḍūkī (I 179, 98v1). The karkoṭa- is the momordica mixta in Suśruta. For sker- see W. B. Henning memorial volume 25–8. Variation of IE k- and ḱ- can be seen also in ker-, ḱer- 'dark colour' in Pok. 573.

D. äxsajun, äxsajdta, I. äxsajyn, äxsajdta 'to long for, be attracted, be troubled', Pam. 2·57·32 dä zärdä äxsajuj 'your heart longs', I. mä zärdä fexsajdta 'my heart was troubled'. The IE is not traced.

kṣīna 'abandonment', JS 21r4 jīye kṣīna yuḍai 'you abandoned life'; JS 35v2–3 yuḍai jīye kṣīna, Z 2·8 (innate accusative) ttärthānu kṣīnu paśśāndi 'they abandoned the Tīrthya-sectaries'; Z 22·317 mulśde kṣīṇo paśśändä 'they abandoned mercy'. Verbal SuvO. 24r7 ttätä natālsto kṣīn(d)ä 'they vanish downwards', BS imau ca heṣṭā kṣayatāṃ vrajete 'they two vanish downwards'. SuvO. 3r6–7 (loc. sing.) kho kṣīña uysnaura handāḍe 'how he favoured the beings in (his) abandonment'. From xšai-: xšī- 'cease; abandon', with Oss. D. fexsujun, fexsud 'be exhausted, rub away', I. ixsijyn, ixsyd (if from xšai-:xšī-, and not xšau-:xšu-), Balōčī šīay 'to rub away', Yidγa fšīi 'very soft, rotten'. By this connexion the base is IE ksei-, as a variant to Pok. 487 g^{u}hdei- in O.Ind. kṣiṇoti, kṣīna-, akṣita- (but kṣ- is highly ambiguous in O.Indian), Greek φθίνω, φθίσις, ψίσις 'perish', with initial variant sk- or ks- beside g^{u}hd-, as in the medial position in the word for 'eye', Av. aši-, O.Ind. dkṣi, Greek ὀφθαλμός. See also ysīta.

kṣipalai 'a blow', K 42·116–7 ka baucī vichuste ū ragyi biṃda kṣipalai hvaste 'when he (the prince) threw down his hat and struck him lightly on the top of his head'. Translated in the Bulletin of Tibetology, Sikkim, 3, 1966, 11 (but with kṣi 'six'). The Chinese text has (K 685·8) p'ai 'strike lightly'. Possibly from xšaip- or xšvaip- 'to strike a sweeping blow', keeping -p-, to Av. xšvaēwaya-, Zor.P. šēp- 'to throw', Waxī vişīv- 'sweep' from abi-xšvaib-*, rašīp 'whip', Got. sweip-, O.Norse sveipa 'throw', svipa 'whip', Slav. Russ. šibatī 'throw'; Engl. swipe 'heavy blow'. To IE Pok. 625 kseip-.

kṣuṇa- 'section, period of time', in datation 'period of rule in a year', also written: kṣuṃṇa-, kṣāṃṇa-, kṣauṇa-, kṣāuṇa- (or to be read kṣuāṃṇa-, or kṣāuṃṇa-), kṣu, kṣā; IV 20·8 36mye kṣuṇä 'in the 36th regnal year'; V 210·36·1 15mye kṣuṇa; II 33, 3b10 33 kṣuṇi; II 129·80 tcūrmye kṣuṃṇä; IV 18·1 33mye kṣāṃṇä; II 57·43 (=K 151·44) with ā and u on the one akṣara, pūhye kṣāuṃṇä 'in the fifth year'; IV 1·1 sparadirsamye kṣu (for kṣu(ṇä?)) 'in the 35th year'; II 22, 16b3 sparadirsamye kṣā; V 385·92 naumye kṣauṇa 'in the ninth year'; II 42·1 hau kṣaṇyä (in the initial incomplete words). The word occurs in five other sources: Tumšuq Saka xšana-, ed. S. Konow 1·1 xšimane xšane 'in the sixth year'; Surx Kotal Greek script χρονο from xšana* or possibly xšuna-*; Kroraina Prakrit 661·1 ij'a kṣunami 'in this period of time'; 121·1 iśa kṣunaṃmi, with dental -n-, not -ṇ-. Kharoṣṭhī inscriptions, with both -n- and -ṇ-, ed. S. Know 87·1 iśa kṣunami; 75·1 iśe kṣuṇami, rendered by Konow 'at that term', and 'at this instant'; 85·3 iś(e) divasa-kṣuṇami, rendered 'on this day-term'. Parallel is 39·2 itra khaṇasa rendered 'at this instant'. Tokhara B kṣuṃ, kṣune, kṣuntsa, kṣuṃntsa (see S. Lévi, JA 1913, 2, 8–10; J. Filliozat, JA 1958, to p. 88 facsimile). in datation.

I replace here my earlier proposals (references, see AM, n.s., 2, 1951, 5), by assuming a basic meaning 'section' of time, hence a 'period' and specialized in datation as a 'period of rule, regnal year', the 'rule' being secondary. Two derivatives give ks-en-o-* in Tumšuq Saka xšana-, and ks-un-o-* in Khotan Saka kṣuṇa-. This double derivation is found similarly in Greek τέρην, τέρενος 'tender', from teren-*, Sogd. trn tarana-*, beside Av. tauruna-, O.Ind. tāruṇa-. From ks-en-o-* came also O.Ind. kṣaṇa- 'time, moment' post-Vedic, North-West Prakrit khaṇa- 'time', with parallel, inscriptional kṣuṇami. This base kes-:ks- is then a development from the base sek-:sk- 'to cut off', found also in (s)ken, skei-, skeu-, and here in (s)kes-. A similar development gave the other base Pok. 585 kes-:ks- 'to scratch, comb, shave' with ks-en-, ks-es-, ks-eu-. With O.Ind. kṣaṇa- belong also Baltic O.Pruss. kīsman from kēs-*, acc. sing. 'time', and O.Slav. časŭ from kēso-*, used for 'time, hour, moment' in Slavonic languages, Alban. kohe 'time' from kēsā*.

khāṃdalaja adj. 'of a sharp thing', second component in I 141, 49r4 hva-khāṃdalaja āstai 'bone of boar's tusk', BS ārūka- a medicament, literally rendered from āru- 'boar' (like khuysaa- for the plant BS maṇḍūkī). See s.v. hva- 'boar'. K 32·44 khaudalą kāḍirani, K 16·150 khaudala kāḍa(ra) jsa 'with sharp(?) sword' varies with -au-. If khāṃda- is primary, the base may be (s)k(h)an-d- 'to cut', see s.v. hatcan-. If -auda- is primary the base could be (s)k(h)ap-, xafta-*, as ttauda- from tafta- 'heated', IE Pok. 930–3 skep-, skap- 'to cut with sharp tool', N.Pers. kāftan 'split'. For tusk, note Av. tiži.asūra- and Khotan Saka haska- from base as- 'sharp'.

khāysa- 'food', see khays-.

khāysde 'moves', Manj. 343, see khoys-; and Manj. 343 akhāṣṭa.

khārāva- 'shining(?)', II 103·57 strīyastrīśāna katha khārāva-ttīṣą gyasta-bhävanyāṃja 'the city of the trāya-striṃśa-gods, bright-splendoured abode of the deva-gods'. From base kā-, kai:či-, kau-:čū- 'to burn', possibly kārāva-* with suffix -āva-. See also cirau-, tcūlye, haṃjsūl-. AM, n.s., II, 1965, 104; III; AION 1, 1959, 120–5. The word hvāṣta- beside Av. hvōišta- shows that ā may also derive from older -āi-.

khārgga- 'mud', acc. sing. Z 19·53 kho ju ye khārggu hudūtā 'as one beats mud (to shape things)'; Z 5·90 kho ju ye viysu thaṃjäte khārja 'as one pulls a lotus out of the mud'; without -r-, Sid. 136v2 ḳhāje māñaṃdu 'like mud', BS kardamopama-, Tib. rdzab-hdra; Manj. 278 vas(v)a khu veysa ḳhāje sūrai 'pure like a clean lotus in the mud'; JS 23v1–2 jala haraṣtai thu khājaña 'you threw your matted hair (BS jaṭā) in the mud'; JS 27v4 loc. sing. kheja. From xar(ā)- 'to dirty', see cognates s.v. saṃkhal-.

khāvara- 'a tool(?)', III 109·8 drāmakyi khāvarā ma bīysaṃja styūdā 'do not seize such a hard khāvara-'. Possibly from IE Pok. 930–3 skep- 'to cut, split', Zor.P. kāft 'cloven' (Gr.Bd. 95·1), škāf- 'open', parr škāfēt 'opens wings', gloss to Av. pazdaya-; N.Pers. kāftan, šikāftan 'to split'; Zor.P. gukāftan, M.Pers.T. gwg'ftn (BSOS 9·83). See also khaudala-.

khāśąna- 'abode, place', II 115·31 sājū brraura kūṣta tta khāśąnvā śavāpaśama va aṣajvamāna mīraudai hīsīdai 'I make (them) happy so that being unattached in the objects of sense with a view to calming woes they may die (and) come again (to birth)'. Here khāśąna- corresponds to BS viṣaya- (which is normally retained) by literal rendering 'dwelling, place', as in Tib. yul 'land' with the rare BS śava- 'misery' for the usual BS duḥkha- in śava-upaśama, and with BS aṣajyamāna 'not attached' (note -ṣ- as in BS and Kharoṣṭhī Dharmapada in this word -ṣang-), here written aṣajvāṇa (with ma below), Kroraina aṣajamaṇa, Pali asajjamāna-, with -jv- archaistic from -jj- < -jy-. For khāśąna- either khāśą- with suffix -āna- or -akāna-, or compound khāśą-dāna- (as khāysāna- 'belly' khāysa-dāna-*) to base kaz- or khaz- as in N.Pers. kāz 'hut', kāzah 'house', Armen. lw kazm 'arrangement' (see s.v. pyays-, kāysū).

khāśīda 'they fasten', III 41·30 spyakyą khāśīdā gauṇe 'they tie up flower garlands', ibid. 34 spyakyai khāṣīdā haṃtcā 'they fasten flowers in bouquets', with -ṣ-, not -ś-. For 'garland-making' O.Ind. mālya-grathana-, hence possibly khāś-, khāṣ- equates with BS grath-. Variation of -ś- and -ṣ- can be traced to older -z- and -ẋš-, yielding a base xaz- and xaš-, to IE k(h)eĝ(h)-; if the -ĝ- alternated here with -k- (as in Pok. 739–40 merk- and merĝ- 'to rub'), O.Ind. khacayati, khacita- = grathita- could be adduced.

gaḍā- 'roller', first component, II 59·2; 6; ibid. 60·9; 10; 16 gaḍā-hvasta- 'beaten with a roller, beetle', 59·6 u gaḍā-hvastä śṭyi haysänā-līkä thauracaihä dva 'and two roller-beaten white coverings for bathing', always with thauracaiha-. From gartaka- 'roller' to base gart-, see gaḍ-, parallel to kūlaa- 'roller' with āvul- and ākūṭ- from Prakrit ā- with kol- and BS ā- with koṭ- 'to beat'. Note also Šuγnī warδān 'weaver's beam', warδ, wardan(a) 'rolling-pin; axle-tree'; N.Pers. gardanah 'rolling-pin'; Armen. lw grtanak, grtnak 'rolling-pin'.

gaḍä 'stone(?)', IV 49a2 thau va mūri pajistä 500 u ttī ra gaḍä hajsāmā haraṣṭādä 'he demanded for the (silk-)cloth 500 mūrā-coins and then also they presented parcels of (jade?) stone'. Possibly gaḍa- < garta-*, with g- < v-, to varta-* 'stone', see s.v. ūḍāra- 'crystal'; and N.Pers. vard in lāžavard 'lapis lazuli'. The stone of Khotan was īra- (=BS śilā-) 'jade'. For hajsāmā 'collections, parcels', possibly older haṃjsāmākā-* 'collection'.

gaḍana- 'watcher(?)', III 137·3 khu ttyāṃ gaḍanau pajsa kṣamī, jastyāṃ bgysāṃ u bauda(satvāṃ); and III 137·4–5 khu ttyāṃ gäḍanau pajsaṃ kṣamī, jastyāṃ bgysāṃ u baudhasatvāṃ aurga tsvāñi 'if he desires worship of these guadians(?), to the deva Buddhas and bodhisattvas he must go with reverence'; ibid. 8–9 khu au vaña īmījsū ttyau gaḍanāṃ jsa ttu pvaisai pvaisū 'if now to-day from these guardians(?) I should ask this question'. From the context epithet of the protective Buddhas and bodhisattvas, hence like the parvālaa-, BS paripālaka-. Possibly from base gar- 'to watch' or gar- 'to observe' if a second base with agent suffix -tana-, as in Pašto caṣtan 'master, husband', taṣtan, Orm. čēštan, royal name Caṣṭana-, Uigur Turk. čšt'ny, from čaxš- 'to command' (see BSOAS 13, 1949, 125), and the epic name Oss. ūärxtänäg (varxtanaka-*) 'commander' as the ancestor, 'master of the Great House'; beside the noun of action -tana- in infinitives O.Pers. nipištanaiy, Zor.P. nipištan, N.Pers. navištan. Hence gartana-* 'watcher' to gar- 'be awake' (or ham-gar- in Oss. D. ämyälun, I. ānqälyn 'think'), Av. gar- 'to watch', O.Ind. gar-, pres. jāgarti, IE Pok. 390 ger- 'to watch', Greek ἐγείρω; Sogd. Possibly (like muṇḍa- 'lump', from marganta-*, Sogd. B mrγwntk, Man. mrγwndyy, N.Pers. muγund, muγundah) gaṇḍa- may derive from garganta-* to base IE gherghbeside gherdh- of an enclosure, Pok. 444 Av gərəδa-, O.Ind. gṛhá- 'house', Finno-Ugrian lw. Wotyak gurt 'village', Ziryen gort 'house', Got. gards 'house'. The stūpa name in Khotan Go-ma-sa-la-gan-dahi mčhod-rten (variant Derge edition -gan-dḫahi), in Mongol translation kwym-' s'l' suburgan (omitting ganda), may contain a Khotan Saka ganda- to go with this gaṇḍā-, in the Derge edition Sanskritized with -dh-. The context excludes gaṃḍyā- 'gong', BS ghaṇṭā- here. The Derge edition may have had in mind the BS gandha-kuṭi-, Prakrit in Tibetan gandḫola, see būspāṃja.

gatcasta- 'broken', participle to gatciñ-, gatcy- 'to break'; II 91·110 tti tta gatcastä tta tta burṣṭā 'so broken, so burst'; III (ed. 2) 145·002 u āysāja gatcastä-līka 'and favour infringed'; present, K 145, 3r4 u samai gatcyāma u parau gatciñāmä mistä gatcasta samai ṣṭai 'and the breaking of the vow and infringement of the command is a great vow broken (samaya-, Tib. dam-ćhig 'oath', Vajrayāna term)'. From ga- < ava 'down', dialectal beside va-, with tcasta- to base skand-, skad- 'to break', see hatcañ- 'to break'. Here tcy- from sćada-, and -iñ- from -añ-. The Chinese sign (K 136·1) g'ą > ya > hia, Japan. ka, is transliterated in Khotan Saka by hara and ha (BSOAS 30, 1967, 100), that is, pronounced either xar or γar, for which in Tibetan kha'a, that is, pronounced with laryngal -'- beside Khotan Saka -r-. From these γara on the Oxus the Gara of Θο-γαρα were emigrants, later returning westwards under the name To-gar, O.Ind. Tukhāra-. The γar- is retained in N. Persian in γalčah, γarčah 'mountain folk', and place name γarčistān. See above s.v. ggari-. The form gara- is adjectival from the base gar-, not by way of gari-. A statement on the Gara with references was given, but in now out-of-date analysis, in AM n.s., 11, 1964, 5–6, and this above reconstruction was set out in a lecture to the Philological Society (London) in 1968 (still unpublished), and was read at a seminar in the Australian National University, Canberra in 1970. A full study is in preparation. Note that the pronunciation with initial fricative γ- is important for Chinese spellings.

From gutaimä* to base gau-:gu- 'to go', with transitive preterite as tsutaimä 'I went'. If this is not the base in gūch-:gūta- 'release', the connexion lies with the gau-:gu- of Oss. gukṣapä 'large', JS 10v3 ttina himye ttaunä gukṣapä aṃgna maysirkä 'thereby he became fat, huge in limb, vast', the story of Kalmāṣapāda. Dialectal or archaic form višapa-* (like haräysa, ttaira haraysä for Av. harā bərəz, taēra-). Here gukṣapa follows ttaunä 'fat, stout' and is dyadic with maysirka- 'huge'. In Khotan Saka kṣ and ṣṣ, later ṣ, replace older xš or ś and kṣ can replace fš also; in later texts variations occur, note haṭhṭha 'truth', hakṣa, haṣa; kṣusta- 'serum', ṣaukala 'rheum'; hīṣṣtai 'he studied'; and parakṣa 'belt(?)', with -xš-; loan-word BS viṣama-: viysama-, JS 25r2 vīṣṣamera 'more unfavourable', K 144, 1v4 väkṣäma-. The -p- intervocalic retained is like the -p- of khapa 'cloak'. Since my proposal (quoted by M. J. Dresden, Jātakastava, p. 473) to trace here BS kukṣimant- 'pot-bellied' is now unacceptable, it is preferred to trace gukṣapa- to older višapa-* (or višāpa-* with shortened second vowel) in the sense of 'extended hugely'. The suffix -pa- (-apa-, or -āpa-) is familiar in Av. kasyapa (and frequent in Old Indian). The base is then vai-:vi- 'to extend' (in the indeclinable Av. vi and all later Iranian) and with increment -g- in the base vaig- 'to extend, expand', M.Pers.T. wyhm 'broad, wide' in wyhmdr 'broader', wyhmyh 'breadth', Av. vaējah- 'expanse', Zor.P. *wys vēs Gr. Bd. TD2 127·4; 128·14 'plain' in the phrase kōf ut vēs 'mountain and plain' like kōf ut dašt (vēs from vaixša-*). Av. vīšāpa- is an epithet of aži- 'snake, dragon', hence possibly 'huge', Armen. višap is used of anything monstrous (see C. Dowsett, BSOAS 19, 1957, 466; E. Benveniste, REA 7, 1927, 7–9), the -i- pretonic may represent Iranian -ī- as in hamširak 'foster-brother', or -ē- (< -ai-). Georgian vešap'-i 'dragon' may have retained Iranian -ē- (see also sp'et'ak'-i 'white') or have replaced Armen. -i- of višap by -e-. Note also Av. mazan- (and later) 'huge' used of demons.

Perhaps rather loan-word from Kroraina goni 'sack', O.Ind. goṇī, with -ñä as dārañä 'dhāraṇī'; unless from Iran. gauna- 'hair', see ggūna-; Sarīkolī γɛwn 'coarse sack', Pašto γūnǰ 'bag for straw', Kābuli gūnī 'charcoal sack', Balōčī gōn-dōš 'packing needle'.

guḍa- 'told, narrated', II 90·90 guḍe, see present gvar-.

gūṇaṃba 'assault(?)', III 123·69–70 na ttaṇḍaya, na dvya, samaśana, gūṇaṃba, dveṣī, ysaiṣṭa, 'do not beat (BS daṇḍaya); assault (BS saṃmarśana-?); hostile'. The context of glosses is of 'hostility', hence possibly gūṇaṃ-ba 'causing violence', from vṛšna-* 'male' and 2nd component pa- 'working', base pā- beside IE pen- in Greek πόνος, πονέω. See s.v. pa-.

gūṇā 'worm', I 139, 47r3 gūṇā ysyāṃsajā (read ysāysajā) jsva (read jsa) dūrṣṭa 'bitten by worms residing in herbs (grass)', BS *tṛ⟨ṇa-⟩bhu-kīṭa kair daṣṭa (-d- and -ṭ- hard to distinguish in this text). Hence gūṇa- for BS kīṭa-. The form gūṇā for guṇyau* inst. plural. Possibly from IE Pok. 400 geu- 'chew, bite, gnaw', O.Engl. cēowan 'chew', OHG kewa 'jaw', Lit. žiaunos 'jaw'. See s.v. haṃjvāme (from gyeu-). Pali guṇa-, Suśruta ghuṇa-, Vedic ŚB ghúṇi- 'worm-eaten', Panjābī ghuṇ, Hindī ghun 'wood-worm, weevil, wood chewed by the worm'. O.Indian aspirate is then secondary. Sogd. Bud. γwnt'kh 'tarantula' may contain the same gun-.

guthalaka 'quivering part', III 102·54 aysamū ṣṭau kauma paimaiṣja guthalaka 'the mind in love (BS kāma-) touches (pati-marśde*) the quivering parts (?)'. Possibly from gvanθ-:gunθ- 'to quiver', in gvīth- 'to quiver'. See also III 104·48 gvathaṃna guchą 'escapes from the quivering'. Forms like nuvanth-, nvīth- 'to change'. For 'quiver', note GrBD 105·7 kēr drafšēt (with Balōčī drafšant = larzant).

ggṵna 'ear', inst. sing., III 7, 14v2–3 vasvena ggṵna 'with pure ear' see gguṿa- 'ear'.

ggūna- 'colour', SuvP. 69r3 arīmajsa vīrūlya vistārya-gūna, biśūṇya-padya śāvä byūsā-gūna 'undefiled berylline vast colours, of every kind, dark, with shining colours', BS vaiḍūrya-nirmala-viśāla-vicitra-varṇais tāmrāruṇai rajata-sphāṭika-lohitāngaṃ, whence ggūna- = BS varṇa-; SuvP. 68v2 ysara-gūna 'of golden colour', BS suvarṇa-varṇa-; K 142·1042 ysarra-gūnä, Tib. gser-gyi kha-dog-čan 'having the colour of gold'. As second component also Z 20·36 āṣṣeiṇa-ggūna puva 'of grey colour, rotted'; III 124·77 ysarūna-, BS harita-; V 342, 84v4 ttarūṇe 'of madder colour', BS G 37, 79a6 maṃjiṣṭhā-. . .varṇa-; Sid. 145v3 ttarūna-, BS tāmra-. Three forms in III 41·31 lākṣä-gūna (with gauṇe below), =III 46·30 lākṣa-gū, =III 37·14 lākṣūna 'of the colour of lac (BS lākṣā-)'. From gauna-*, Av. gaona-, Sogd. B γwnč 'colour', Zor.P. gōn, N.Pers. gōn, Pašto γūna 'colour of skin'. See also III 40·11 hvū (hugauna-*).

ggūna- 'hair', Z 2·44 ggūne pharu śśāre tcabrīye 'hairs, many, lie scattered'; Z 24·250 śśīyāñī ggūne 'his white hairs'. From gauna-*, Av. gaona-, Pašto γūna 'hair on the body', Parāčī gīnū 'single hair' (gaunaka-*), Sanglēčī γenōk, Yidγa γunia, plur. γunī 'hair', Waxī γanī, γēno 'goat's hair', Oss. D. γun, I. qūn 'hair', D. lägun, I. lägūn 'hairless' (fra-gauna-). Possibly gauna- beside O.Ind. guṇa- 'bow-string', as Balōčī jōγ 'yoke' beside O.Ind. yuga-, Av. yuga-* (written yuya-), with secondary retroflex -n-.

ggūnaa- 'mark, sign', Sid. 8r4 ttye hīvī gūnai 'its mark, symptom', Tib. dehi mčhan-ma; Sid. 122v5 harbiśāṃ gūnāṃ jsa haṃphve hame 'it is joined with all marks', Tib. mčhan-ma thams-čad dan ldan-pa; Sid. 125v4–5 harbiśāṃ gūnā jsa haphve 'possessing all marks', BS sarva-linga-anvita-, Tib. mčhan-ma thams-čad dan ldan-te; with negative, aggūnaa-, BS animitta- 'causeless'. From gaunaka-* to gauna-* 'colour'.

gunaḍa 'with marks', K 109·308 ṣa nairv(ā)ṇa hamaga gunaḍa ttatva ya 'that was the marked reality equal to nirvāṇa-'; K 108·305 agunai ttuśai anąusa, parallel to BS animitta-, śūnya-, apraṇihita-; Manj. 362 gūnaḍa byāvaje raṣṭa. From gauna-kṛta-*.

ggupha 2 sing. imperative 'speak against, abuse', III 9, 18r2 triadic, ma ma ttājsera ma ma ggupha ma ma ahamañā 'do not pass me over, do not abuse me, do not depise me (BS adhimanya-)'. From gaub(h)-:gub(h)-* > gauf-*: guf-, with -ph- kept, with -ph- like dapha 'is possible' in K 35·95 kuṣṭi byaude dapha 'where it is possible to get it', =K 27·149 kuṣṭa byahā 'where you may get it' (conjunctive = potential), from dab(h)- to Av. dab-, Got. ga-daban 'happen, befit'. From base gaubh-, O.Pers. gaubataiy 'speaks of himself', Zor.P. gōβ-, guftan, N.Pers. gōy-, guftan, Sogd. Bud. γwβ- 'to praise', Man. participle, γwβṭ-, γwβṭyy xčy 'is praised', pčγwβṭ- 'praise'. Armen. lw gov 'praise', govem, govest. For O.Ind. gobhila-, W. Wüst, BSOAS 8, 1935–7, 835–73. For the pejorative sense in gguph-, note both meanings in O.Ind. katthati 'to praise, abuse', and krośati 'cry out', ākrośati 'to abuse'; and below pajarūṇa- 'abuse' to gar- 'to greet, praise'. IE Pok. omitted. See also Tumšuq Saka guphi (I 12, not zuphi), cited in Languages of the Saka 154.

gubrrīs- 'to scatter', III 38·38 gūbrrīsīda dīṣą vī paskyāṣṭą hāysa tsīda 'they scatter in all directions, back they travel afar'. From vi- with balj-, see tcabalj-, 'to scatter'.

gūma-ttīrai 'being of Gūmattīra-, Tib. hgum-tir', town in Khotan region, V 242·5 gūmattīrai tsue 'the man of Gumattīra went'; adjective V 222·20·4 gumattīrya bisaṃja 'in the bhikṣu-saṃgha community of Gūmattīra'. See Goma-sala-ganda, s.v. gaṇḍye. Probably an Iranian name.

ggumal- 'smear, anoint', Sid. 122r1 gūmalyāñā 'to be besmeared', Tib. bskus-te; Z 21·11 ggūne ggumälste naṣpuṣte ṣkaunde käḍe 'the hairs besmeared, arranged, greatly piled up'; transferred meaning, II 44·41–2 cvai cimūḍvā gūmaistāṃdūṃ 'what we preserved among the Cimuḍas'. Present -l-, -ly- from -rd-, beside participle ggumāta- 'measured, exact', fem. ggumācā-, V 164, 21113 hajū ggumātā sāñūvā 'wise, trained, full of plans'; JS 11v3 kuśalai yai daśtā gumā 'you were good, skilled, trained', parallel to BS upāya-; JS 20r1 vījā yai daśtā gūmā 'you were the skilled trained physician' (BS vaidya-); II 81·52–3 pakyairma daśta u gumā 'outstanding, skilled and trained'; Manj. 283 khu çāyara daśta gūmā 'like skilled trained magician'; K 51·6·10 byātarrji daśtā gūmā 'skilled trained memory'; fem. V 87, 23r1 ttū mirāhīnai hārā dye ggumācai yuḍe si 'he saw that pearly necklace, he felt sure that. . .'; Z 2·65 tvī hīvyo bvāmata balysa ggumāce yande 'he, Buddha, makes that his own knowledge sure'. From vi-māta- 'measured in details', beside pamāta- 'measured', Av. bišiš.framāta- 'skilled in medicine'. IE Pok. 703–4 mē-, O.Ind. māti, mitá-; Av. mā-, māta-, mita-, mīta-, Greek μέτρον, Lat. mētior, mēnsus, O.Engl. mād 'measure'. With negative, see agumāta-, N 148·31 (lost fragment to V 101, 102b2), kye vara agumāta.

-lst- from either -ršt- or -rst-. From base mard- and marz-, see cognates s.v. malys-. Also gumesta-.

ggumai 'at will', Z 3·61 ggumai barīndā buśśānā grauṇe pharu 'at will they carry away scented garlands'; Z 20·31 ggumai barīndi banhya vāte rrūva mura 'at will the birds carry away the intestines to the trees'; K 23·68–9 gumai hījsara dava 'at will the wild beasts in their haunt', parallel to III 96·6 mūrą hayarīda nva kṣama āṣaijvā 'the birds sport at will in the pools'. Parallel in Sogd. Bud. ryzy'n 'at will', rzy'n, and O.Ind. svecchayā, svacchandaḥ. From vi-māya- 'to experience with pleasure', M.Parth.T. wm'dn 'to endure', M.Pers.T. gwm'y-, gwm'yd 'endure', Sogd. wm't 'he was', to Av. mayā-, māyā-, 'good state', humaya- 'prosperous', N.Pers. humāyūn 'auspicious'. The form in -ai is like hārṣṭai, härṣṭāya 'in reality' from hära-štaya-*. Parallel also in Av. Vid. 2·11 (of cattle) hvąm anu uštīm zaošəm-ča 'according to their own will and pleasure'.

ggumerāñāte 'presses', Z 5·11 ttāna ggumerāñāte klaiśīno beį 'thereby it (the Buddha's teaching) crushes the poison of kleśā-affliction'. From vi-māraya-*, formed like berāña- 'to make to rain', to base mar- 'crush, press'. See also hamārgyā- 'alleviation', hamurdā 'it crushes'. For pressure as 'touch', note Av. Yašt 14·29 āpō urvaēsəm mārayeite '(the kara- fish) feels the turning of the water', Zor.P. mārtan. Oss. D. lämarun, I. lämaryn, lämärst 'to press out', DI. don-marän 'weir' ('holding back the water'); D. yezämarä, I. qizämar 'torture'. Iranian mar- may derive from IE either Pok. 716 mel- 'to crush', or Pok. 735–6 mer- 'to rub away'; a third mar- is in ṣumar- 'to count', below.

gumesta- 'rubbed', for ggumālsta-, present gumal- 'besmear', V 34, 14b1 *khara gumesta paṃ⟨jsa?⟩||| '*five groomed asses'; ibid. 4 khara ṣį nāsti 'he takes the asses'; 1 plur. gūmaistāmdūṃ 'we preserved', s.v. ggumal-.

ggūysna- 'stag, deer', V 142, 13r4 plur. ggūys⟨n⟩a, BS G 36, 5b6 mṛgāḥ, Tib. ri-dvags; JS 16r1 dyadic rurä guysnä 'the Ruru stag'; III 135, 3r1 gūysna rūna 'in stag form' (with picture of a stag); Z 13·77 samu naḍe dastyau ggūysnä suprāśśä rrundi nijsaṣṭe 'the man just showed the stag in his hands to the king Suprāśśa'. For Z 2·12 ggūgno kaṅgo 'deer skin' parallel to BS ajina-, read ggūśno with -ś- (ggūysnya-). From gavazna-, Av. gavasna-, Sogd. γ'wzn, plur. γ'wzn'n, Zor.P. gw'zn, N.Pers. gavazn, Oss. D. gäüanz, plur. gäüänztä, I. qüazn, quaz, qäüüaz. Possibly named from the colour gau-:gu- 'reddish yellow', see s.v. gvā-, as O.Ind. hariṇī 'antelope', and eta-, enī 'kind of antelope'; not to gau- 'bovine'.

gūysma 'alternative(?)', Sid. 100r3 khu hvaṃḍye jsahera ttauda sāḍa gūysma bāta hame 'when in a man's belly there arises hot (and) cold wind alternating'. Possibly from ava-auz-* 'to change', to Oss. D. uozun, ozun, I. ūzyn, ūzt 'to swing, rock, stagger'; uzgä-uzgä zyory 'he swims swingingly'; from auz-, a variant to vaz- 'to move', see bays-.

gūra- 'grapes', Sid. 12r2 gūra, BS mṛdvīkā, Tib. rgun; I 171, 87v5 and I 153, 63v5 hauṣka gūra 'dry grapes', BS drākṣā. Compound I 153, 63v5 gūrūtca 'water of grapes'. Adjective III 41·29 ysarūṃ gūrāṇai mau 'red (or yellow) grape wine'. From angaura-*, Zor.P., N.Pers. angūr. Suγnī angūrδ, Yidγa agidro, Munjānī aglero; Yidγa γīro 'cluster of grapes'.

gūrakä 'uvula, part of mouth', Sid. 156v1 gūrakä, Tib. lčehu čhun-ba in gūrakä hasvāme hīvī āchai 'the disease of swelling of the uvula', BS gala-śuṇḍikā (śuṇḍaka- 'swelling of uvula'). See gūra- 'grape'.

gūraphusta- 'abundant' from 'thickened, thick', as baysga- 'thick, many', and Armen. bazoum 'thick, much, numerous'; JS 2r1 gūraphusta vyaṃjana ṣai vṛttā anvaśta 'the figurative expressions abundant, the metre itself difficult' (BS vyanjana-, vṛtti-). From vi-frusta-* 'thickened, inspissated', to base frau-d-; with traject -r-, as in harthīštā < fra-θraxšati*, and nṛhīya- < ni-θraxta-, nṛhīśa-* ni-θraxšaya-*. Hence guphrusta-, gūrphusta-, to gūraphusta-; contrast θrau-d- in harahusta- 'thrust away' fra-θrusta-* to IE Pok. 1095–6 treud-. See also phrrūmä 'inspissated milk', BS kilāṭa- from base frau- or frau-d-. To be set beside the base frau-š- 'to thicken' in two uses, 1. culinary, N.Pers. farōšah, āfrōšah, Armen. lw hroušak, xroušuk, Talmud Aram. 'brwšk 'a sweetmeat made of flour, butter and honey or sugar'; 2. of milk, N.Pers. *furšah, firšah, haraš, huršah 'thick milk, biestings', Zēbakī filla < frəla*, Sarīkolī raščˇ; M.Pers.T. prwšg 'thickening stuff' (G. Morgenstierne NTS 5, 1932, 55; W. B. Henning, BSOS 9, 1937, 86; BSOAS 11, 1946, 719). Possibly to IE Pok. 802 pel- of 'flour, dust, chaff', Greek πόλτος 'milk pap', Lat. pult-, nom. sing. puls 'thick pap of flour', pulmentum 'condiment, sauce', puluis 'dust', O.Ind. palāva- 'chaff'.

ggūrāsa- 'quarrel, dispute', V 115, 64v3 ggūrāsa haṃdrūṣa yaule hämāre 'disputes, quarrels, tricks occur', BS vivādāḥ kalahāḥ śāṭhyā bhavanti; V 341, 80v1 gūrāsu gūrāśāre 'they dispute a dispute', BS vivadataḥ; V 124, 42a3 gūrāsa pharā⟨ka⟩ 'many disputes'. From either (1) vi-rās-, vi-rās(a)ya-, if ggū-, gū- anticipates later gū- for older ggu-, with rās- 'make noise', beside rāz- (see rrāys-) with variant ǩ and ǧ, as in IE Pok. 787 paǩ-, paǧ-; 795 peiǩ, peiǧ-; 857 reǩ-, reǧ-; 984 speǩ, speǧ-; or (2) from ava-vrā-s-, ava-vrās(a)ya-, through gaurās-* to ggūrās-, hence base var-:vr- 'to assert, make oath', with -ā- (type tar-, tr-ā-), rendering more closely BS vad- 'to speak', as Av. urvāta- 'command', Greek ῥᾱ́τρᾱ 'dictum, treaty' (IE Pok. 1162). The -s- suffixed to a base in -ā- is found also in stāta- 'wearied', present stās-; tsāta- 'rich', present tsās-* in tsāṣṭa- 'quiet', to base čyā- (IE Pok. 638 kᵘiē-), and in M.Path.T. *wygr'd vi-grāta- 'awakened', present *wygr's- vi-grās-. Note also that -s- palatalized to -ś- is frequently found in older texts as a variant to -śś-, not indicating -ż-, as araṃdīśśāmata, araṃdīśāmata, BS upekṣā; N 158·4–5 śo, śśo 'one'; and III 134b5 hīśäḍostä 'friendship', V 98, 1r4 hīśśiḍauśtīnai aysmū 'kindly mind', BS maitra-citta-, and Z 5·2 hīśśäḍai.

gurmä 'a kind of pea', Sid. 16v1, BS kalāya-, Tib. če sran (ed. Pekin). From base gau-:gu-, gur- 'round', IE Pok. 393–8 Greek γῡρός 'round' of a round 'pea', form like Oss. D. kurmä, kurm, I. kūrm 'blind' beside Zor.P. kōr.

gurmāña- 'to be broken(?)', III 87·109 īraṃde gurmāñä, nauka ārāñä 'the castor-oil plant is to be broken, it is to be ground fine'. From vi-ram-*, so far isolated in Iranian, to base IE Pok. 674 lem- 'to break', O.Slav. lomljǫ, lomiti 'to break', Russ. lom 'break', Lit. limti 'break under a load', O.Sax. lam, O.Norse lami 'lame', Celtic Mid.Ir. lem 'faded, foolish, impotent'. Note also III 87·120 gūrve īraṃde 'crushed castor plant'.

guryā 'of the reservoir', Sid. 20r1 guryā utca 'reservoir water', BS cauḍya- from cūḍa- 'small well', Tib. čhu-mig-gi čhu 'well water'. From either (1) vi-riya-* to base rai-: ri- 'to flow' (IE Pok. 330–1), see s.v. rrīma-; or (2) gaβra- 'hole', with suffix -ya-, Zor.P. gaβr, gōr, N.Pers. gōr 'hole, tomb', see above s.v. ggaṃtsa- 'hole'.

gūrva- 'broken(?)', III 89·174 gūrvyau haṣänyau jsä 'from broken fragments'; and III 87·120 gūrve īraṃde 'broken castor oil plant'. From vi-ruxta-* to base raug-, in narūj-, narva- 'break', IE Pok. 686 leug- 'break', Av. uruxti- 'break', Oss. D. lux, I. lyg 'cut off; a piece'; O.Ind. rujáti, rugṇá- 'break'. O.Engl. to-lūcan 'destroy'; and leuĝ-, Lit. laužiu, laužti 'to break'.

gūrva 'grains', Sid. 9v2 kavīña gūśta u rīysva gūrva u rruṃ u biśī haṃtsa haṃbirstä ṣṭāna ni hverai 'flesh of fish and rice grains and oil and curds is not to be eaten together', BS naᴗaśnīyād ekato mīna-dhānān sarpiṣy udaśvitāṃ, Tib. ña-śa dan, yos dan, mar dan, dar-ba rnams lhan-čig mi bzah (yos 'slightly roasted rice'); Sid. 10gr1 rrīysva gurva haṃtse haṃbrīhāñä 'to be mixed with rice grains', Tib. hbras yos rnams lhan-čig-tu sbyar-ba dan; Sid. 123v3 rrīysva gūrvāṃ hīya caṃya 'powder of rice grains', Tib. hbras brnos-pahi phye-ma 'flour of parched rice'; III 90·186 āḍa gūrva 'grains of flour'. The Tibetan text clearly alludes to parching. But gūrva, BS dhānā- seem to refer only to 'grains'. See ggurvīca for cognates.

ggurvīca 'small grains', V 184, 1v5 kho jseindama ggurvīca 'like finest grains'; V 184, 1v6 kho jseiṇa gurvīca 'like fine grains'; with gru-, V 68, 8r4 kho ggaṃggä nätāyä gruīcyau ⟨syata⟩ 'like sand from the grains of Gangā river'; V 74, 42r4 kho nuevǫ ggaṃgguvǫ nītāvuǫ grīcyo syata, BS G 37, 32a5 navati-gaṃgā-nadī-bālikā-samāni 'like sand from grains in ninety Gangā rivers'; V 245, 7b1 gaga nāyą grīce sye jsa hamaga 'equal to sand from grains in Gangā river', BS gangā-nadī-vālukā-upamānaṃ; Bcd 44r3–4 parimaṇava grīca 'atoms grains', BS rajas- 'dust'; V 314, 3b2 grūcyau syatā; V 43, 2b1 gruīcau sye myāñanda; K 103·96–7 khu gaṃgi nāya gruīcyau sya; V 252·829–30 khu gaṃgä nyāya gruīcyau sya. From either 1. gurva- 'broken' to vi-ruxta-*, or 2. base grau- 'rub to pieces', with grauśę 'groats' (Sid. 134v2), BS śaktu-. IE Pok. 460–2 ghreu-, Greek χρεύω 'scratch', O.Sax. griot 'sand', O.Norse grautr 'groats' from base ghreu-d-; O.Engl. grūt 'coarse flour', Lit. graužas 'gravel'. See gruta-.

gurṣṭa- 'called', see grūs-; 3 sing. present gurśte.

ggūla 'clay', Manj. 137 cakala gaysa gītsarū gūla 'wood, reeds, gypsum and (-ū) clay-clods', parallel to Manj. 20 cakala gaysa kīḍā auysaina 'wood, reeds, withies, clay', Pali Majjhima-nikāya I 190·15–9 kaṭṭhaṃ...vallīṃ... tiṇaṃ...mattikaṃ ca paṭicca 'with wood, withies, grass, clay'; Z 6·5 kho ju ggūli o vā ggeiha 'like clay or wood'; Z 19·56 kho ju rraysä ggūla katsäre 'like empty clay, mud lumps'; Z 22·116 nä nä katsirä saṃgga ggūla byori 'there are not found lumps of mud, stones, clods of clay'. From gṛḍā-*, Zor.P., N.Pers. gil, gir, like mūla 'clay' from mṛdā-*.

gūla- 'ball', in khuysmūlaa- 'bubble', from two forms gaula-* and gauda-*, Oss. D. yolä, I. qul, Pašto star-yalai 'eye-ball', N.Pers. gōl, gōlah 'ball', Yidγa γūlak 'pellet-bow'; Zor.P. gōδ, plur. γōδān ī čašm 'eye-balls', N.Pers. gōy 'ball'. IE Pok. 393–8 geu- 'bend, be round', O.Ind. gola-, golā, Greek γυλιός 'long pocket', γύαλον 'hollow, valley', O.Engl. cēol, O.Norse kjöll 'round boat'. See also gūlyā- 'pill'.

candarno 'military captain', acc. sing. to candarnaa-, with -o- as Z 24·256 māru ggīho nāte 'he took the Māra-demon as assistant', to ggīhaa-; III 127r1 ttu balysūñavūysa āysda yanāre 'they protect that bodhisattva'. Hence Z 24·378 panä hvai hāde rro candarno grūśtä 'every man however calls upon him, the captain'. Here hvai from hvę and yi, the pronoun anticipating the noun, as in III 75·227 hamya-v-ī drūnā rrāmä 'it became health for him, for Rāma'; and K 32·38 samai āṣṭaṃdi brraima laudrai pana 'but she began to weep before him, the hunter'. KT 6·80–1 derivation from kan- 'to sound' is to be rejected. The case is more complex. This military title candarnaa- 'captain of a troop' is clearly from older čara-daranaka- 'one who holds, controls a troop', wherein -r-. . .-r- has been replaced by -n-. . .-r- in candarnaa-, as in ysaṃgara- 'old' from zara-kara- to zar- 'be old', and maṃgāra-, oblique maṃgere 'old' from mara-kāra- to mar-, marś- 'to be exhausted'. The Lat. cancro-, nom. sing. cancer 'crab' is of the same type, compared with Zor.P. karčang, Greek κάρκινος, O.Ind. karkaṭa-. In čara- 'troop' there lies the cognate of Av. čarya- 'warrior', glossed by Zor.P. kārēčārīk 'warrior', in Aogəmadaēča 84 narō čiryō taxmō 'hero, warrior bold'; and in the loan-word Uigur Turkish čärik, Qipčaq čäri 'troop, army', whence Mongol čärig 'army', as loan-word also in N.Pers. čarīk (see V. Minorsky, Iranica 280, verse 5). The variation k- and č- is normal in verbal forms (as Av. kar- and čar- 'to do'), but occurs also in nouns, as Av. kahrkāsa-, Zor.P. karkās, N.Pers. kargas, but Sogd. črks, Oss. DI cärgäs 'vulture'; and Av. kaēta-, Sogd. čytk. The base kar- 'to fight', gave O.Pers. kāra- 'army, people', Zor.P. kārīk 'warrior', kārēčār 'battlefield', kāravān 'travelling troop, caravan', pathār 'fighting', Armen. lw karavan, payk'ar, p'ayk'arim, payk'arim, N.Pers. kār 'fighting', kārzār 'battlefield', paigār 'conflict', M.Pers.T. k'rč'r, k'ryč'r, q'ryč'r, M. Parth.T. k'rw'n; Greek has preserved κάρβακες 'mercenary troops', with Zor.P. kāradāk 'traveller'; M.Pers.T. q'rd'g, for Greek ξένος 'stranger'. The loc. sing. O.Ind. RV 3·49·3 kāré is rendered 'in battles' (translation K. Geldner; Sāyana's gloss yajña- 'sacrifice') in a hymn to Indra.

The non-palatalized kara- occurs in the Surkh Kotal inscription καρα-λραγγα-, corresponding to the contemporary Byzantine Greek of Prokopios, Persian Wars I 5·4 χαναράγγης explained rightly by στρατηγός 'troop-leader'. The translation by V. Minorsky. The older preface of the Shāh-nāma, p. 163, by 'Lord of the (Eastern) March' is etymology by a N.Pers., not even a Saka, word kanār 'edge'. The Arabic writers used kn'rk, kn'ry, kn'r', and N.Persian has kanārang (as in the older preface to the Šāh-nāmah and in the poem Vēs u Rāmēn). There is the adjective in Zor.P. (GrBd 125·1–2) kanārangakān dēh 'the district of the Kanārang'.

This kara-, kāra- belongs with Indo-European (Pok. 615–6) koro-, Lit. kāras 'war', kārias 'army', Got. harjis, O.Engl. here 'army'. See earlier Mélanges E. Benveniste, 1974, 19–20.

The second component -daranaka-, Khotan Saka -darnaa-, Surkh Kotal dranga-, is from the base dar- 'to hold', as in Saka bīsa-dāraa- 'house-holder, BS gṛhastha-', present stem der- < dāraya-, Gilgit Manuscript names with first component lera-, and with preverbs Saka padār-, haṃdār-. The same use occurs in N.Pers. sipah-dār 'captain of a troop'.

This candarnaa- is also of importance for the title of Kaniṣka and of the king of Fu-nan (Cambodia). As Khotan Saka handarna 'inside, within' gave later haṃdaṃna, haṃdana, hadana, one would expect later caṃdana(a)- 'captain'. This title occurs before the name of Kaniṣka in Chinese spelling čandan, written K 965·3, 967·3 ṭṣan-t'an, older tśiän-d'án, and K 1194·1, 967·3 ṭṣən-t'an, older tśien-d'án (see S. Lévi, JA 1936, 1·80).

The Greek form of the title occurs as a name on the coin ΣΑΝΔΑΝΟΥ ΒΑΓΟ 'Sandanēs the god (=king)', see V. A. Livšic, Karatepe 2·71, to which the Brāhmī legend offers candra-deva. In the Periplous of the Red Sea there is the Saka king Σανδάνης of Ariakē, capital Soppara (Sūrpāraka). In the Sanskrit drama Mṛc-chakaṭika the three policemen are called Candana- or Canadanaka-, Śakāra, and Āryaka-.

The replacement of candarnaa- probably occurred also in Buddhist texts. In the Kaniṣka tale in KT II 107 the BS text begins with 156 cadra kaṇaiskā and is then rendered in Khotan Saka 160 cadrra käṇaiska. In Khotan Saka -dr- can represent either BS -ndr- or -ṇḍ- so that there is ambiguity here. But it was probably candra- since in the Tibetan translation of the Kanika-lekhā Kaniṣka is referred to by the word zla-ba 'moon', evidently translating BS candra-. All this has long been known, see JRAS 1942, 16 ff., 1949, 2 ff., BSOAS 13, 1951, 926 ff. Note that here the Khotan Saka word cadana- 'shining' is not concerned. For čandra-, note from Alalakh the name Čandra-myazda- (see E. Benveniste, Hittite et indo-européen 9).

It is curious that the other word BS candana- 'sandalwood' occurs in Uigur Turkish as čantra, see K. Röhrborn, Berliner Turfan-Texte 2·28, showing the same treatment of čandana-*.

The reinterpretation of the title čandana as BS candra- 'moon', so as to make sense by a familiar word in Buddhist Sanskrit is like that of Patanjali (Mahābhāṣya I 406, commentary to Pāṇini 2·1·69) śāka-bhojī pārthivaḥ śāka-pārthivaḥ 'the Saka king is so called as "one who enjoys vegetables" (śāka-)', which is replaced in the Siddhānta-kaumudī by 'the king holding the Saka era dear'.

It is possible that the coin and the Buddhist Sanskrit author wished to associate Candra-deva and Kaniṣka with the mythic world of the Candra-vaṃśa or the Candra-garbha. But it has nothing to teach about the title candarnaa- or čandan.

A later Kaniṣka name has been found on a bulla clay sealing MAYO KANHPKO, see V. A. Livšic, Karatepe 2·63; A. D. H. Bivar, Numismatic Chronicle 15, 1955, 205; J. Brough, Henning Memorial Volume 81–8. Here the title MAYO is evidently connected with the Saka royal name MAYOY 'of Maua', Kharoṣṭhī moga-, mo'a-, like Kroraina moġaya-, West Iranian Μαυάκης, to which a meaning 'benefactor' or 'protector' could be ascribed, to an Iranian base mau-, as in Greek ἀμύνω 'help, protect', with thought of the Greek title εὐεργέτης 'benefactor'. Only faith in a Buddhist Sanskrit etymology and a limited knowledge of the largely lost Saka vocabulary could have suggested an explanation by MAO 'moon' of the Kušān coins.

ca-sa '400', II 24·23·4 ca-sa cạhausä '440', see tcahora 'four'.

-casta- see JS 36r4 ācastai 'you pleased', and Z 24·434 pacaste 'confesses'.

castāña 'to be taken, drunk(?)', present -t-, II 39·15 ṣṭi karavā castāña 'this is to be taken in the morning'. From denominative casta-, from older čalsta-*, as uysmalsta-, uysmesta- 'rubbed', to base čal-š-* in Armen. lw čašak 'bowl', O.Ind. caṣaka- 'cup', see also cāśa 'cup'. IE Pok. 550–1 kel- with -k̂- and -k- 'cup'. For -ls- > -š-, see T. Burrow, BSOAS 35, 1972, 544. If the 'cup' is the 'drinking vessel', as O.Ind. pātra-, Lat. pōculum, then Sogd. čš- 'to drink' is the verbal base.

cạhạusä 'forty', II 34·4·5 śau-cạhạusä '41'. See tcahora 'four'.

cā 'whither', K 38·135–6 ttai hvẹ si cā bīri tvā utci amai 'he said to her, Where are you carrying the water, old woman?', =K 29·198 brraṣṭe sa māmā kūṣṭa ṣṭā bīra ṣạ utca 'he asked, Where is the water being carried, old woman?'; K 31·26 hvaṇḍä cā tsvāṃda ḳṣīrā 'where have the men gone to a country?', =K 23·70 hvaṇḍa tcā tsaida kṣ(ī)ra; =K 15·120 hvaṇḍa cā ⟨tsvā⟩da kṣīra; with -ālsto, Z 22·263 vaysña nirvānä pṛhīyä cālsto trāmāre uysnora 'now nirvāṇa is opened where the beings enter'; Z 24·453 cālsto rre gyastu hālsto harbiśśä kṣīrä 'whither the king deva (gyastu = gyastä), thither the whole land', later cāṣṭa, K 29·190–1 brraṣṭa ysīrasta manahaura tta dyaude nai cāṣṭa tsvā 'he asked, Have you seen my heart-beloved Manoharā where she has gone?'. Directional derivative from ca- 'what', as ttā, ttāṣṭa, vā, vālsto, vāṣṭa, hā, hālsto, hāṣṭa, with -ā from -āk.

cāṃkaliña 'of goat', adjective to caukala-, I 181, 100v3 cāṃkaliña bīysma 'goat's urine', BS basta-mūtra-, see caukala-.

cāṃṇä 'plant name', Sid. 13r2 mauṣkakä bahyä ṣṭi cu cāṃṇä, BS muṣkaka-, Tib. mus-ska; muṣkaka- = ghaṇṭā-pāṭali- 'bignonia suaveolens'. From čāšna-, čušna-, uncertain. The bignonia is called also trumpet flower. With -kya- see cāṃṇakya. For bignonia see also cirutta-.

cāṃṇakavi 'cinnamon leaf', I 185, 105v1 cāṃṇakavi, tvacä, BS tvaca 'cinnamon leaf'; I 193, 113v5 cāṃṇakavi, BS dala- 'cinnamon leaf'. Uncertain connexion, possibly from čāšna-* with suffixes.

cāṃṇakya 'plant name', III 38·37 cāṃṇakya, =III 47·56 cauṇakya, =III 35·38 caurakya, III 38·37 hagrīsīdä cāṃṇakya bauṇvakya spyakyakvāṣṭa 'they gather among the cāṃṇakya and bauṇakya flowers'. The cauraka- occurs in I 187, 107v1 ṣala cauraka nīlātpala, BS śaṭhī caurakam utpala; and I 187, 106v5 cāṃraka, from BS cauraka-, coraka- 'trigonella corniculata'. See for cāṃṇakya also cāṃṇä.

cāpaṇe 'garments(?)', III 37·16–7 khauysadā nūvarra baudāha brrīyūnä, sa khu jīśkya mauṇḍvā phastārra cāpaṇe 'moving the new delightful woven cloths, just as on the maiden's breasts the cāpaṇa-garments flutter', with variants III 44·46 cāpaṃnai, III 35·22 capane, III 46·34 cāpine. From kap- 'to enclose, cover with garments', see s.v. khapa, khai. With k-, note Zor.P. kāpēn, N.Pers. kābēn 'dowry', mainly of cloths, from kāpanya-*.

çāya- 'magic, sorcery', I 252, 1v3 çāyä marīci māñaṃḍ⟨ä⟩ 'like magic, mirage', BS māyā-marīci-kalpa-samaṃ; SuvO. 4v2–3 çāyyau dāruṇä nuṣṭhurā 'savage cruel with magic acts', BS kākhorda-dāruṇa-grahe; I 137, 45v5 çāyūṃ jsa pātca biśa naṣạmāri 'from them all the magic acts are quelled', BS khākhordāś ceva śāmyanti; Manj. 395 kīdeśạ sa ttrāmo khu çāyo çāyo bvāma khu karma 'the kleśa-afflictions are like magic, the magic is knowledge like karma-acts', =Z 9·18 klaiśa samu trāma kho māya māya samu trāma khu karma; inst. plur. K 136·870 au bẹna, o ceyyau jsa 'either with poison or by magic acts', Tib. ttūda- 'carried off, plundered', participle to tun-, II 112·66 u śūje hīya stūra biśä ttūdä yuḍāṃdä 'and they were able to carry off all one another's stūra-cattle'; IV 2·4 mānai hirä ttude 'he removed my goods'; IV 2·5 nai bve sä ttudä ä ni vaña-ṃ āspāta hiyaudäna 'I do not know whether he has carried it off or not. Now my refuge is with the lord'. See s.v. ttunda-, base tau-:tu- with -n-; IE Pok. 1032–4 (s)teu-.

ttūda 'reverence', K 72·27 ṣṣ cū biśa ttūda jsāvi 'he who goes with reverence to the caitya-shrine' (biśa, older loc. sing. balśa, to balsa- 'caitya, stūpa-'); ibid. 16–7 cū yı biśa ttauda jsāvä 'what one goes with reverence to the caitya-'; K 73·32 ṣe cū biśi tvada jsāvai 'he who goes with reverence to the caitya-', ibid. 38 cu biśa tvada jsāvi; ibid. 40 ṣi cū biśa tvada jsāvi. The three spellings ttuda, ttauda, tvada are from older tvaṃdanu 'to revere', tvaṃdanä, tvaṃdaṃ, tvanä.

ttuda 'hot', III 73·179 bīhī ttuda ṣta yūṣi 'the soup will be very hot'. See ttauda- 'heated, hot', to base ttav-. For -au-, -u- see also byūda-, byauda-.

ttūnä 'epithet of Chinese', II 127·36 ttūnä ciṃga, and II 127·28; II 127·41, either 'powerful, important Chinese' or 'the local Chinese'. For 'strong', see ttuṃna-; for 'local', adjective from the pronoun tta-.

ttunāṃ 'fat', III 40·24 ttunä aṃga 'fat limbs', from ttunaa-, see III 41·25 ttaunäkä ṣūña 'fat thighs', and Z 21·27 ttone of the dasta 'hands'. Base tau- 'to swell', See s.v. tv-.

ttūnaa-, ttunaa-, tvānaa- 'thy'; II 4·58–9 ttunai ysaira mūnai ysaira 'your heart, my heart'; II 49·11 ttūnä mārāpyara 'your parents'. See tvānaa-.

ttuṃna- 'strong, stout', Sid. 7r5 cu hova ṣte haṃdara ttuṃna u baka-hova pā īdä, u hadara gauda u hauva jsa haṃphva pā īdä 'what is strength, some are stout and with little power, and others are meager and possessed of power', =V 316·27 cu haute ṣte haṃdarä ttāṃna ū bakä, hauvä pā īṃdä, ū haṃdarä gauda ū hauta jsa haṃphva pā īṃdä, BS sthūlo 'tyalpa-balaḥ kaś cit kṛśaś ca balavān naraḥ, Tib. ñams-stobs ni la-la śa che-la, ñams-stobs chuṅ-ba yaṅ yod la-la śa skem-la ñams-stobs dan ldan-pa yod-pas-na; III 72·167–8 aśa . . . hūvathāta tcarṣva ttuṃna 'horses well-harnessed, handsome, strong'. See base tv-, tvāñ-.

ttuṃna 'porous stone (?)', II 85·21 śau pajūkä ttuṃna cīñaka 'one lid, a porous receptacle (?)'. From tau-:tu-, Lat. tōfus, tūfus 'porous stone, tufa' to Av. loc. plur. tūtuxśvā 'loam'. To IE Pok. 1080–2 teu- 'to swell'. For cīñaka- 'cover', base kan- 'to cover', see s.v. kaṅgā-; cīña- from čanya-*.

ttunda- 'removed, plundered', participle to ttun-, Z 22·235 jsatāndi śśūjätu satva śśūjtye ggūśto hvaḍāndä ttundāndä drūjo hvatāndä kūre dṛṣṭīyate nāndä 'the beings slew one another, they ate one another's flesh, they plundered, they told lies, they took up false opinions'. See above ttuda-. From tu-n- to base tau-:tu- 'to thrust, remove, plunder'. IE Pok. 1032–4 (s)teu- 'thrust, beat', only with increments. Oss. D. tonun, tund, I. tonyn, tynd 'tear away, up, pluck' (with -on- from -ūu-, not the more usual -ān-). See pattyaña (Manj. 116), if ya = u.

ttumalsta- 'swallowed', Z 13·83 tvī padī pattarra ttumalste ne ju handaru khāysu pajāṣṭä 'he swallowed the food in that way, he did not accept other food'. With ttrra-, ttra- in place of ttu-, JS 4r2 cu brrīyaustä hastä, pasve ayūllä ttraṃgste 'who was the amorous elphant, he swallowed the red-hot ball of metal (BS ayo-gola-)'; III 69·83–4 muṇḍa, ttralīnä hūña jsa rausta, murä rauṭe jsa ttramaste 'the bird swallowed greedily the lumps of tin reddened with blood'. The spelling ttra- for ttu- may be scribal variant form or possibly retain -r- from the base marz-. From ati-marz-* 'to rub through', and hence 'to swallow' (?). See malys-.

ttumäṣa 'large fields', V 389, 19v4–5 ku ye ttumäṣa byehāte balysāna ku karä ttīma ne jīye 'where one gets large fields of Buddhas where seed fails not at all', BS G 37, 14a7–14b1 buddha-kṣetre tu sukṣetre uptād bījā⟨n⟩ mahā-phalaṃ. Hence ttumäṣa may be rendering of sukṣetre kṣetre with ttu- for BS su-; note also Sid. 7v5 phara-purai 'having many sons' for BS su-praja-. After assuming ttu for plural pronoun ttä, and deciding against ttuma-miṣṣa-* 'seed fields' (as if from tuxma-), it is proposed to see in ttu- the word for 'great', equivalent to O.Ind. tuvi- (frequent as first component), which can be seen also in the Greek Θο- of the place-name Θογαρα, in Kan-ṭṣou, the home of the Gara people; in the Iranian name to-but for Tibet, that is, the Great Bod', Tib. Bod chen-po, and in the Chinese rendering of the name of Kābul by tu-mi, older tuo-miet (K 1187·23; 617·2), where mit is the Iranian miθa-* 'settlement'. Details elsewhere. See also miṣa 'field'. From tau-:tu- 'swell', Av. tavah- 'power', O.Pers. atāvayam 'I could', IE Pok. 1080–5 tēu-:tū- O.Ind. tavīti, tavás- 'power; powerful', tuvi- first component 'greatly, powerful'; Greek ταῦς·μέγας, πολύς, Lat. tōtus 'whole', Slav. Russ. týju, tytī 'become fat'. For variation 'great' and 'good' in ttumäṣa- =BS sukṣetra-, note the reverse in hudaha- 'good man' =BS mahā-puruṣa-; and the use of BS su- in Sumeru, Hindu Sanskrit Meru, and Pali sineru. Sid. 7v5 phara-purai 'having many sons' renders BS supraja- (above).

ttura 'goat', K 100·297 tcānai ttura būysai 'three kinds of goat'. From taura-* or tura-*, to Oss. D. dzäbo-dur, I. dzäbi-dyr with first component dzäbo-, dzäbī- from older jabaz-* to Oss. DI. dzäbäx 'excellent' (Inguš lw zuoq 'joy' =Ingušo-čečensko-russkij slovar' 80 zokx, Čečen zovkx (kx=q') 'felicity, amusement'), hence the 'noble' mountain goat (like the use of German edel-); the same base gab- 'excellent' perhaps also in the name N.Pers. gabr, plural gabragān for the Zarduštī followers of Zoroaster, if the name was self-given. Possibly IE gab- beside ĝab- 'to appear', hence 'be conspicuous', with meaning as IE Pok. 587–8 (s)keu- 'to observe', Got. skauns 'beautiful', O.Sax. skōni 'shining, beautiful', and Av. fraša- 'conspicuous', the compound frašagar glossed by Parsi-Persian ẓāhir. IE Pok. 1083 to base tēu- 'swell', Greek ταῦρος 'steer', Lat. taurus, O.Pruss. tauris 'bison', Lit. taũras 'bison', O.Slav. turŭ 'aurochs'. With s-, Got. stiur, Av. staora-, see s.v. stūra-.

ttūra 'cheese(?)', K 100·295 (obscure text) khāysa ttaujai u ttūra phalau śau 'food sour-stuff and cheese, one dish (?)'. From tau-:tu- 'to be sour', see cognates s.v. ttavaṃdya; the same tau- in ttaujai.

tturä 'tightly (?)', III 70·125 pūmye-v-ai tcịmaña tturä 'her eyes were tightly closed (?)'. Possibly tura-* 'strong', base teu-, see ttuṃna-. From taura-* or tura-*.

tturra- 'mouth', V 342, 84v2–3 ttu scätä gyastänu gyastä balysä tturrāna haṣṭātä ysāre ḅāyä narande 'at that time from the mouth of the deva of devas Buddha eighty thousand rays issued', BS G 37, 79a4–5 atha tāvad eva tasmin samaye bhagavato mukha-dvārāc catur-aśīti raśmi-śata-sahasrāṇi niścaranti sma; Sid. 156r2 ttora, Tib. kha, Sid. 129r2 ttaurą, Tib. kha; V 250–1, 80r–2 ysaṃthvā-t-ī tturrna vasva ūpalā spye hīya busä narāme 'in his births from the mouth issues the scent of a pure lotus blossom'; Manj. 69 tturä; III 73, 178 and 193 śau tturä 'one mouthful', Z 20·57 turrrna (tturrna with suprascript -r-); suffix -ka-, JS 101r1 viysāṃ māñaṃdä tturrka 'mouth like lotuses', II 75·60 tturkä viysä 'lotus mouth'; III 108·2 tturka vīysañä 'on the lotus mouth'; adjective II 104·71 ttūrīnai vīysa 'lotus being the face' (identifying suffix -īnaa-); suffix -aka-, III 48·66 ttūrakä harāśaḍai vaña śaulą auṣṭakye 'protruding the mouth, now sucks the lips'; compounds, JS 17r1 sujsaṃdä-ttura nāta 'nāga-snakes with burning mouths'; Sid. 103r2–3 ssa-tturai viraṃ 'a hundred-mouthed wound', BS śata-pāṇaka-, Tib. rma-kha brgya-pa śes-bya-ste. From base tar- 'rub, bore through', tur- from tarų-, whence tur-na-* tturra- 'hole, mouth', IE Pok. 1071–7 ter- 'rub away, bore through', Greek τείρω 'rub', τερέω 'bore', τόρμος 'hole'; teru-, Greek τρῦμα, τρῦμη 'hole', τρώω 'to bore'. For 'hole' and 'mouth', as Armen. berem 'bore', beran, -oc' 'mouth', in IE Pok. 133–5 bher- 'to cut, split, bore'; Lit burnà 'mouth', Lat. foro, forāre 'to bore', forāmen 'hole'.

tturakä 'covering', III 81·168 kapäḷakä, hūlaihä: hīvī tturakä hame 'the Turkish qapyaq "cover, quiver", is the cover of the hūlaihä:'. See BSOAS 23, 1960, 33 for base tau-: tu- 'to cover', O.Ind. tūṇa-, tūṇi 'quiver', O.Slav. tulŭ 'quiver', Oss. D. äftaun 'to cover', äftaugä 'horse-rug'. Not as in IE Pok. 1102 tų̄- 'reed'. For the 'quiver' as a 'cover', IE Pok. 554 kel- Mid. HG hulft, holfte to Greek καλύπτω 'conceal'.

ttralapha- 'rapacious (?)', III 72·157–8 birgāṃ ttralaphāṃ ttyāṃ hīvī nāya maysairkā 'of those ravenous wolves the noise was great'. Base laf- from lab(h)-, IE Pok. 652 labh- 'to take', O.Ind. lábhate, rábhate, lámbhate 'to seize', Greek λάφυρον 'booty', -λαφης 'seizing', Lit. lóbti, lobstù 'become rich'. The ttra- as in ttrameṣte from ttu-, older ati-.

ttralo, ttralau 'tin', Sid. 13v2 ttralo u šā, hīśaṃ, daujsä, ysīrra ājsa 'tin and copper, iron, lead, gold, silver', BS trapus tāmram ayaḥ sīsaṃ hema-rūpyaṃ, Tib. ćhon-mo-ste dan, zans dan, lčags dan, ra-ñe dan, gser dan, dnul dan; III 71·151 ca burä hīra īde garkha, saṃgä hīśaṃ ttralau šā 'whatever things are heavy, stone, iron, tin, copper'; adjective, III 69·83–4 muṇḍa, ttralīnā hūña jsa rausta 'a lump of tin reddened with blood'. The form tralo assures the reading of ttralau from tralāva-, beside tralaka- in the adjective ttralīnaa- (as rraysāva-, beside raysaa- 'empty'). The tralo 'tin' is thought of as one of the heavy things (garkha hīra), so that the name would hardly seem to suggest 'light, not heavy metal'. The older Khotan Saka name is not known so that trala-* may be either direct tra-la- or from trava-la-*. O.Ind. trápu-, trápus- is from trap-. West Iranian Zor.P. 'lčyč, arčič*, Armen. lw arčič, N.Pers. arzīz 'tin' (distinguished by the epithet 'white' from 'black' arzīz 'lead') is named from base ark- 'shine' as the bright metal 'tin'. Oss. DI. ärγäu 'lead', I. ärγon 'tin (?)', from base arg-. Hence the base of tralo is (s)tar- 'to shine', beside (s)trap-. in Oss. D. äst'älfä, I. st'älf, st'älfän 'spark', beside D. st'alu, I. st'aly 'star', and mythic D. sajnäg äst'alu = I. sau st'älf 'dark mark'; I. st'älf xalas 'piebald (horse)' with xalas, D. xalasä 'grey (horse)'; in a general meaning, without reference to the flash of light, Oss. D. äst'älfun, st'älfun, I. st'älfyn, st'älftän 'to start, twitch, tremble, flinch, quiver'; Greek ἀστραπή, ἀστράπτω, ἀστεροπή, στεροπή, στερόψ of 'lightning' and 'flashing' from IE strep-. This is the base IE (s)ter- of the words for 'star', see s.v. stāraa-. For tra- see also ttrahā-. The proposal to trace N.Pers. sabuk, Zor.P. spwk, Pašto spuk 'light, not heavy' to a base trap- (H. S. Nyberg, Manual of Pahlavi II, 173) 'to be happy' and thence (in a letter from M. Mayrhofer from K. Hoffmann) to name the 'tin' as the 'light' (not heavy) metal is unacceptable. This Iranian spuka-, sapuka- is to be taken with Zor.P., N.Pers. čāpuk 'swift' (variant s- with č- as N.Pers. čap- 'left side' and Sogd. Chr. s'pt) to IE ḱep- beside kep- (or kap-, kap-); for čāpuk see Zoroastrian Problems, ed. 2, xxxvi; and for 'swift' and 'light', IE Pok. 660–1 legᵘh-, O.Ind. raghú-, laghú-. See also s.v. āljsata- 'silver' for a name 'bright metal', base IE arg-. Note also Oss. Base dah-, noun daha- 'male, man' (intervocalic -h- highly ambiguous), Waxī dāi, ðāi, ðayək from dahya-* (or dahyu-*), where Waxī has lost -h-, but does not lose intervocalic stops (see TPS 1959, 107–115). Avestan adjective fem. dāhī ethnic name, Greek Δάαι, Δάοι, Δάσαι, Lat. Dahae, O.Pers. dahā 'the Daha people'. O.Ind. RV 6·21·11 yé mánuṃ cakrúr úparaṃ dásāya '(the sages) who placed Manu after Dasa', where dása- is the epithet of the primal man. With suffix -yu-, O.Pers. dahyu-, Av. dahyu- 'land', O.Ind. dásyu- '(hostile) people', later 'demons'. Adjective O.Ind. dāsa-, dāsá-, like the Av. dāha-. The Avestan dāha- name is associated with the names airya-, tūirya-, sairima-, sāinu- (sāini-) and dāhī-, glossed by Zor.P. ērān, tūr, salm, sēn (=čēn) dāh, sind and dāyīkān, sindīkān (GrBd. 106·14ff; 107·9ff). The sāinu- may be adjective to sinu- equivalent to sindu-, the Greek Σινδοί near the Sarmatai country. The name daha- survived into Arab.-Pers. dihistān, east of the Caspian Sea.

dā 'law, established', see dāta-.

This dūra- from daura-* contrasts with O.Ind. durya- as Balōčī jōγ, N.Pers. yōγ, Yidγa yūγ (from yauga-*) 'yoke' with O.Ind. yugá-.

durauśą 'elatant, exaltant, exhilarant', in an amorous context, epithet of a beverage III 101·33–4 ṣa ma vā-ṃ thajai khū durauśą ttraha thaja 'he here draws me to him as one draws an exhilarant draught'. Since -u- represents older -u- and -ū- the first syllable is doubtful, long or short. The -auśą is found also in Sid. 14v4 and I 143, 52r3 khaṇauśą gaysä 'the khaṇauśą reed', adjective -ya- to kanauśa-*, beside -auta- in Oss. D. c'änodä, I. c'änud, c'änut 'reed', from IE kʷan-, Celtic O.Ir. canach, W. pán 'marsh grass'; see also I 167, 83r5 sīrauśi 'contentment' to sīra- 'content', adjective JS 11v1 sīroṣ̌ādā 'content'. If durauśa is adjective durauśya-*, it connects with Av. dūraoša-, Zor.P. dwl'wš dūr-ōš*, O.Ind. duroṣa-, epithet of the sacred drink Av. haoma-, Zor.P. hōm, O.Ind. sóma-. Veda usage is wider for durósa-, durósas-: RV 4·21·6 of the libationer domestic Agni fire (not Indra-), the hótar-, and 8·1·13 of beings who feel oppressed, brought low, being also an-āśú- 'slow' and an-ugrá- 'weak'. The three contexts must be suited. No agreed meaning has yet emerged. BSOAS 20, 1957, 53–8 listed earlier proposals, all based on compounds, but offered an interpretation by suffix -auša- like the Khotan Saka -ūṣ- < -auša- in parrūṣka- 'affliction, BS kleśa-', Z 6·44 avarrūṣka- (old -ū- < -au-) and later ranūṣka- 'scraped stuff' to base ran- (< raul-). The basic syllable dur- was thought to mean 'pierce, be pungent (of drink), be pained (of persons)' with Balōčī dōr 'pain', dōrōx 'ill' (-ōx, -ōk of permanent quality), so that duroṣa- of sóma- was the pungent drink called tigmá-, tīvrá- 'sharp'. After hesitating again over a compound of dur- 'be pungent' with auš- 'burn, be pungent' (for Iran. auš- 'to burn' see s.v. byūẓāre 'they catch alight') I prefer now a word dur- with suffix -auša-, but from the base dau- 'to press' either 'up', 'to elate, exhilarate' or 'down', 'to depress, afflict' according to context (for dau- see s.v. dū). This dur- is then du- with -r- either verbal increment or nominal suffix beside daura-* in Balōčī dōr, as kur- 'neck' in Av. kurit- 'neck-helmet' (see Donum H. S. Nyberg oblatum 1954, 7–12), Oss. D. kurm, kurmä, I. kūrm 'blind', beside kaura-* in Khotan Saka kūra- 'bent', Zor.P., N.Pers. kōr 'blind' and O.Ind. kora- 'joint'. Then Iran. durauša-*, O.Ind. durósa- of the drink is 'exhilarant', but in RV 8·1·13 durósāso amanmahi 'we thought ourselves to be afflicted'. For a similar use of a base meaning to 'press' to show 'exhilaration', note fšur- in Zor.P. fšār-, pafšūr-, pafšīr- 'press back', N.Pers. afšurdan, afšārdan 'press', afšarah 'expressed juice', Armen. lw ōšarak, Arab.-Pers. afšaraǰ, beside Khotan Saka ṣṣarr- 'to exhilarate', āṣṣuḍa- dyadic with māsta- 'exhilarated, intoxicated' (base mad-), haṣūḍa- 'forced forth' (fra-fšṛta-*). With this O.Ind. psar-, parallel to mad-, can be placed (BSOAS 21, 1958, 543). In Yasna 32·14 dūraošəm saočayaṭ avō I see the meaning 'he made pungent the plant (avah-) so that it was exhilarant'. For this sense of IE ḱeuk-, keuk-, note Vedic śukta- 'vinegar', Khotan Saka sutta-, Pers. central dialect suta, Parāčī sīt 'sour' and O.Ind. cukrá- 'sour', Nūristānī Waigalī cukurā 'wine'.

The contexts exclude two other interpretations recently known to me, R. E. Emmerick in 1969 informed me that he saw uš- 'intelligence' in the second part, as if meaning 'depriving of intelligence'. The Avestan haoma- bestowed wisdom; and uš- 'intelligence' awaits discovery in O.Ind. In the Mémorial J. de Menasce 1974, 49, I. Gershevitch proposed 'pain-killer', impossible in an amorous context and in RV 8·1·13 durósāso amanmahi 'we thought ourselves durósa-'.

In RV 10·94·3 reference to the stalk of sóma- cites the vṛkṣásya śákhām aruṇásya 'the branch of the red vṛkṣa- plant'. Av. varəša-, O.Ind. vṛkṣá- seem to have survived in Yazgulāmī warš 'a herb which blinds cattle', and Šuγnī 'a hill grass', if these are traced to vārša-*; it could then give a meaning 'plant with branch, shoot or stalk', whence later 'tree'. The derivation may be -š- suffix to IE u̯elḱ- in O.Ind. válśa- 'shoot, twig', Av. varəsa- 'hair' beside IE u̯elk- in O.Ind. valka- 'bark', Av. varəka- 'leaf'. The N.Pers. bēšah, γēšah, Zor.P. vēšak 'forest' which has sometimes been traced to vāršya-*. I prefer to place to the base IE u̯ei- (KT 6·437).

If the mushroom amanita muscaria is adduced in reference to the haoma-, it is important that its effects after drying are stimulant (so G. Wasson informed me from knowledge gained after publication of his book Soma 1968).

The phrase vṛkṣá-...aruṇá- with 'branch' hardly suits a mushroom.

Compounds, first component, III 26, 2904 pajsama-vīya 'to be honoured', BS pūjanīya-; V 94, 17v7 pajsama-ṣvattetä jsa 'with honour and celebration', see above K 5, 14314 pajsama-ṣuva-karaṇa yädändä 'they made honour, celebrations'. With negative, K 61, 4114 draya raṃna avajsamya yanāṃdi 'they do dishonour to the three jewels'. Since *pati-j-*results in paj- (see pajittä 'asks for') but pari-y- results in paljs, pajs-, pajs-, here the one case of pajsama- may indicate pari-jam-* 'go around attend, serve, honour, worship' (see also pari-ja-* in pajsada- 'reverent'), as in Av. pairi-jas- (Yašt 10·6 miθrəm yazāi. . .təm pairi.jasāi), O.Ind. paricarati 'serve'. See s.v. -jsam-, naljsam-, hajsam-, haṃjsam-; see participle āta- (with cognates). With bi-, see bipajsama-.

pajsāñe (ñ uncertain) 'teaches, orders', I 251·115, IV2 BS anuśākṣyati, variant anuśāsiṣyate, to pajs- 'ripen'.

pajsāḍä 'overwhelmed', III 43·25 brrīyṭjai brrīttä jsä pajsāḍä ąbaustą ṣtä 'with passionate love he is overwhelmed, senseless'. From pa-čarta-* (not pati-č-, >pac-), see JS 6v3 attajsāḍa, JS 13v4 ttajsāḍai 'you surpassed' (ati-čarta-*).

pąjsāṃde JS 34v3 'they invested'; 3 plural II 74·41 pąjsāṃdāṃdä, 1 plur. ibid. II 75·49 pąjsāṃdāṃdū. See paljsata- 'surrounded'.

pąjsārga 'distressed', see paljsārgga-, from pari-čār-* 'think upon', base kar- 'think', Zor.P. uskārtan 'to think'.

pąjsina 'strong (?)' III 7, 14v3 pąjsina āśayäna 'with strong inclination' (BS āśaya-), if pąjsa is not too late here for older pätajsa-, see päṣą-.

pajsiṭhyi 'having put away', III 20, 4b2 pättara cīvarä pajsiṭhyi 'having put away bowl (and) dress', BS pratiśāmya. The syllable -īṭh- is from -arθy- as in bīṭh- 'turn, twist' from varθ-y-*. Hence pa-(pari-?) with čarθy- to karθ-, see kāṭhaṃjuva- 'house-robber', from karθra-* 'equipment'. For -ṭh- see s.v. baṭha- 'cuirass'; -īṭh- occurs bīṭh-, haṃbīṭh-, hasamīṭh-.

pajsemina 'with service', III 42, b9 ⟨brū⟩na pajsemina u manātī hvaḍä khaṣṭāna u śau ravi jsa pajsaṃ tcerai 'with splendid honour and with desirable food (and) drink and with one ritual) period (=Av. ratu-) worship must be performed' (Kalparāja text). Possibly from pajsāma-, pajsāmya- >pajsema-, inst. sing. -ina (older-āna), as in Sid. 127r2 havina 'with havya- offering' (BS havya-). For -jsāma, note also II 10·162 avajsāmä 'dishonour', and haṃjsāma- 'gathering, collection'. Hence pari-jāma-, pari-jāmya- 'going around, service' beside the normal pajsama- 'honour, worship', noun with both -a- and -ā- in the base.

pąjsūme 'honour (?)', II 61 b8 ///tsve pajsūme anvaśti ṣti 'to go to honour is difficult for him', if from pąjsāma with yi. With -ūme as Sid. 2r4 jehume 'healing', =jehāme.

pąjsaude 'to carry out', infinitive II 37, 1202 (b2) ttāvīyū parya pąjsaude. See paljsem-, from pari-jāmaya-*.

paña 'each', see pana-.

O.Ind. panca-loha- 'bell-metal'. Here paṃja-lau may be either loan-word Ind. panca-loha-, or from Iranian panča-rāuda-*.

-pānä 'herdsman', II 33, 3b6 hvāṣṭāna st(u)ra-pānä 'the keepers of stūra-cattle of the chief men'. Formed like Zor.P. *šp'n šupān, N.Pers. šubān, with -pān from -pāvan-, beside -pati- in Armen. lw špet 'shepherd'. See cognates s.v. pā- 'to protect'.

pāṃdū 'we paid(?)', V 211·39·3 ///pāṃdū hāmai tsue kū⟨sä⟩ 'we paid; the barley flour to a kūsa-measure', if pitāndämä* has through pyāṃdūṃ* resulted in pāṃdū, from the base pai-:pi- of pīha- 'price' (with cognates). But it might be part of a proper name of such a form as IV 17·30 śeṃdū; IV 18·2 cviṃdū.

pāpe 'with banqueting', III 101·36 na pāpe jsą bīnāvū 'I am not bound by (=keen for) a banquet'. See s.v. papāgye, pīpe.

pāba 'father', Z 5·109 īmu mamä hṿīyä ysaṃthi hämätā ku uho pāba dätaimä 'this will be to-day my human birth when I have seen you, father'; N 75·28 ⟨u aysu ttū⟩ pābu jaṭindhara vara tsīmä 'and I go to the father Jaṭindhara', BS yan nūnam aham imam eva pitaraṃ jaṭiṃdharam upasaṃkramitvā; V 90r5 vipaśyä balysä aysī ttye biṣṭū pāba 'of Vipaśyin Buddha, I am his pupil, father' (-ū = -ūṃ from -ämä). Hypocoristic, see for 'mother' s.v. nāni, māma.

pāyai 'pedestrian, infantry', III 43·40 ṣacū būrä biśä pāyai tsve 'to Ṣaṭṣou everyone came on foot'; III 81·41 mvaiśą́ aśä bvaina mvaiśą́ pāyai tsīnä 'sometimes I was going riding a horse, sometimes walking'; II 50·50 tta būra pāyä hīñāṃ prrahauna 'those so many clothes of infantry troops'; II 50·43 tta ra tcasyau peṣkala vīra būsä bāja pāyä hīñāṃ īdai 'those too are infantry troops subject to those in the Tcasyau division (=46 tcaisyau)'; II 50·45 tta bura gūra auva bisä bāja pāyä hīñāṃ haubarauña ḍāṃ (?= ṣṭāṃ) 'those so many acting as haubara-officials of the infantry troops subject to those in Gūra village'. pāysa- 'surface', Z 2·132 balysä pǫ pāysu vīri haraysde 'he prostrated himself on the breast at the Buddha's feet'; JS 20v4 brrūna pajsama cue ttā haiṣṭe kṣamauttā pāysvīrä śāṃ brrīya ysirastä himyai 'you to whom were given bright honour (and) favour, lying on the breast you became heartful with love'; III 104·48 cūba (BS cumba) ka nūyi paysvīra 'kiss, when he lies on the breast'; K 27·159–60 manauhara pāysvīra ṣṭau nvāśä yserka 'Manoharā, being on the breast, cried out pitifully'; V 65·10 pīmi deśana vaña pāysä vī śāna 'I bring profession now lying on the breast'; loc. sing. IV 17·8–9 ikātaśą́ vī jīye pāysaña u pā vī cu vara khaitti hūñā paśi kārrä himi dvī salī ra jū mīḍi 'on the eleventh day he fails in breast and in feet, he who aches there, he emits blood, becomes deaf, lives still two years, he dies'.

Base paz-, derivative pāza(h)-, Av. pāzah-vant- Frahang I oīm 26 pāzanuhuntəm mēzd-arždānīkīhā pasuš-haurvān bavēt 'the (dog) pāzahvant becomes a sheep dog, getting the offering'. From Avestan, Zor.P. Nīrangastān 126v6 *p'zwpt pāzavat, the name of the second sacrificial flesh between gaunavat 'with flesh (Av. gaona-)' and astavat ('stwpt) 'flesh with bones'. This Avestan pāzahvant-, a laudatory epithet of the dog, means 'having breasts' hence 'broad-breasted', as Oss. D. reü-gun, I. riü-džyn 'breasted' means 'broad-breasted'.

Sogd. Bud. P 21b14 ryty βrp'z w'pt'nt 'they fell with breast forward on the face'; VJ 360 'wyn γwt'w pt'yćh βrp'z w'pt'nt rty-šw KZNH pt'yškwynt 'before the autocrat they fell breast forward and so replied to him'; Sogd. Chr. prp'z'mpst 'fell on breast'; M.Parth.T. p'z'ḫ 'prone', 'w hwyn bšn'n p'z'ḫ 'their bodies prone'.

Prostration may be either 'on the face' or 'on the breast' (or both) or 'on the belly'. Thus Buddhist Tokhara A 24b4 kātsā kāklo 'he fell on his belly', like Hindu (Brahman) uraseva praṇamase 'you bow as with the belly'; Zor.P. pat rōδ ōpast 'he fell on the face'; M.Parth.T. kft 'br dym 'they fell on the face' (Balōčī dēm 'face'); O.Slav. pasti za lici 'fall on face'; Oss. D. ä cäsgombäl ärxaudtäj 'he fell on his face'; Georgian p'irsa zedan daep'ina 'he fell on the face'. Modern survival Waxī p'ūz (ū<ā) p'īz, pūz, Sarīkolī puz, poz 'breast', Yidγa fīz (ī<ā), Munjānī fūz, fīz 'breast, forepart of animal'. To that Ossetic has D. fazä, I. faz 'side, side of rump', D. je ba ä fazäbäl ärbaläsäd 'let him crawl on his back part'; I. jä fazyl babyryd 'he crept on his back part', D. surx-fazä kizgä ä rostä surx 'red-faced girl, her cheeks red', surx-fazä fätk'u 'red-sided apple', plur. surx-fästä. With short -ă- Ossetic has D. fäzä, I. fäz 'plain', plur. fäztä; fätän fäz 'wide plain', däl-väz 'lower valley', üäl-väz, üäl-fäz 'high plateau', ägäron fäzy 'on endless plain', üäl-väz fätänty 'on plateau expanses'; fäztä contrasts with xäxtä 'hills' (like Šāhnāmah v 618, 1720 pahn bē-āb dašt 'wide waterless plain'). As 'part attached', Oss. I. faz 'split, piece', sil-vaz 'uxorious', däl-vaz sary 'a slipping saddle', adjective second component, D. -vazug, I. -vazyg 'part'; fazzon 'twin'; with Sogd. (ancient letter 10·4) p'zy 'piece', Man. 'yw p'zyy 'one piece', ćw p'zy 'shortly'; Armen. lw hanapaz 'always' (hama-pāza-*). Oss. DI. läbäz 'hip, thigh' from fra-paza-* (with -b- kept, as -g- is in lägun 'hairless'<fra-gauna-*). Oss. faxs 'side', if the -xs- is the unusual -χs-<-kš- as in the (doubtful) täxsäg 'carpenter', could be traced here from paβ-s-*, but may go rather with O.Ind. pakṣa- 'side'.

From pāza-* 'wide surface' with Lat. pāgus 'country', and Oss. pāza-, paza-, to Av. pāzah- in pāzahvant- '(broad-)breasted', with O.Ind. Noun, perma- 'to be reared' (pārmya-*, see for the form pakyerma- 'outstanding'), II 14, 2a4 pūrī permā haurū 'I give my son to be reared'; ibid. b8 permavāḍi 'a document about rearing (=adoption)', see SDTV 7. Infinitive, II 14, 2a6 pāḍā nātā 'taken to rear'. With ham- 'together', K 148·58 habāḍau parysāṃ 'of servants reared together'. As second component, II 82·58 ñāysairavāḍa 'intimately reared'; v 66·8a ñāṃysirā-vāḍa. From par- 'to nourish, rear, feed', Sogd. Bud. (Dhuta 266) 3 sing. present p'rt (SCE 106) p'rt, VJ 1 sing. p'r'w. With short vowel, para- 'food', is in aś-para- 'horse-fodder, lucerne'; Av. (Vid 8·86) parō.bərəǰya- '(oven) for roasting food' (BSOAS 26, 1963, 90). N.Pers. aždahāpārah 'of dragon nurture, race' suits well here. See also pāra- 'cake'. The personified female nurturer is Av. pārəndi-, parəndi-, Zor.P. pārand, the chief of women (ratu-) named from her chief function to produce and rear children. The corresponding O.Ind. RV. púraṃdhi- is similarly 'nurturer' as the quintessence of woman. The Vedic concept of púruṣa-, púruṣa- is the adhibhāvayitar- 'the after-nurturer' (see the Aitareya-āraṇyaka text II 5·1–3 quoted in full TPS 1960, 84), formed by -uṣa- suffix, like RV 1·174·3 (and 6 other times) aśúṣa- 'voracious(?)'. As the nourisher with pārāka-, see Zor.P. pit parvarēt 'the father rears', and the Zor.P. gloss parvart ku vēh kart to Av. θraošta. IE Pok. 818 per- 'to rear', Lat. pariō, peperī, partus, parens, Lit. per- 'to brood over young', periù, perėti; and the Latin compound puer-pera 'midwife'. The legal phrase was in Donatus 'legitimos faciunt partus et sublātio: matris est parere patris tollere'; for the ancient gesture see the Hittite rite in E. Laroche, Les noms des Hittites 370. For 'food', see s.v. pāra-. This base pār- 'to nourish' is traced by T. Burrow, BSOAS 40, 1977, 176 in O.Ind. pālayati 'nourish' and pāraṇā- 'breaking fast'. It is possible also in Tumšuq pār-.

pittä 'he falls', pīndā 'they fall', pīmä 'I fall', pīnä 'I may fall', pī, see s.v. pat- 'fall'.

pitcīyi 'spoon', Sid. 146v4, Tib. thur-ma, and Sid. 147v2; 149r1; 150r1. From pati-sčaida-* 'split' (piece of wood), O.Norse skeið 'spoon' from skaid-, Got. skaidan to IE Pok. 920–1.

pītcīra 'before the face, in presence', II 102·20 maṇḍalvā ṣṭāna pītcīra pīchaṣṭū pyaṣta (triadic) 'in the maṇḍala-circles in presence', translation AM, n.s., 11, 1965, 102. See s.v. tcari 'face'.

pīde 'he brought', see pīm-.

pīnä 'I may fall', see pat-.

pinapaka 'causing to burn, fire', III 137·14 uca hīvī vā pinapaka hīyiṃ (-iṃ=-ai) vā ṣī thaṃ-pastą devatta, śade jsa vā vīśūdā na naraume 'of water (the genius), of fire (the genius), this the genius now calmed, from earth, hither issues no evil'. Here the three elements, water, fire, earth and the genius of each (devatā-) gives not evil, but final good (l. 22 asta śaika). Hence pina- from older pyina-* to pa-dina-* 'to burn' (see pyiñ- 'cause to burn') with Waxī pīðən- intr. 'burn', pīðəng 'flame', Šuγnī pīðīn-:pīðid 'cause to burn' (-ð- < -d- not -t-). Possibly from older padagn-* either present padagnāti* or denominative padagna-* (participle), base dag- (see s.v. dajs-). The second component is -pa- 'making, causing' with suffix of agent -ka-, to base pā- 'to work' to apah- 'work' (as sā- 'to sharpen' to as- 'be sharp'). See also Armen. tagnap 'anxiety' (of similar form to this padagna-pa-*) from Iranian base tang- 'stretch', participle tagna-* 'stretched, anxious', with -pa-. See for pa- Studi linguistici in onore di V. Pisani, 1969, 96.

pīnīysdyau 'girth', inst. plur. K 64, 8or2–3 ysarīja pīnīysdyau usthīya ura 'bellies drawn up with golden (ysarījyau*) girths', parallel to BS hasti-kakṣya- 'elephant-girth'. From pati-naiz-* (with -d- increment) 'to fasten', naiz- with naiš-. See panīšdā, panīys-.

pīp- 'to prepare food', Z 2·52 khīäysvī ju vaska ne pīpe 'I do not prepare food for him'; Z 2·50 parysa nirmändä ce pīpāre hurau bātā 'he magically created (BS nirmā-) servants who prepare hurā-drinks and bātaa-drinks'. From pai-pā-* (reduplicated type intensive, O.Ind. vevid-, Greek ποιπνύω), to pā-, see papāgye. Not from Prakrit payapp-, BS prakalp-, as offered earlier.

pīm- 'bring', participle pīda-, Sid. 141r5 ā vā pāri vī āna dvāsą haųśä uskyāṣṭä, pīmāñą u ttekye uskātta beṇāñā 'or from the knee twelve fingers upwards it is to be brought up and it is to be split above that', BS hṛtvā, Tib. yan-na rtin-pa-nas sor bču-gñis-kyi gon-du byin-pa dral-te; V 65, 24a10 pīmi deśana vaña 'I would now bring the profession'; III 124·87 pīmą, BS mīṇaya (not identified; 'bring'?); V 300·3 ttye āśirīna pīma pu⟨stakä⟩ 'bring with the teacher (BS ācārya-) his book(?)'; preterite, V 222·20·2 ci vā haṃbāta pīde 'because he has brought the amounts'. For -m-:-nda-, note also dam-:danda- 'to tame'. Base pi-yum-* > piyām-* > pīm-, with ājum-, ājām-, ājim-:ājiṃda- 'to bring'. To Zor.P. yunb-, yunbēn-, N.Pers. jumb-, jumbān- (m ~ mb). Possibly to IE Pok. 505 ǰem- 'hold', Av. yam-:yata-, see above jamā, with secondary meaning 'hold towards'. Otherwise a base yau-:yu- 'to move' with increment -m- (see tsum-, khūm-), in Av. yaona-, above gyūna-, jūna- 'gait', O.Ind. yóni-.

piṃya 'long', BS cireṇa, see paiya.

päyä, pī 'fat', Z 20·56 päyä 'fat', Z 20·53 piye, Z 20·54 pī, Sid. 11r5 pī, Tib. čhil ('fat'), Sid. 9v1 pī jsa, Tib. *ža*g ('fat'); adjective, Sid. 141r5 pīvīnā kavīñāṃ āhā 'fat fish eggs' (gen. plur.); with negative, Sid. 135r4 datāṃ hīye apīye guśte jsa 'with fatless flesh of wild beasts', BS jāngala-, Tib. ša smun bag čhun-ba dan. From base pyā-:pī- 'to swell', see also pīña, pīsa, pīsaña; Av. pīvah- 'fat'; proper name gao-pivaxhu- 'with fat of ox-meat', Zor.P. pīh, pī, frapīh, plpyhtl frapīhtar, N.Pers. pī, farbīh, farbih, M.Parth.T. frbyw; Sogd. document βrpyγ 'fat(?)', Sogd. Adjective, Sid. 20r2 pīrūḍa 'wormy', BS kṛmi-dūṣita-, Tib. srin-bu dan. From base par- 'to pierce', Waxī pərič, Sanglečī pəčuk 'worm', Vogul lw pūrik, Hungarian péreg (for another Finno-Ugrian lw see s.v. pāsa- 'hog', Finn. porsas). IE Pok. 816–7 per- 'pierce, bore', Greek πείρω 'bore', Slav. Russ. na-perjǫ, periti 'bore', O.Slav. porjǫ, prati 'cut to pieces'. For 'worm' as 'piercing', see also IE Pok. 1073 ter-, Greek τερηδών 'boring worm'.

piracārā 'official title', gen. plur., II 25·29·1 piracārā va nūvari jsārä śtāka 'for the officials new corn is necessary'. See piravārā. Possibly -c- for -v-; unless the two second components -cāra- (keeping -c-) and -kāra coincided, both from base kar-.

piravāraa- 'domestic officials', II 18, 7a6 ///cārāṃna biśa pāravārāṃ hauḍāṃ⟨dā⟩/// '...all, the officials gave us'; II 16, 4b2 ///stūra pajīdä piravārāṃ va āṣṭaṃdādeṃ (-eṃ=-ai) 'they demand large cattle; the officials began for them...'; II 16, 4b5 kaṃthā hīsīṃdä piravārā vā pīḍakā hauḍāṃdä 'they come to the city, the officials presented ('to us' vā) a letter'; II 25·29·1 bulāni rmami śārāna parau (space) piracārā va nūvari jsārä śtāka/// 'command from Blon Rmam Śār: for the officials new corn is required'; V 225·66·6 bañe khvai piraverā kṣi '...it combines so that for him are six piravāra-officials'.

The following is the proposed basis. The second component is -kāra- or -vāra- (cf. bisvāra-, busvāra- 'members of the house, kinsmen') and piracārā may preserve the palatalised cāra- (with c- kept as initial of the second component). This kāra-, cāra- may mean a 'group'. But pira- has yet to be traced. If bisvāra- is similar, the pira- would equate with bisā- 'house'. In form pira- resembles pāra-, pira- 'worm', cira- 'visible' (<čiθra-) and hāra-, hira- 'thing; wealth' (M.Parth.T. 'yr, Armen. lw ir, see TPS 1959, 71–4). There is also the archaic ysirā 'heart' from sṛd-*. If pira-vāra-, piracāra- is 'the group of domestic servants', like bisvāra 'the group of inmates of the house=family', the word pira- may mean 'abode' (beside the many words in Khotan Saka bisā-, māśa-, kūṣḍa-, āmuha-, āmūna-, gvaha-) from an IE per- by derivative pṛd-* or pṛn-* or pṛi-*. It is then the cognate of the isolated Anatolian word Hittite pir gen. sing. parnaš 'house' (IE pēr*:pṛnós*), Luwian parna, gen. and adjective parnašši, Lycian prñna- (prñnawa 'to build'). To this one may assume a base IE per- 'to build', possibly attested in Oss. D. avar 'building' (if from ā-pāra-*). For kāra- and čāra-, see Mélanges linguistiques offerts à E. Benveniste, 1975, 33–5. For 'house-servant' see also māśa-vīraa- (-kīra-).

pirāṃ 'houses', gen. plur. V 33, 12a5 tsīye pirāṃ kālā himye '...he would go; he became the kāla-official of the houses(?)'. See pira- in piravārā. Possibly loc. plur. V 283, 2a1 vara pirvā; V 33, 12a3 ///pirāṃ peḍa jsāti 'he goes into the building of the houses(?)', with peḍa loc. sing. (like bāḍa- 'time', loc. sing. beḍa) from pāḍa- 'built, building, erection' to base par- 'to build', see s.v. piravārā.

pārān-, pīrān- 'sow, plant', V 389, 19v4 bata ku jve ttīma pārendā pharu ye vīvāgu pajāysde 'where he scatters little seed, one gets much ripening' (BS vipāka-), BS G 37, 14a7 bījam alpaṃ yathā vāpya prabhūtaṃ labhate phalaṃ, Tib. sa-bon btab-na hbras-bu čhe; III 22, 13b4 puña kūśalä-mūlā pirādāṃdi 'they sowed good roots of merit', BS avaropita-kuśala-mūlā bhaviṣyanti; L 99·8 ce puña kuśala-mūla na ra pārānīndä 'who no more sow good roots of merit'; L 99·15 puña kuśala-mūla pārānda bvāña 'to be known as sown good roots of merit'; N 50·23 sumīru garu nāste nānerra tcabaljātä pārāñātä uysvāñātä 'he takes Mount Sumeru into his palm, scatters (dyadic), tosses it'; see IV 112, parallel BS sama-rajaṃ kareya 'make it like dust' (Mahāvastu 2·329); SuvP. 74v1 puña pirāṃdāṃdä 'they sowed merits', BS kuśalaṃ kṛtaṃ, =SuvP. 74v2 pūña pirāṃdāṃdä; II 104·90 pūñīje ttīma pīrānāme ūdaiśä 'for sowing of seed of merits'. Base parā-kan- 'scatter', kan- 'to throw', but parkūn- 'besprinkle' from pari-kau-*, rather than pari-kān-.

pīrī 'may you order', K 148·43 pīrī paraṇaumye, ibid. 44 pīrī paraṇāmye 'deign to transform', beside 2 plur. ibid. 45 paryāviṃ (-iṃ=-ai) bīde; ibid. 49 paryāvi ra samāvaji (BS samāpadya- 'reach'). Hence pīrī from paryī* optative to pary-:parst- 'order; deign to'.

pūęda 'they fear', Manj. 323 a-uysānai nai ja vā puęda 'the non-self they do not fear'. See puvąindä, s.v. puvąd-.

pūairya 'they fear', Manj. 396 ttrāma pūairya satva avāya 'so the beings fear ruin' (BS apāya-)'. See puvąd-.

puka 'cubit', Z 22·124 mājo puku vīri tcaholsä puke 'at the (measure of) our cubit, forty cubits', parallel BS harta- 'cubit (Maitreya-vyākaraṇa, ed. S. Lévi 386). The basic meaning ('arm to elbow') suggests connexion with Tokhara B pokai (oblique case), A poke rendering BS bāhu- 'arm'. Possibly pukā-*, base pauk- 'to pierce, point', to IE Pok. 828 peuk-, peuĝ-, variant peuk-, with meaning like Greek πυγών 'cubit'. Tokhara pok- could derive from the same base, but with extended meaning to the whole arm.

pūjsvāña 'to be renounced', Manj. 276 ttu māñada śkauje pūjsvāña nau-padya 'like this the saṃskāra-factors must be renounced, nine-fold', =III 39, 43b3 ttū padī śkaujä paṃtsāña nau-padya. From pati-jau-* 'move off to', base gau- 'go, move', equivalent to patä-ts- 'renounce, give'. Cognates of gau-, see s.v. gueṃ. For pū- see pūheitä 'fastens on'.

puña 'kindness, service', II 16, 3b4 khu śau mūrä ni himäte ttī dva kūsa puña ma yaṃ bāysdai khu. . . 'if it should not amount to one mūrä-coin then two kūsa-measures (do me a service), look how. . .' (context of tasty wine (ysaujsä mau)). Courteous phrase containing 'service', BS puṇya-, unless an unknown Saka word. Hence possibly paud- 'to move fast' (see pūsta-) with pudna-, pudnya- a 'swift act' as a 'service'.

puño 'plant name', Sid. 13v4 BS phāñjī, Tib. pa-dzi. Possibly NW Prakrit ñ<-ñj- and -ūn- from -ān- with adapted -o (or -au) for Prakrit -ā. BS phāñjī unidentified plant.

-pyauutta, K 17·175 parapyauutta 'turned'=paribyūtta-, BS viparyasta-.

pyaude, see pātāṃ- 'to obscure', pātaunda-.

pyaura-ttraumai 'crossing into calamity', III 44·61 haiysdai mūkūvāśai hada pyaura-ttraumai 'woe has reached him within the entrance to calamity'. From pati-āra-* to Av. paityāra- 'misfortune', paityārō.təma- 'most unlucky', Zor.P. patiyārak, Sogd. Bud. pty'r 'adversity', Armen. lw p'at'erak 'bewitched (by evil eye)', Georgian lw p'at'erak'-i 'misfortune'. Second component trām- 'to enter, cross'.

pyauśāka 'bud(?)', III 34·13 spyakīnai pyauśaka aiheja aysbanakvā 'the flower's bud is checked in the channels', III 46·22 ⟨s⟩pyakīnai pyauśāka iheja aysbanakvā, =III 37·8 spyakīnai byauśauka iheja aysbanvāi. The rendering 'bud' is conjectual but it is clearly part of a flower; elsewhere for 'bud' the lw BS sphoṭaka- occurs as spūlaka-. Connexion will then be pati-āušya-*>pyauśa- with -āka- or -aka- suffix with -k- retained. For -auša-, see s.v. pūhara- 'vegetable', and for -aušya->-auśa- see durauśa-. For py->by-, note also byaurīnai 'of clouds' to pryaurā- and the reverse parapyauutta-=paribyūtta- 'turned'.

pyauṣā 'flower(?)', III 40·16 panāyidī (read -īdi) pyauṣā khu bīnā ṣkīdā astāṃdi 'the flowers sound as they touch the harp in tuning it', =III 36·7–8 panāyīdā spyakyā khu ja bīna astāna 'the flowers sound as one tunes a harp'. Hence pyauṣā variant to spyakyā 'flower'. Possibly pati-auša-* (with retained -ṣ-) beside pyauśāka- 'bud', see auša-* s.v. pūhara- 'vegetable'. Note also -ṣ- and -ś- in III 40·17 khaṣa- 'beverage', =III 47·62 khaśa-. An alternative would see here vaxš-:uxš- 'to grow'>-auṣṣ- (see s.v. hvāṣṣa-).

prrąkuyą 'to be strewn over, sprinkled over', III 78·15 prrąkuyą haṃdryi va 'among the medicinal things to be strewn over' followed by musk, honey, molasses, sugar, hence to set with III 86·96 biṃdai śikarā parkūnāña 'upon it sugar is to be sprinkled (strewn)'. Hence parā-kau-* 'to cover over', to base IE Pok. 951–3 (s)keu- 'to cover', see cognates s.v. parkūn-. In form prakuya- is from parā-kuya-* 'to be covered over, strewn over' rather than parā-kuta-*. See also khauca 'covering', and KT VI 428–9 heinā-khoca. The words prrakuya haṃdryi va render unidentified Chinese tcū civa ha: ḍa ḍī.

prrakṣīvīdi 'they reject', K 61, 41r4 ci ttu sūttrą prrakṣīvīdi u draya raṃna avajsaṃya yanāṃdi 'who may reject this sūtra-text and treat the triratna three jewels with disrespect'. From parā-xšaub-* (or pari-) see s.v. prakṣautta- 'rejected'.

prakṣautta- 'rejected', SuvP. 64v1–2 cu dā prrakṣauttai īme, avaraṃjsā rraṣṭā abvīya, 'I who have rejected the dharma-doctrine, the favourable, the right, being ignorant', BS sad-dharmaḥ prakṣiptaḥ syād ajānantena me sadā; v 105·4 (right half now lost)=N 158·34 paṃjsa anaṃttanarya yuḍāṃdā īdi u dāru prakṣauttāndā 'they have committed the five anantarya-sins and long time rejected (the dharma-doctrine)'. Written K 38·143 prrirā 'state of affairs', =K 30·209 prrara.

prranama 'reverent', V 33, 13b1 prranama hvaḍa 'reverent man' (gen. sing.). From pari-nama-* 'respectful'; for pari- 'possessing', note A pairi.aojastara- 'possessing more force', pairi.dahyu- 'being around the land'. With nama- 'bowing down', see base nam-. For pra- see also prrakuya- and prranava.

prranava 'of fresh grass', V 222a3 āṣārya-t-ī prranava mastāñā pajīṃdā 'the teachers (BS ācārya-) demand from him the fresh fodder' (SDTV 79). From pari-nava-* 'possessing or consisting of new grass' (pari- as Av. pairi. aojas- 'having strength', see s.v. prranama) with nava- 'new stuff, new growth', to Oss. D. nāūä, I. näü 'green turf, new ploughing', plur. nāūyty mänäü fesgûxti 'the wheat in the new ploughing throve'. See nava-, s.v. navaka-, nauha-.

prrabautta 'transformed', K 63, 79r4 pajsa gę satva gvaḍa prrabautta īde 'the beings in the panca-gati five stages are changed, transformed' (emending studies in honour of W. Norman Brown, 1962, p. 19). From paribyūtta-* 'changed', not lw BS prabhūta-, nor with parbutta-.

pramāṃda 'authorized', IV 26·7 adjective to BS pramāṇa- 'authority', pramānavant-a-*.

prraysarye 'to send(?)', II 125·14 ma jsā ma ṣīkä ärä naiśtä, hīña ysīra bīrrai ttą bvgauma-vīnai vā-ṃ parya prraysarye 'here indeed this fault is not mine; in my own heart I fear(?); deign to send me guidance(?) for discussion(?)'. Uncertain. Possibly infinitive from parā-zar-*, to base zar- 'move, cause to move towards'. See BSOAS 23, 1960, 35 (with earlier references) for zar-, O.Ind. jdrate, variant to cdrati 'move'. So here, rather than BS lw prasar- 'be stretched out', medial -ys- for -s-, as in āysana- 'seat', Prakrit -s-.

prraysīnīme 'I watch', III 106.34–5 skāda yāna mūṣe mara hūsa mahā jsa prraysīnīme ṣṭau maista 'I will loosen secretly my girdle; sleep here with me; I will however make great watch'. From pari-zain-* to zai-:zi- 'be watchful', Av. zaēnahvant- 'watchful', zaēni- 'lively', zaēman- 'liveliness', zaēnaŋhan- 'watchful', Zor.P. zēnāvand; Av. zaēni.buδra- 'watchfully awake', Zor.P. zēnāvand gufrāk 'watchful, awake' (-fr- < γr-) glossed by zēnīk xvapēt 'he sleeps watchfully'; Parsi-Sanskrit jāgaraṇa- for zaēman-; Av. azinavant- 'watchful' (epithet of Taxmō urupa). To Zor.P. zēnahār, N.Pers. zēnhār, Georgian lw zenaar-i, dyadic compound with har- 'to watch'. Base O.Ind. je-, not he-, see s.v. ysīnīta- 'taken under care'. With -me (correcting printed -re). Note that Zor.P. has also zēn 'armour' (zayana-*), Georgian lw zein-k'al-i 'smith' (zēnakāra-*); zēn 'saddle' (izaina-*).

pravā 'talk', II 68·7–8 ttāguttyau jsa jaṃpha pravā panata 'with the Tibetans the discussions (and) talk arose'. Possibly paribāta-*, base bā- 'to speak' (see also būñā- 'talk') with IE Pok. 105–6 bhā-, O.Ind. bhā of sabhā 'assembly', bhánati 'speak'; Greek φαμί, φημί, φάμα, φήμη, Lat. for, fārī 'speak', O.Engl. bēn 'prayer' (bhā-ni-*), bōian 'to boast'; Slav. Russ. baju, bajati 'narrate', basnĭ 'tale', Armen. ban 'word', bay 'word', bam 'I speak', Tokhara A pā- 'beg'. For bhau-*, see s.v. būñā-, Armen. lw hambau 'report, news'. This is preferred to BS lw pravāda-. See bāma- 'dumb'.

prravāsta- 'escorted', II 90·75 hauda vā prrivāsti rrispūra 'seven escorted princes', V 212, 46a1 u prrvāstä ṣanīrā naraṃ(dā) 'and the escorted Ṣanīra went out'; 'converted', II 106·132–3 jaṭala-brramana khva prravāsta īḍai 'when he had been able to convert the hair-matted brāhmaṇas', translation AM, n.s., 11, 1965, 106. Infinitive, V 387, 66 biṭį rā pastā prravāśte 'he ordered to escort them all'. From parā- (or pari-) with vād- 'lead', see s.v. bāy-: bāsta-.

prraśvava 'nature(?)', Manj. 408 prraśvava māttra salāva 'talk is only nature(?)', following upon nairmāṇa māttā kīre 'karma-acts are only nirmāṇa-transformation'; K 111·362 rū bajāṣa paśve jsa pakyerma 'form (BS rūpa-), sound outstanding by nature (=BS svabhāva-)'; Manj. 175 ga rrū prraśvena pakyarma 'mountain, the form outstanding by nature'; Manj. 327 prrara bvāra prraśve jsa hamaga 'they know the nature; equal to nature'. From parā-, pari- or par- (<fra-) with base šau-:šu- 'move fast, make to move fast', hence 'driving force' as epithet of 'nature'. Since -śva- is palatalized by a preceding -i- from -šva- the word will derive from pari-šuta-* 'driven around', see s.v. ṣun-:ṣva-, IE Pok. 954–6 ḱseu-, beside ḱeu-. This word may be a calque upon BS prakṛti- as 'making forward advance'. Hence pratara could be Prakrit, just as BS gṛhastha- is replaced by Prakrit gahaṣṭha-*, whence Khotan-Saka gāṭhaa-, beside the translation bīsadāraa- 'householder'.

prraṣgāra 'confidence', as equivalent of BS pratibhāna- 'readiness, confidence, quick-wittedness', K 19·227 prrāsta. hā prruhī ttye vīra prraṣgāra 'the purohita-chaplain spoke about him with confidence', =K 27·150 pyesta hā pūhī ttya vīra paṣgagāra, =K 35·95 pyāsti hā brraṃnā ttye vīrā prrabhānā 'the brāhmaṇa spoke about him with confidence' (BS pratibhāna-). From fraša-kāra-* to Av. fraša-, O.Pers. fraša- 'conspicuous', see Zoroastrian Problems ed. 2, vii–xvi, Parsi-Persian frśgr, glossed gāhir. See also aurrta. For prraṣą-, note also pharṣavatā-. Translation BSOAS 29, 1966, 511.

prrastharmaḍā 'spread (cloth)', III 51·68 (-āṃ III 51·71; 74; 78) followed by hālai aurga 'with reverence towards'. prrī, K 73·35, prrīya K 74·70 incomplete akṣara syllable for brrī, brrīya (but 73·33 prra in prrara, and 74·63 pra in pracaina rather similar). Translation in Volume in honour of I. B. Horner.

prrīśa 'in service', III 79·1–2 a ṣṭāṃ maṃ prrīśa ṣṭānā pajsa pachīṣę 'I on my part here in service do honour'. Possibly loc. sing. to parśą 'service'.

prīh- 'conceal', pārsta-, Z 24·387 kho ye ratanu nāsta u dī śśandau prīhā 'as one should take a jewel (BS ratna-) and hide it under the ground', simile of the tathāgata-garbha . See pārsta- 'hidden' above. Form like haṃbrīh-, haṃbirsta- 'to share' from ham-raiθ-*; and ārīh-.

prruī 'loving', III 94·35a pvaisū ttā nira mūvara iysāṃgyau śva prruī 'I greet you my wife (and) mother the alysāngyā-lady with whole love(?)'. Line 36 prruī repeated three times. Possibly dialectal for friya- 'beloved'; śva to śśau 'one, whole', as in śau-kṣīra- 'the whole land'. See brrī.

prūya 'a measure; piece', the measure for rūṃ 'oil' giving quantity to be drunk; I 183, 103r4 rūṃ...dvī dvī drriṃ drriṃ (-iṃ-=-ai) prrūya 'oil...of each two (and) three prūya-measures (to be drunk)'; Sid. 100v3 rrūṃ...drrai prūyą khāśāṇą 'oil...three prūya-measures to be drunk'. For 'piece', III 80·24 nīṣi jsā prrūya 'cuts it to pieces', K 36·111 rriysāyaṃ paśtū śā prrūyai hvīḍi 'he cooks the elixir and eats one piece (or measure)', =K 28·169 raysāya paśta u śā prrueye hvīḍa. Other passages refer to rūṃ 'oil'. Possibly pati-raugā-* 'breaking up', to IE Pok. 686 leug-, leuĝ- 'break', Av. uruxti-, Oss. D. lux, I. lyg 'cut off' (or Pok. 869–70 reuk-, reug-, reugh- 'tear away').

Kroraina lw pirova, pirova, piro from older form of Saka prūva. From pati-raupa-* 'raised place', Sogd. Man. ptrwp, ptr'wpw 'fort' (W. B. Henning, BBB p. 93), to base raup-:rup- 'to raise'. For O.Ind. RV rúp 'raised place', see Liebenthal Festschrift, Sino-Indian Studies 5, 1957, 9–10. The same base is in ārūva- 'refuge', BS śaraṇa-. Khotan Saka -ūva- is ambivalent, here either raupa- or rauda- would give -rūva-, older -rōva-, the Sogdian may decide. For rauda-, note Balōčī rōδ 'steep bank', N.Pers. ka-rūd 'well with steep bank', O.Ind. ródhas- 'bank'. Possibly Oss. D. buru, I. bru, byru, gen. sing. byrujy 'enclosure', whence Inguš bru for 'Vladikavkaz', belongs here with either abi-raupa-* or b-<p-. See BSOAS 13, 1951, 924–5 for prūva-. For 'Inner Fort' note the Ičan Kala of Khiva.

From pa(ti)-vah-* 'strike upon', to Pašto wah- 'to strike', wahəl, past wu-wāhah, noun wahanah; to IE Pok. 1172 ues- 'to pierce' O.Ind. nivāsita- 'killed', nirvāsana- 'killing', parivāsayati 'cut around', Celtic O.Ir. fennaid 'flays', OHG ort 'point, corner', O.Engl. ord 'point, beginning', Lit. usnis 'thistle'.

pyā 'at the feet', loc. plur. to pā, pai.

pyāka- 'listener', K 60, 38v1, see pyūy-.

pvāca 'cool', fem. to puvāta-.

pvāñä 'to be smeared upon', Sid. 124v2–3 kaṣāṃ jsa aṃga bijsāñä, pvāñä, pvātāṃ hvarāṃ lthä, arvāṃ jsa, aṃga pisalyāñä 'with decoctions (BS kaṣāya-) the limbs must be poured over, must be besmeared, with cool sweet electuary medicaments the limbs must be smeared', BS sekālepā-hiimā(..)madhuraiś ca virecanaṃ, Tib. khuba-la sogs-pas lus-pas blugs-pa dan, sman bsil-bahi lde-gus bsku-ba dan, sman mnar-dag-gi bkru-sman btan-no. Hence pvāña- renders BS ālepa- 'smearing'. Base pau-:pu- 'to smear', see s.v. pvāna-. For ltha-, BS leha- 'electuary, syrup', pvāta-, pvāyi, I 137, 46r3 pvāyi ucana 'with cool water', see puvāta-.

pvāttyāṃ 'skin-diseases', gen. plur. I 171, 86v3–4 kauṣṭä u ranīkāṃ biṃda pisalyāña, pvāttyāṃ va pīrmāttaṃ 'to be smeared upon the kuṣṭha-disease and the ranīka-diseases; it is best for the pvāttya-diseases'. BS kuṣṭha- (rendered ranīka-) is used for skin-diseases. The phrase va pīrmāttaṃ follows names of diseases (see I 145, 54v1; I 151, 61r2; I 157, 67v5; I 155, 65v3; I 165, 80v1). Here then pvāttyāṃ equates with BS kuṣṭha-, Khotan Saka ranīka- 'skin-diseases'. Hence base pau-:pu- 'to cover, form a skin', in O.Pers. pavasta- 'envelope', Zor.P., N.Pers. pōst 'skin' with suffix -āta- agent-adjective (with -t- preserved as -tt-, see gaisātta-, parbutta-, paṣatta- above) giving puvāta-* 'skin' whence adjective -iya- for the disease puvātiya* > pvāttya-* of the affected part, the skin. See s.v. pūstya-, and pvāna- 'cosmetic'.

pvāna- 'smearing stuff, cosmetic', Z 21·13 pvānāna skaṃphaina bātcūṣṣātāndä 'they beautify with ointment, with lac'. Base pau-:pu- to 'smear' from 'to cover'. See s.v. pūstya-, pvāttyāṃ, pvāñä.

pyāne 'I hear', 1 sing. conjunctive, see pyūy-; Bcd 50v3; 51r1; 50v4, BS otari.

pvāyi, see pvāta-, puvāta- 'cool'.

pyāysä- 'fear, danger', V 23, 2r5 (=Z 19·17) stāmo karyo pvāyso yande 'causes strain, exertion, fear'; II 128·55 pyāyse phirākyi ṣṭāre 'there are many dangers' (translation AM, n.s., 11, 1964, 19); K 65, 8r2 avāyvā (BS apāya-) drayvā kūṣṭa pyāysā bvaiysä 'in the three ruins where fears are long'. From (a)pi-šād-* 'press upon', see s.v. puvaṇa- 'fear'; suffix -zā-, see also kuvāysa- 'side'.

pvārye 'drawn out', K 108·291 tta-vu pvārye rraṣta ttu vasva baysā dā byehīda 'so to them he prophesied right; they attain that pure Buddhas' dharma-doctrine'. From pvār- (beside pver- 'draw out, take away') to (a)pa-par-*, base par- 'rob, take' (see s.v. pūḍa-). Probably a calque on BS vyākārayati 'prophesy'. Here tta-vu⟨ṃ⟩ 'so to them'.

pyāśä 'of a pig', gen. sing., III 91·221 pyāśä tcāra 'fat of a pig', Sid. 9r2 pāśi gūśta 'pig's flesh', =V 318, 38 pveśā guśta. With intrusive -v- after labial p-. See pāsa- from palsa-*, Lat. porcus.

pvāśa 'autumnal', K 25·125 pvāśa bāḍa 'autumn time'; K 34·76 pyāśī bāḍā; N 75·38 draya pvāśe, BS trayaś ca śāradaṃ (ed. Nobel 178), variant to V 56·115 (without pvāśe); II 85·6 pvāśai kālai bāḍā 'autumn time' (BS kāla-). See paśa- 'autumn'. Here adjective with -ā-, with intrusive -v- (see also pāsa-, pyāśā 'pig').

pvāśka- 'cool', SuvP. 66v4–67r1 ysināji̯de muhu baysa, muśdi̯je ūci jsa pvāśkye 'may the Buddhas bathe me with cool water of mercy', BS snāpayantu ca māṃ buddhāḥ kāruṇya-salila-udakaiḥ; SuvP. 69r1 uysdaimīdä pvāśkäna bāyinai jālāna 'they cool with cool net of rays', BS prahlādayan muni-niśākara-raśmi-jālaiḥ; noun, Sid. 125v3 pvāśkai kṣime 'desires coolness', BS śīta-icchā, Tib. bsil-ba hdod-pa dan. See puvāta-.

pyāse 'you feared', JS 32r2 *beśe bāḍe pyāse ka (MS ḍa) ṇa dukhya hamāre 'all the time you feared lest they become unhappy'. Possibly to read pyāyse* < pyāysita-* to pyāysā- 'fear'.

pyāha- 'stroke', III 75·231–2 pastā vā pvāhā:na śaṃdya 'he fell at the stroke to the ground'; III 74·207 pyāhna: varaira 'they tore with a stroke (noise?)'; K 102·60 kūsi pyāhna 'with stroke of drum'; see III 114, 6r3 kūsā pāhi=V 250·795 kūsā pāhe 'he strikes the drum'. Verbal noun, SuvP. 62r4 ttye kūsā pvāhāme jsa 'with striking of the drum', BS anena ca dundubhi-ghoṣa-nādinā. See pāha-, pveh-. Pres. 3 sing. Manj. 353 na jsīda na vā pvaitta 'he does not strike nor does he beat' (bases jsan- and pvah-). See cognates s.v. pvah-.

pvāḥa 'abode', II 2·27 tcaurrvā śāmvā pvāḥa kījsanū bvaiysą 'with four mouths (entrances) a long enclosed dwelling' (SDTV 25). See gvaha- 'abode'; base vah-/vas- 'dwell'; IE 1170–1 ues-.

pvi 'steps', K 72·25 cada pvi jsā mara jsāvi 'how many steps he walks here'; K 72·25 pañi pvi vaska khu byihi jabuva ysīra 'if for every step he should get jāmbunada-gold'; see pū; puvā- 'step'.

pyiñāñä 'it must be burnt', Sid. 126v5 biśūña pacaḍai pyiñāñä 'in every way it must be burnt by him (yi)', Tib. thabs rnam-pa sna-čhogs-kyis bsregs-la. From patidagnaya-* denominative to -na- participle, through puyyaiñ-* > pvyiñ-* > pyiñ- 'cause to burn', but pandīs- from pata-dag-ś- (paṃ- as in paṃtsa-). To Xūfī paδays-paδid 'burn' intr.; paδin-, paδid 'make burn', Šuγnī pīδis-, pīδid; pīδīn-, pīδid, Yazg. paδəys-:paδad; paδāy-, paδayd; Yazg. paδus 'firebrand'; M.Parth.T. pdyn- 'make burn'; Waxī pīδis-, pīδən- 'burn' intr., pīδīng 'flame', see padajs- and pinapaka. Uncertain connexions (see G. Morgenstierne, Shughni Group 55). M.Parth.T. pdyn- 'to kindle' has been traced to base aid- (A. Ghilain, Essai 84).

pviys- 'cover', participle pvīsta-, causative pvīṣ-, noun, Sid. 149v1 pvīysakä bañāñä 'the covering must be bound on', Tib. phur-te (phur 'wrap'); II 85·30 pvīysakā strīyai hvāṣṭa viṣāmūlai jsa hūṣṭūstā 'the woman's covering well-prepared, excellent, from the viṣāmūlaka- plant'. For this unidentified plant, note II 86·45 vaṣāmūle spū(la)ka ('bud'). Participle pvīsta-, Sid. 136v3 rrīma jsa pvīsta

'covered with filth', BS malina-, Tib. dri-mas g-yogs-pa; III 71·134 pvīstā rahāsā; III 98·27 carau pṿīstā 'covered lamp', III 58·1–2 rrihāsä kāḍi mistä tvari pṿīstai arthi 'very great mystery (BS rahasya-); its meaning exceedingly secret'; Sid. 1 bis r4 arve pvīstyedā 'medicines were hidden'; Manj. 24 ttyau jsa ra pūista 'with them (the skeleton) is covered'; K 63, 79r2 kamacāṃ pṿīstä 'covered with kamaca-cloths'. Causative, Sid. 146r5 surakā vāsti haṣkalakā jsa tciṃ pvīṣāñā 'the eye must be covered with a clean cloth', Tib. ras dkar-po gćaṅ-mas g-yogs-pahi sten-du'. Since -ršt- is replaced by -lšt- in hālšti 'spear', but by -lst- in malsta- (see s.v. malys-), and -ržd- by -lysd- in mulysdi 'favour', in pvīys-:pvīsta- the -īst- may have replaced -īšt- either as variant after long vowel (beside -išt- preserved) or dialectal -št->-st- (familiar in West Iranian, southern -st- against northern -št- preserved, as in frēst-:frēšt- 'to send'). The base is then pṿaiz- (from puṿ-) pati-vaiz-* (or paiz- or baiz-, but the -v- would suit labial rather than k- or t-). IE Pok. 1120–2 u̯ei- 'to wrap, wind round', with increment u̯ei-ĝ(h) would give Iran. vaiz-. The Armen. lw vēz 'covering' can come from vaiǰ-*, or (if the -ž- is N. Iranian from -z-) from vaiz-. The vaig- would mean IE u̯ei-g(h)- beside u̯ei-ĝ(h) (a common variant form). See also patīšu 'coming' or 'covering'?

pvīrau 'you may hear', II 26·32·20 khu parau pvīrau 'when you hear the order', II 35·7·4 khu parau pṿīrau; III 120·59 cū ama pṿīrau 'what you hear', III 120·64 cu ama pṿīrau. See pvūṿ-.

pve 'blown up(?)', II 47·102–3 khu viña tta pve kamäcū bāḍä hamāte biśä hā haṃdara bāḍa-dījsā nūvara uha:va u bīrūka ūṃdā 'when now the Kan-ṭṣou state is so distracted, all the other state-holders, ūgās and buiruks, are settling'. From the context of disturbances in Kan-ṭṣou, pve is a pejorative adjective or participle. See earlier SDTV 112–3. Hence possibly 'inflated', see above puta-, Z 20·35 hāysä daundä putä 'skin blown up, inflated', like BS vāta-pūrita- 'filled with wind'.

pvai 'I hear', II 115·29 (and 30); II 99·198 pṿai, and II 11·35 khu ra tta pvai 'when I hear so'. To pvūṿ-.

pve 'learned(?)', Manj. 309 (of a man maddened by *graha-*demons) ā bu hvāñai salāva pahaisīda satva pve daittä gūnā paitta-krra īda (and a cure follows) 'or the *bhūta-*demon utters the words; the beings flee, the skilled scholar sees, he applies the treatment for bile' (BS pitta-kriyā). A meaning 'physician' would fit. Elsewhere vīja- (BS vaidya-) is used, named as the 'possessor of vidyā', that is, 'medical knowledge'. Here participle puta- 'trained, learned' (dyadic with gumāta-). Hence possibly IE Pok. 827 peu- 'to investigate, be intelligent', Lat. putāre 'reckon', Greek πινυτός, πινύμενος 'intelligent', O.Slav. is-pytŭ, pytajǫ, pytati 'investigate'.

pveca, pvaica 'covering', II 78·44 yaragaka va pvaica 'a covering for a (Turkish) yaryaq ('pelt')'; II 76·3 padāya pvaica 'a covering for the road(?)'; II 78·41 śīyāṃ pvaicāṃ jsa jsā yaḍama 'a (Turkish) yalma ('raincoat') with white coverings'; II 110·8 pajsa pveca 'five coverings', taken as bema 'woven stuff' by the āṣī (āryikā) nun; II 9·156–8 in a list ttu vai ysyai pvaica śā haiysdai kaumadai śai u haḍa baista chā u cīvarau phaurthaka śau būṣīnai śā pvaica āra 'that of his he carried off, one covering, to hand, one trousers and twenty feet of a cloak and robes (BS cīvara, -u 'and') and one phaurthaka (BS phuṭṭaka-), one pvaica of byssus cloth in value (āra- 'price' arga-*)'; II 51·95 (confused miscellany) baista pvaica 'twenty coverings'; II 77·24–27 (list sent to officials) ttaṣīkau kāḍara śau drrai śaca āra u pvaica dvī u baicakama dva u pūna drraya u dvī bvīrūkau u śā pyatsauṣaña u tvanakau hīyai ttarkana vaska pvaica haiṣte 'he despatched coverings (pvaica) both for two buiruk-officials and one woman attendant and the tarkan-official of the Tvanakas(?) (consisting of) one Tažik sword, valued at three śacī-silk pieces, and two coverings and two bičkam-knives and three coats' (not pūna, pūrna 'arrow'). The syllables -aica, -eca are like haṃbeca 'summary' from older haṃbirsta-, hence possibly pati-vṛsta-* to vart- 'to cover' (see s.v. pūlsta-). But possibly rather to base pau- 'to cover' (see s.v. pūstya-) to Zor.P. pōst (pavasta-) 'covering, skin', hence pavastya->pveca (for -c-, note II 100·215 pacai 'he ordered', older paste, parste). With ni- see also nyūḍ-, nyūltte (ni-vartatai*).

pvaiskha 'a food' in a list of foods, III 117r01 hūlāṃ pvaiskha hvaṣī; possibly from pāva- and suffix -iskha-, to O.Ind. apūpá-, pūpa- 'cake'. Possibly base pau- beside pā- 'to feed', as Av. bā-, O.Ind. bhā- beside Greek φαυ- 'to shine'. See pauṇḍai 'cake'.

pvesta-, pveṣta-, pvaistai, see puvaḍ- 'to fear', JS 18v3 pveṣtī 'you feared' (2 sing.); III 123·60 pvaistai, BS baya karayattī (=bhayaṃ kārayanti).

pveh- 'strike', see pvāh-, III 70·107 pveha:jsa 'by the stroke'; 3 sing. Manj. 353 na jsīda na vā pvaitta 'he does not strike (jsan-) nor does he beat (pvah-)'. See pvah-.

pha 'much, many', by loss of final syllable from pharu, first component phara- (as mara>ma 'here', pātcā>pā 'later') K 48·2·7–8 cva byāva īde pha, avamāta tta cvaṃ nä byāta 'what (acts) by me (cu-a⟨ṃ⟩) are remembered many, uncounted what are not remembered'; K 52·7·4–5 cu yuḍi pha śaḍe 'who did much good'. See pharu, pharā, phara. (JS has pha 7 times, phara- 6 times.)

-phaj- 'collect', JS 38r2 ca-ṃ nasphajāṃde mamī puña avamāta 'what merits (BS puṇya-) are uncounted are accumulated for me'. See also haṃphāj- 'wrap up'. Possibly base bag- 'get a share', with -ph- as haṃphuta- 'bowed down' beside haṃbujs-. For bag-, cognates s.v. būṣṣ-. Incohative haṃphīś-, Sid. 130r3 'join, mix', Tib. sbyar-na.

phaja 'oven', Sid. 153v1 u phaja veśtāñä 'and to be placed in the oven', Tib. me mar-mur-gyi nav-du bčug-la; Sid. 152v1 loc. sing. u phajiña viśtāñä; III 86·95 śī pau phaji pajsāñä 'the white onion to be cooked in the oven'; III 89·158 phaji-vaha pau 'oven-cooked onion'; III 93·251 śī pau, phaji pajsāñä 'white onion to be cooked in the oven'. Base phaji-, like ttāji- 'river', bāji- 'tribute, tax'. Possibly phaj- beside pajs- 'to cook', hence phaji- 'cooking-place'.

phajsai 'his rump', of the aśva-ratna 'horse-jewel' of the Cakravartin-emperor, Z 22·145 käḍe uysnäta balysga 'his rump greatly raised, high', parallel BS kaṭī. From phajā-* to O.Ind. RV acc. sing. sphigyàm with suffix -yá- (as āsyá- 'mouth', and pājasyá-, parts of the body). Hence -a- secondary from -i- (see also spavi 'spine', and nata- 'deep') to IE Pok. 983 sp(h)ei- 'be pointed', O.Ind. dual sphíjau, sphícau, sphigī 'hip, buttock'.

phaṃñā 'connected with the paunch', adjective plural, Sid. 100r1 cu ṣpaijai āchanai ṣā-v-ī arva, phaṃñā garṣva, ū bāṇā ṣavaraṃ 'who is ill in the spleen (ṣpuljei), this is his medicament, (bezoar-)stones of the paunch, and plant bāṇā ṣavara'. From pakana->phaṃna-*, to IE Pok. 789 pank-, pang- 'to swell', Lat. pānus (pank-no-*) 'swelling; ear of millet', pantex (panc-to-*) 'belly, intestines', O.Slav. pǫčiti sę 'be inflated'. From pantex, O.French pance, panche, Mod. French panse 'paunch'. Here adjective suffix -ya-ka-. For -akana->-aṃna- see also satana-, saṃna- 'dung', like hvatana-, hvaṃna- 'Khotan'.

phattanai 'palate of mouth', with -tta-, not -ta- (see facsimile BSOAS 36, 1973, plate 1, opp. p. 226), III 81·178 (corrected number) phattanai, gloss to Turkish ew 'broad part'; Sid. 156v1 paśtā phaṃnai 'palate at the back' (see paśtti), BS tālu-mūla-, Tib. rkan-gyi phug (phug 'end, innermost part'), III 130, 1a3 ci phaṃnai spalāte 'whose palate twitches'; I 177, 95v3 cviṃ phaṃni hūṣḍi 'whose palate becomes dry', BS tālu-śoṣa- (with -i for -iṃ=-ai). From pharu with -āka- suffix. See cognates s.v. phara-.

pharrā 'oppressed', v 87, 5or3 pharrā ysera dukhautta (triadic), BS paripīḍita-. Possibly from base phar- 'disturb', phar-na-ka-*>pharraa-, or phṛna-ka-* (since karna->kārra- 'deaf', but tṛna->ttarra- 'herb').

pharṣavatā- 'an official title', probably 'judge' as the 'official in questions', pharṣata, pharṣava, pharṣṣa, pharṣa, Tib. script phar-śa, par-śa, pa-śa; Z 19·95 pharṣavata parste pīḍe ysaṃbastä 'the official Zambasta ordered to write', Z 11·78 pharṣata ysaṃbastä parste pīḍe, Z 14·106 pharṣava parste pīḍe ysaṃbastä; II 13, 1a1 pharṣṣa bara, II 13, 1a4 pharṣa barana, II 69·1 tya pharṣa-vata vaṃña muho jsa amanä ma yanä 'may the official now not act unfriendly (BS amanaāpa-) with me'. For Tibetan II 28, 36b5 phar-śa. Hedin Tib. document IV 5; 6 pa-śa, par-śa (facsimile BSOAS 36, 1973, plates VI–VIII); Chinese transcript pʻo-ṣa<pʻuâ-ṣa (K 721·15; 846·1).

No bilingual evidence has been found, but the judge is known in Tibetan texts khrim-bon, khrims-dpon (v 196, 29a1 khrraṃbānā has either khram 'farm', or possibly khrim 'judge'). The judge is questioner; so in Tokhara B prekṣenta, A prakṣänt, O.Ind. prāḍ-vivāka. Hence pharṣavatā- contains fraša-pati-* with metathetic pharṣa- (-ṣ-<-ṣṣ-<-śš-) and final masculine -ā- stem derived from older -i- stem (as also spāta, later spā, Tib. script spa, from spādavatā-*, older spāda-pati-, parallel to BS senā-pati-, rendered by Tibetan sde-dpon). The Iranian fraša- is present also in NW Prakrit praṣaṃḍa (see pāṣāḍa above) corresponding to Greek οἱ περὶ εὐσέβειαν διατρίβοντες, and κατὰ πάσας τὰς διατριβάς (see BSOAS 14, 1952, 427–8; K. R. Norman, JRAS 1972, 113) for Prakrit sava-pāsaṃḍānaṃ. Avoiding the illusion of a 'pure' dialect at the Middle Iranian stage, pharṣa-, pharṣṣa is an inner Saka replacement of phraṣṣa-* (note the variation -ra- and -ar- in the base draz- 'to load', see draysa-, dāls-). As an extra-Saka loan-word it would require either a loan-word ending in -i- (replaced in Khotan Saka by -ā-) or a foreign word with masculine -ā- stem. For fraś- see s.v. puls-: braṣṭa-, and for phr- see phrrūma-.

phalau 'dish(?)', K 100·295 (obscure text), khāysa ttaujai u ttūra phalau śau 'food sour-stuff and cheese, one dish (?)'. See s.v. ttūra and ttaujai, base tau- 'be sour', cognates s.v. ttavaṃdya. Possibly phala- lw from Greek φιέλη, φιάλη, Mykenaean piara 'flat dish or bowl', through fyala-*, loss of -y- as in ḥātaa- 'opened' (viśātaka-*). The -au may be either -akam, or -āva-. See, for another Greek word for 'dish', lakāna lw from Greek λεκάνη, λοκάνη (III 89·175). But N.Pers. paiyālah, piyālah from patigāla-ka-*, see pai.

phast- 'move', Z 5·38 ku phastāri padamāna 'where they move with the wind'; III 35·25–6 padamyau phastāra brre garśa mīrāhę 'the pearls on the beloved's neck move with the winds', =III 37·21 padāmyā phastāra, =III 46·38 padamyau phastārā; participle present phastanda-*, III 80·26–7 bīmila phastadā sagā 'rocky rolling stones'. phī⟨.⟩, possibly phīra-, Z 24·520 kho ye brīnthi vīri hvātu vāñite phī⟨raī⟩ 'as one tosses upon the wind well-tossed the ears of corn', that is, 'winnows'. See above uysvāñātā 'he tosses up'. The cognate participle with hu- is archaic, as O.Pers. hufrastam prs-, O.Ind. subhṛtaṃ bhar- (J. Wackernagel, BSOS 8, 1935–7, 823–6) to base (s)p(h)ei- 'be pointed' from sphaira-*, Oss. D. äfserä, I. äfsir 'ear of corn', Zor.P. spēk 'sprout', Orm. ispēk 'barley'. IE Pok. 981, Lat. spīca 'ear of corn', O.Engl. spīr 'stalk, sprout'. See s.v. pīysgyau.

phīj- 'escape', III 63·138 saṃtsārä jsa phījāma 'escape from migration'. See also phīś- 'avoid', with cognates.

phiysgāna- 'urinary bladder', Sid. 121v2 phiysgāṃ, BS vasti-, Tib. čhu-so; loc. sing. Sid. 122v4 phiysgāña; I 143, 52r5 phaiysgāña; III 88·148 pheysgāñä. phīr- 'splash', see usphīr- 'spurt, splash', IE (s)p(h)er-.

phirai 'speech', see pharā-, II 126·21.

phīś- 'avoid, turn aside from', phyīś-, SuvP. 72v4 phīśīde akṣaṇa haṣṭa 'may they escape the eight misfortunes', BS bhavantu aṣṭā-akṣaṇa-vyativṛttāḥ; SuvP. 70v4 phīśīme asaidāna hirrna 'may I escape the evil thing', BS vivarjayeyaṃ khalu pāpa-karma; III 25, 22b1 biśau saṃñau jsa phīśāñä 'he must avoid all saṃjñā-concepts', BS sarvasaṃjñā vivarjayitvā; K 72·28 akṣaṇau phyīśi ysiyai 'he will in being born escape the misfortunes' (translation Buddhist studies in honour of I. B. Horner 16); Manj. 110 akṣaṇyau phīśe ysatha 'he will escape the misfortunes in birth'. With preverb naṣ-, see above. With phīj-, the base has final -k- or -g-, but the -ī- is ambiguous from -ai-, or -a- with i-umlaut, hence either (s)p(h)aik- or (s)p(h)ak- (or -g-). A base spaik- 'to burst out from' is found in Zor.P. spēč- of sprouts; and possibly is connected here as 'issue from' and so 'evade' in phīj-, phīś- with ablative. This gives (s)phaij- > phīj- and sphixś-* > phīś-.

phīs- 'strike(?)' or 'mark(?)', phīsūna- 'seal', L 95·1 and 95·36 phīsūnäna 'with seal', parallel BS mudrā; K 61, 39v4 u ṣä̆-v-ī prrattejña phīsūṃ 'and this is the seal of the promise'. Sogd. Bud. pyz- 'to strike', Av. paiš- (in pištra- 'wound'), O.Ind. peṣ- 'to crush, grind' with variant -k- > phīs- here. The alternative is śśī-phīsa- 'white', BS pāṇḍura-, pais- 'to mark'. The Sogd. Man. t'p- 'seal' may be from base IE tep- 'to strike', rather than IE (s)tep- 'to be expanded', see BSOAS 26, 1963, 84.

phīs-. see II 104·69 ūsphīsaryāṃ.

phīsa-, see SuvO. 36v2 śśī-phīsa- 'white', BS pāṇḍura-, base pais- 'to mark', N.Pers. pēs 'white'. See pīsai 'painter'.

phūkä 'red berry of pepper', Sid. 107r1 baṃdara phūkä, BS granthika-, Tib. pipilin čhen-po 'great pepper'. The 'red berry' of the pepper indicates a colour name fūka-*. Such a name is in Greek (from Homer) φῦκος 'seaweed; rouge, rouge-pot; orchil ('red on purple from lichen')', Hebrew pūk 'eye-ointment, antimony' is also quoted. Foreign origin is proposed for both Greek φῦκος and Heb. pūk. Khotan Saka phūka- also could be a loan-word. But IE origin can be posited: Greek φῦκος (from Homer) is 'seaweed' and 'orchil' the dye, red and purple, from the lichen roccella tinctoria; N.Norse fūki 'rotten sea-weed', and Armen. hou 'purulent blood' (with many IE words for 'pus', as Lat. pūr- (pūs, pūris), O.Ind. pūya-, pūti-, Greek πύος, Lit. púliau). This rottenness of red colour could thus give a colour name, red or purple. IE (s)p(h)eu- would provide φῦκος 'orchil', and Khotan Saka phūka- 'red berry of pepper'. From this same (s)p(h)eu- then derives also Greek reduplicated (to a base phu-r-) πορφύρα 'purple-colour'; Homeric adjective πορφύρεος as a colour-name (for a base in -eu- giving -eu-r-:-ur-, note O.Ind. kora- 'bend, joint', Av. kurit- 'neck-guard'). The isolated Hebrew pwk pūk* 'eye-paint' rendered 'antimony (black)', but perhaps rather 'rouge', may be a loan-word, as hinted in Driver, Hebrew Dictionary, and hence from Media.

Oss. D. fugä, plur. fugätä the name of a shrub rhododendron caucasicum derives from fūkä-* or pūkä-*; its flower has clusters of white petals with red tinge.

phūḍa 'hollow', JS 6r2 tta khu bāśa ysaṃgarä phūḍā bahyä pasūste 'as in a wood an old hollow tree burns'; V 287, 8r1 phūḍye baṃhyä 'of a hollow tree'. Similar Tokhara A 94a6 āsu trunkäts ṣtā⟨m⟩ 'dry hollow tree', Tokhara B troṅktse stām. Base phur- 'be hollow', with phurta-* > phūḍa- (see phūḍe 'food' base phur-), with phora 'hollow part (belly?)' to Armen. lw p'or 'hollow, valley, belly'. Hence a base fōr-:fur- possibly dialectal to kau- 'be hollow' through xuar-:xur-.

phūḍe 'food', II 86·35–6 phanä-kvaṇä hīye phūḍe 'the phūḍā-s of the Pan-kuan official', a Chinese title p'an-kuan (K 689·4; 447·1) 'accountant', see IV 108. From base fur- 'eat, drink', furti-* > phūḍā- 'food' in a context of khaysaṃ 'feasting' (xazana-*), to Sarīkolī fùr-:fùr-t; Šuγnī fur-:furt 'eat with a spoon', Iškāšmī fər- (G. Morgenstierne, Etym. Voc. of the Shughni group p. 32: possibly dialectal to hvar-), translated by Russ. xlebatĭ.

phūm- 'blow', III 45·9–10 phūmīdä ⟨ṣṭ⟩ā dīṣe vī brravīya padämaka, =III 40·4 phūmīdä ṣṭāṃ dīṣa vīrä jäsīūñą padämakä, =III 36·51–2 phūmīda ṣṭāṃ dīṣa vī brravīya pädamaka, =III 34·3 phūmīdä ṣṭā dīṣa vī brravīya padamaka 'the pleasant (variant celestial) breezes blow around' (BS diśā-). Base pu-, fu- 'to blow' with increment -m-, as khūm- 'open'; rū-, rūm- 'pull out'; tsūm- 'go'; Sogd. Bud. ptsr'wm- 'to charm'. For base pu- 'blow'. see s.v. puta- 'blown up'.

phuva 'rotted', Z 20·12 khu h⟨u⟩ṣ⟨k⟩ä banhyä handarna sūśtä phuva 'as a dry tree burns rotten within' as a cliché, see BS parallel Sūtrālaṃkāra-sūtra 345 (transl. See also phūḍe- 'hollow'. To base pau- 'rot' see s.v. puva, hambūta-.

phusta 'driven out', JS 29r3 maraṃ māñaṃde phusti geṣane dūmī 'its whirling smoke poured out like death'; II 40·26 (defective text) phustā. See vaphūste, naṣphusta-, naṣpūste, base paud- 'move swiftly'. For gūraphusta JS 2r1, see above, from base fraud-. To II 40·26, see SDTV 120.

phaiḍa, phiḍa-, phīḍa- 'distraught', see base phar-.

phaidäla 'pained (by kāma- 'love')', III 43·20–2 sūjaba āstaṃnā avāmāvä avātsīrai. . .pajsāsą kṣaṣṭā ysārā caistą phaidäla paṭjsaigau māstą ttrāmīdā hada baṃhyau phairīdā 'Śacīpati (husband of Śacī=Sūja, epithet of Indra) and the rest, countless apsaras-nymphs. . .fifty, sixty thousands, youthful, love-sick, enter in groups, intoxicated; they converse among the trees'. Base (s)p(h)ei-, if with Zor.P. pēm 'pain', O.Ind. piyati 'grieve; reproach', piyaru-, pīyú- 'scornful'. IE Pok. 792–3 pē(i)-:pī-, Greek πῆμα 'ruin, trouble', Got. faian 'blame', fijan 'hate', fijands 'enemy', O.Engl. fēon. Hence phaid- from fiyant-* > find-* (like khiṇḍa-), with suffix -ala-, or -ila-.

phema 'name of a city', frequent in documents; V 262, DR01, 11 phemā kṣīrā 'in Phema city'; adjective, V 304·05, 123 phemai ttāguttina 'from the Tibetan of Phema'; II 97·128 phaima maṃ pīrākā 'the writer here in Phema'. Associated with legend of a flying image as if suggested by a connexion of Phema with pęma 'image' (from Prakrit to pratimā). Adjective -āna-, IV 24·3 phemāña kiṃtha 'in Phema city'. Marco Polo Pein. (See J. Hamilton, T'oung Pao 46, 1958, 118.)

pher- 'to speak', III 68·74 ttye jsa va būñakya pherde 'he talked there in conversation with her'; III 43·22 hada baṃhyau phairīdā 'they talk among the trees' (see s.v. phaidäla). Verbal to pharā- 'speech', IE spel-.

-pher- 'make disturbed', causative to base phar-, see śiphera-.

phera 'distress', K 155·53 dārabaikṣa hīyi phera 'distress of famine' (BS durbhikṣa-). See base phar- 'disturb', from fārya-*.

pheha 'bad state(?)', K 45·22–3 ṣi pheha tta tta hīstā khvau vaña ṣṭe 'this fate will so occur, as it now is for us'. To pheh- 'eject', as 'state of rejection', like BS apāya- 'going away to ruin, perdition'. See s.v. phah-.

-phauṇḍa, -phāṃṇḍa, second component in the plant-name Sid. 137v2 aśa-phauṇḍä, Tib. saptaparṇa; Sid. 111·3 aśphāṃṇḍa, BS sapta-parṇaka-, Tib. ba-lhgal (mgal 'jawbone', ba 'cow'). Hence phauṇḍa- < funda-, punda- 'part of a horse's body'. The similar Pašto pūnda 'heel' is derived from pāšnatā* (NTS 12, 1942, 264), see above s.v. pārra- 'heel', and 'fetlock of a horse'. Note for the form muṃḍa- 'lump' from mṛgant-*. BS sapta-parṇa, -ka- is rendered by Alstonia scholaris and Mimosa pudica. Possibly puśn-* variant to vṛśn- in buṃū (as variants m-, b-, ph- see s.v. mīysai).

phora- 'external part of the human body', Sid. 100v5 peṇḍai padīmāñą phorą biṃdą bañāñą ṇaheje 'a poultice (BS paiṇḍaka-) must be made; it must be tied on the phora-part; it removes (the disease)'; Sid. 100v5 vīnaustą phorą bidą bañāñą vīna jīdą 'it must be tied upon the painful phora-part; it stops the pain' (BS vedanā-). Here phora- derives from phaura-* from older fāura-* (or (s)p(h)aura-) to base phur- in phūḍa- 'hollow', and Armen. lw p'or 'hollow, valley, belly', p'orak 'valley' (faura-*); for this -o- note also below solāte 'creeps', if this is connected with Armen. sol- 'to creep'.

phaura 'part of a medicament', III 85·73 hamārnai phaura dva bāga 'two parts (BS bhāga-) of this medicine'; III 88·155 saunai phāṃrā, namvīṃje uci jsa pāchai 'this medicament to be boiled in salt water'. Not identified. Possibly connected with phora-. See saunai 'powder(?)'.

phaurthaka 'cloth', II 9·157 cīvarau phaurthaka śau būṣiṇai śā pvaica 'garments (BS cīvara-) and (-u) phaurthaka-cloth one, of byssus one covering'. Possible lw in Divyāvadāna 29·7 phuṭṭaka- 'an inferior cloth'. A connexion could be envisaged with farva-* 'thin skin' (Oss. D. p'arūä, p'arä, I. xārv), see BSOAS 20, 1957, 49–50, through faur-* and suffixes farvaθa-*.

phyada 'friendly, loving(?)', II 114·15 māvara eysauja phyada samana bvaijsyā haphyau śūra pūñūda rauna kheṇḍa 'loving the mother the lady (alysāṃgyā-), seemly, with virtues, valiant, meritorious like Rāma'. Laudatory epithet, possibly dialectal Saka (or archaic) friyant-a-* participle to frai-:fri- 'love, be friendly', see cognates s.v. brya-. See also phrrīna- 'love, friendliness'.

phyaṣṭa 'shines', K 72·46 gara ysarni (-i=-iṃ=-ai) phyaṣṭa 'the golden mountain shines'. From fyas- to pais- 'be marked', śśī-phīsa- 'white'. For the form note mais- 'to mix', beside myas- (see Av. myas-). Not with pyaṣṭa 'visible'.

phyaṣṭi '(pointed) peak', K 36·113 gi(ri) byāśḍi phyaṣṭi bīma u ttrairkhye 'he will tread the mountain, peak, rocks and sharp tops' (BS tīkṣṇa-). Here phyas- from fyas- beside pais- 'be sharp' (Greek πικρός) to IE Pok. 794–5 peiḱ-. See also phyaṣṭa 'shines' from fyas- beside pais-. For the meanings 'shine' and 'pointed', note also taig-:tig-.

phyaṣṭe 'brilliant', III 80·23 gvagye baysgyä hvālai phyaṣṭe 'hills compact both brilliant'. See s.v. phyaṣṭa 'shines'.

phrramaina 'colour name', II 60·22 (SDTV 15) phrramaina kabala śā 'one kambala-blanket of silver-gilt (colour)'. Tib. phra-men, phra-myen, hphra-men 'silver-gilt' (see Acta Orientalia 30, 40). R. A. Stein BEFEO 41, 1941, 444 phra-men yi-ge-pa 'lettres de pierres précieuses'; M. Lalou, JA 1955, 195 (not translated). Possibly Iranian framēn* 'lucky', like O.Ind. peroja- 'victorious', from Iran. N.Pers. pairōzah for 'turquoise' and rājavarta- from Iran. lāžavard 'lapis lazuli', to M.Pers.T. prmyn 'luckly, happy' (and framēn- verbal 'be lucky'). G. Tucci, The Tombs of the Tibetan Kings, 79, has the meaning 'silver-gilt' with the Chinese equivalent.

phrrīnä 'love, friendliness', III 41·28 śūjāñāṣṭā phrrīnä paśīdä saiśai vaskā 'they give out mutual love for amourousness'; like III 41·32–3 śujāñāṣṭā nāśa paśīdā jūhai udāśāyą. Here phrrīnā parallels nāśa 'tenderness'. From frīna- (or frīvana-) with dialectal or archaic fr- kept, see cognates s.v. brya-. kilāy (see TPS 1955, 69–70), Tib. phyur-ba (čhurba), čhur-la 'a decoction from boiled butter-milk' (Jäschke Dictionary), 'a kind of cheese or curd from boiled milk' (Das Dictionary); Mahāvyutpatti 5691 kilāṭaḥ* (MSS kilālaṃ, kilāḍaḥ), Tib. čhur-ba, Chinese ṭṣī 'liquid, gravy, juice' (K 876·3). Hence phrrūmā 'thick milk', is from base frau- beside frau-š-:fruš-, Zor.P. (Gr.Bd TD 2, 110·11) plwšk in the phrase šīr plwšk homānāk 'like milk, thickened (beestings)', Pahl. Texts 113·6 šīr ut panīr afrušak ut māst 'milk and cheese, thick milk and curdled milk', M.Pers.T. prwšg (see W. B. Henning, BSOS 9, 1938, 86; BSOAS 11, 1946, 719 frwšk: not to Armen. hroušak 'sweetmeat', N.Pers.farūšah); G. Morgenstierne, NTS 5, 1932, 55 Pašto wurṣə, N.Pers. haraš, Sarīkolī rašč* (frušaka-*). The Armenian hroušak, xroušak is a 'sweetmeat of flour, butter, honey or sugar', N.Pers. farōšah, afrōšah 'a sweetmeat of flour, butter and honey'. From a base frau-, frau-š- a word for both 'thick milk' and 'thickened flour concoction' could be made. Hence a base for frau- would be IE pel-, per- with -eu- (whence -eu-s-). This could be IE Pok. 802 pel- words for 'flour', O.Ind. pálala- 'mush', Greek πόλτος 'mush of flour', Lat. pult-, puls 'thick mush of spelt flour'. Absence of a subscript hook excludes frauš- in phrrūma-. The phrr- for fr- is dialectal or archaic.

bagalagvā 'gallants (?)', II 85·16 (miscellany) bagalagvā śīśpaka-jsiṃma (-iṃ-=-ai-) 'the gallants (?) with amorous (?) eyes'. Uncertain, but possibly baka- 'sure, heroic', M.Pers.T. bg, with negative M.Parth.T. 'bg, with baga- in Oss. inscription Zelenčuk πακαθαρ, Georgian Chronicle os-baqat'ar 'hero of the Assi', Oss. D. bägu, I. bägū 'surely', plur. bägūdärtä 'heroic' epithet of the Nartä heroes; Qamberdiaty, Cin p. 24 bägūläg. Here lagva- would fit with Oss. DI. läg 'man' and with I. läquän, D. läppu 'boy' (qu>pp). Hence baga- 'heroic' with lagva- 'youth, esquire'. For πακαθαρ, see Acta Iranica, Monumentum H. S. Nyberg 1, 1975, 35. This connexion of lag- would be dialectal l-<d-, if the Ossetic and Ibero-Caucasian lag is from Iranian dahaka- (Khotan Saka, K 46·41 'male') as proposed in TPS 1946, 204; TPS 1959, 108 in citing bagala-.

baṃkṣya 'crooked (?)', K 64, 81v2 añānä baṃkṣya ttrīṣūña satva 'ignorant (BS ajñāna-), crooked animal beings' (BS tiryag-yoni-). Dyadic with tiryag- 'crosswise', to base vank- 'bend'. See also baji 'horse (?)'. IE Pok 1134–5 ŋek-, ŋenk-, O.Ind. váncati 'go crookedly', vakrá- 'crooked', with -s-, in O.Ind. vaṅkṣaṇa-, -ā 'loins', vakṣáṇā 'belly'. Hence baṃkṣya- < vanxšita-* or baṃkṣya- < vaxšita* (the subscript hook being secondary?); IE ŋek- in Av. nivaštakō.srva- 'with crooked horns'.

baṃggāma- 'cuirass', Z 24·278 haṣṭa śśäkṣāvatä baṃggāmu padande 'he made the eight *śikṣāpada-*commandments to be a cuirass'; Z 24·425 samu nä baṃggāmyau äspāta 'their refuge is just with their cuirasses'; III 44·41 parāḥ(ī)nai bagau 'the cuirass of *śīla-*morality', parallel to Pali Theragāthā 614 sīlaṃ kavacaṃ. In military orders, II 129·70 kaṃgīnai baṃgāṃ 'a cuirass of hide'; IV 24v2 baṃgāṃ; IV 21·5 baṃgāmāṃ. Base var- 'protect, cover', hence varka-* with -āma- suffix with differentiated -r- to -ṃ-. For -āma- note N.Pers. vāšāmah, bāšāmah 'covering, veil', Armen. lw varšamak, Georgian lw varšamang-i, varšamag-i, from var-š- 'to cover'. bīrä 'leash, bond', III 42·12–3 ttraiṣṇījsai bīrä jsa pāsa ttū mauñadä aysmū ñūṣṭārā 'a load with leash of desire (so BS tṛṣṇā), so they bind the mind'; duplicated and deleted III 42·10–11 ttraiṣṇījai bīrä jsä pāsą ttä ttū mauñada; III 42·11 sa khu jä ñūṣṭyai pyairä bīrä jsä hatsä 'just as one may bind desire with a leash', parallel to BS tṛṣṇā-pāśa-baddha- quoted s.v. ahva- and baittä; Manj. 39–41 sa khva pere bīra ñāṣṭa uysānā hīvī drauna ttu mäñada harbaśa satva aysmvīnai drrauna ttanvāre 'just as a leash of desire may bind the self with its own grasping, so all beings are drawn by the grasping of the mind'; Manj. 41–2 cu mī ttyai kṣamī narīda sattsārva bīrai jsa vāṣṭa tty[ā]e hīvī aysmva sa vasūjāña 'whom it pleases (=he who wishes) to escape the leash of migration hither, he must cleanse his own mind'. The BS tṛṣṇā-gardūla- 'leash of desire' gives the meaning of bīra-, which can then be traced to a base barb-, barbya-* (see above gir- <gṛbya- 'take') and so connected up with Sogd. Bud. "β'rβ ābarba-* rendering BS ankuśa- 'the elephant hook' to conduct the elephant. This barb- 'to lead, drive', can be traced also in O.Ind. RV 8·32·10 bṛbád-uktha-, epithet of Indra, 'leader of the song', and probably also in the RV name bṛbú-, in Greek βραβεύς 'judge, umpire'. See Donum. . .Nyberg 1954, 11; Indo-Iranica, Mélanges G. Morgenstierne, 8; BSOAS 23, 1960, 24–6.

bīrra- 'something carried as a load', II 16, 4a1 cu bīrrā barīdi 'what load they carry'; II 36·10·8 cu bīrri buḍāṃdi 'what load they carried'; II 26·31·7 b⟨ī⟩rra-barai 'carrier of the load'. From baranya-* (as ysīrra- 'gold' from zaranya-*, Av. zaranya, O.Pers. daranya-), to base bar- 'bear, carry', then bīrra- 'any load', but the base bar- 'cut (crop, plants)' would give 'load of cut hay (or corn)'. For bar- 'cut', see s.v. barnei 'split'.

bīrrai 'I fear' (doubtful -rr-), II 125·14 ma jsā ma ṣīkā ārä naiśta, hīña ysīra bīrrai ttā-ṃ bvąuma-vīnai vā-ṃ parya prraysarye 'here in fact I have not this fault; in my own heart I fear; deign to send me here guidance in the discussion'. Conjectural. In bīr- 'to fear' denominative from bai-:bī- with -ra- (cf. Armen. lw aha-vir-k' quoted s.v. baya-), hence bīr- (<baira-*). For bvąuma (distinguished from bvāma- 'bodhi-knowledge' by the hook?) connexion is assumed with būñā- 'talk'. For vīnaa- <vayana-ka-*, see vai- s.v. bay- 'to guide'.

birre 'with cut', K 20·2–3 kāḍara-birre raysaga vīra jsanauña 'with cut of sword, she must swiftly be slain', parallel K 28·178 kāḍara jse vara ṣṭau raysga vīra jsanauña, =K 37·118 kāḍarinai vara ṣṭāṃ raysgi vī jsanāñā. Hence kāḍara-birre =kāḍarina 'with sword' as second component birre may be traced to bṛnya-* 'cutting' to base bar- (see s.v. barnei). Note -ṛya- >-ira- in mār-, mir-, later mīr- 'to die' from mṛya- (see also bira- 'dress') and -rr- <-rn- primary contact or secondary in ysīrra- 'gold' from zaranya-. Short -i- in birre requires -ṛ-, not -ar-, hence bṛnya-* >birna* >birra-. The -e may be older oblique case -yā.

bīrai jsa 'with the leash', Manj. 42. See s.v. bīrä 'leash'.

bisa 'belonging to the house', II 90·83 haudā bisa hvaṃḍā hāysi bāstāṃdā 'they led away seventy men of the house'; II 20, 11b2 bisi hvaṃdāṃ 'of bisa-men'.

bisa 'vow, oath (?)', K 46·29 ttī prraṇahāna bisa avaśä nā 'then assuredly he took vows, oaths'; v 62, 24b7 pīrāmi jsa śā-bisa hvaṃḍā āchai jsa nariṃda 'through belief the men of one vow (?) escaped from disease'. To base IE Pok. 117 bheid- 'compel, trust', Greek πείθομαι 'am persuaded', πείθω 'convince', πίστις 'faith', Alban. bē 'oath', Lat. fīdō, fīsus 'trust', fidēs 'faith', Got. baidjan 'compel', O.Slav. bĕždǫ, bĕditi 'compel'. Hence bisa- from bhidh-so-*.

bīsa 'broken', Manj. 353 baiśa kīḍeśą bīsa padīme 'he makes all kleśa-afflictions destroyed'. From baisa-* to base baid- 'split, break', with -s- baidsa-* > baisa-* > bīsa. IE Pok. 116–7 bheid, O.Ind. bhed-:bhid-, Greek φείδομαι 'spare', Lat. findō, fissum 'split', Got. beitan 'bite', from bhei- 'strike'. See above bid- 'to split, cut off'.

He was the young (noble) of Būnīya; he sold the jade'. The au here as 'food' is traced to Av. avah- 'fodder', Nūristāni Aškun au 'bread', O.Ind. RV avas-ā-m 'food', see s.v. pyauśąka, and the bvaiysya is traced, with suffix -ya- to bveysa- below. For beer and wine in official documents note Turkish JRAS 1912, 219·10 iki kūp b(ā)gnī 'two butts of beer', and see s.v. mau. Places būnīya- and kadvaja (in adjective form -ja- suffix) and one loc. plur. bīsakvā of a people with also one personal name Kharaśau, are here concerned. A family name Av. Vaēsaka-, N.Pers. vēsah is known.

bisalū 'addition (payment)', either 'deposit' or 'earnest money' (see s.v. rāysai), II 13, 1a9 yagurā nauhyā salye mūri 2500 nāsti saṃ bisalū ni nāsti 'Yagura at the new year will receive (back) 2500 mūrā-coins, but will not receive (back) the "addition"'; II 14, 1c4–5 yagurā vā hīvye mūri 2500 nāsti samū haḍi bisalū ni nāsti 'Yagura will receive (back) his own murā-coins 2500, but however he will not receive (back) the "addition"'. Less clear are the two passages, II 64·6–7 ttūtī sīḍakā yīda u bisalū nä naradā himi 30 haḍā-v-ī narāmi 'that for him Sīḍaka will make, and the "addition" cannot issue (?), (but) in 30 days it does issue (?)'; v 3·1·10–11 khu ṣī mūpadatä bisalyū narāmī 'if this "addition" of Mūpadata issues (?)' (-ly- < -l-). From abi-sarduka-* to base sar- with increment sar-d- 'to join'. To IE Pok. 582 ḱers- 'mix, join' (see KT IV 95–6 for bases sar-). SDTV 8 is to be updated.

bisavānū 'of kinsmen(?)', III 68·77 bisavānū khu ṣā usthīye, śūje na-ṃ kṣārmā padiṃde 'when of them as kinsmen this was realized, to one another it caused them no shame'; gen. plural (with archaic -ānu retained) to bisvāra-, busvāra- 'kinsman'.

If connected with bvaysną gloss to Chinese cī-ma ttāṃ 'sesame sugar', that is bvazana-*, by i-umlaut bvazanya-*, this would give bvīysana- (as hīśśana-, hīśaṃ 'iron', Waxī īšn, yīšn from aśuanya-*), hence a 'sherbet', not necessarily from sesame seeds. From barz-: bṛz- 'increase', see bulysa- < bṛza-*.

bveysa 'a beverage', without -v- beysa-, III 47·62–3 spyakyau ājsavä bveysi haḅaḍä phaysdvä jastuñe khaśana asphīraci⟨ña⟩ hāysiñā, = III 40·17–8 spyakyau ājsävä bvaiysą habäla phaysdyai jästūñai khaṣą jsä asphīrätcaña hāysaiñā, = III 38·42 spyakyau ājsava beysa habäḍa phaysdve jastūñe khaśa va isphīraciña hāysaiña 'the bowls decked with flowers, filled with bveysa-liquor, from a fountain splashing over with royal (celestial) drink'. Two other names of liquor are associated here. Above bvaysnq glossing Chinese ci-ma ttāṃ seems to refer to some sherbet (sugary drink) possibly associated with sesame or a similar plant (this ci is used also of an 'immortal food'), whence by suffix -ya- bvazanya* > bvīysana-, bvīysna- (as hīśśana- 'iron' from aśuanya-*, and ysīrra- 'gold' from zaranya-), occurring in the passages cited above in a list īra-, hura-, haṃatcī (see above s.v. bvīysana-). The base bag- 'receive', resulted in a present theme bva-, and a participle buta-* > bva- (see above s.v. bv-), hence in bveysa- (latter beysa-), bvaysna-, bvīysana- the same form of base bv- < bag- is probably present. But this is the bag- 'to intoxicate' which alternates with mag- (earlier noted in AION I, 1959, 133–44). The older forms will therefore be bvaysna- < bagazana-*, bvīysana- < bagazanya-*; bveysa-, beysa- < bagauzya-* or bagāzya-* (-au- by i-umlant to -ve-, -e-, as hautā- 'force', oblique hvete, and haur-, hor- 'give', 3 sing. present heḍä 'he gives', or *-ā*ⁱ*-* > -e-, like bāḍa- 'time' loc. sing. beḍa). All three beverages were thus named for some toxic effect either weak or strong. Note here also Oss. D. bägäni, I. bägäny 'beer', Orkon Turk. bigni < bagani-*, Chorasm. bkny, from the same base bag-. Here too belongs baxšma-* in Ubix baxsma 'wine', Kazan Turk. maksīm, maksīma 'beer', Oss. D. maxsumä, I. maxsymä 'thin beer', Čerkes maxsəme, baxsəme, Al-Kāšyarī, Turk. buxsum 'beer from barley', formed by -šma- from bag-. There is also N.Pers. bōzah, bōzā 'beverage from rice, millet, or barley', Karačai Turk. boza 'beverage from millet', Russ. lw buza 'millet drink, thin beer'; Hungarian boza (which renders the Jass word oras in the Jass-Latin vocabulary in the MS of 1422, Oss. D. ūäras). This bōzah could derive from bvauza-* (without -ya- suffix) from oldest bagauza-*. For the suffix -auza-, note Oss. D. k'abozä, I. k'abuz 'branch' beside DI. k'abaz (occurring also in Oss. D. ängozä, I. änguz 'walnut'). Here too may belong II 100·217 bvaiysya nāvai 'he received (took) the liquor', from bveysa- with suffix -ya-. Note as support for this origin of bōzah that Turkish has bor 'wine' from Iran. mōδ* (Sogd. mwδy, mvδw), as well as bägäni and buxsum from Iranian (see for the development of Iranian madu-* 'intoxicant', the Silver Jubilee volume of the Zinbun-Kagaku-kenkyusyo 1954, Kyoto University, Madu, a contribution to the history of wine, pp. 1–11). For the adjective suffix -azana- assumed in bagazana-* > bvaysna-, note the similar -azna- in gavazna-* 'antelope', Khotan Saka ggūysna-, N.Pers. gavazn, Av. gavasna-.

From base mag- 'give what is due, pay', with Av. Yasna 45·10 təm nā yasnāiš ārmatōis mimaγšō 'him (Ahura) you may seek to pay with yasna-services for us with a view to ārmati-fortune'. To be set with O.Ind. RV. maghá- 'payment for service', the maghá- is given (maghá-tti-, magha-déya-), the possessor and bestower is the maghávan-. To maghávan- corresponds Av. magu- with professional suffix -u. Achaemenian and Greek usage of magu- has moved from the older religious meaning. See provisionally W. B. Henning, Memorial Volume, 33–4. A parallel to 'payment for service' to 'worship' can be seen in Greek λάτρον 'rewards, wages', λατρεύω 'serve for wages', and the use of -λατρία. mālai 'a kind of text', III 100·9–10 śvrrai u mālai ṣṭīka ttī jsā jāvā ttyau ysyai hūrāka khū ācārī prrabhā (in a list of the skills of an ācārya- teacher) 'the texts śvrrai and mālai, commentary (BS ṭīkā), then also jāpaka- prayers'. With the magical mālakya-, the base māl- may be traced to dialectal manθra-, māhra-* (for -l- note s.v. ttīla- 'wire' tarθrya-) or marta- with -l- replacing -ḍ- (see habala-), or possibly -l- through -δ- < -θ-. This variety of possible older forms connects it with Av. mąθra-, Zor.P. mahr, M.Parth.T., Sogd. Bud. m'r- (see above mātṛvālai) 'a magical formula'; rather than mar- 'to memorize', or māθ- with Zor.P. mātiyān (m't''n), Armen. lw matean, Georgian mat'iane 'book, register'. Hardly a lw from BS mālā 'garland' occurring in titles of books, as Sid. 1v5 yauga-mālyo jsa.

mālaiga 'catarrh disease', Sid. 155r1 mālaigą-vī, BS pratiśyāyī 'catarrhal', Tib. čham-pa ('head-cold, catarrh');

Sid. 13v5 mālaigä u uysna āphārä 'catarrh and disturbance of breath', BS pratiśyāya-, Tib. cham-pa dav, dbugs mi bde-ba; I 171, 87r5 mālaiga, BS prattiśū (for pratiśyā-). Compound, sing. māśa-vīrai (after proper name) IV 6·14; II 27·35·2; II 27·35·3; 35·4; 35·5; plural, II 23·19·3 māśa-vīrā birgaṃdara hvaṃḍi 'house-workers, men of Birgandara'; II 20, 12a3 miḍā jasti hīyā māśa-vīrā āstaṃna paśā a⟨vaśāna⟩ 'commissioned, non-commissioned officials of the gracious god's (=king's) own house-workers'; from māśa-kīraa-, see -vīraa-, s.v. kṣīra-. To mās- with -ya- suffix mās-ya-* > māśa-, from mas- in Oss. D, māsug, I. māsyg 'tower', Pontic Greek μόσσυν, μόσσυνος, μόσσυνοις 'wooden tower-like building', Slav. sunū 'tower', Greek μοσσυνικοί 'large wooden boards', Μοσσύνοικοι inhabitants, south of Pontos euxeinos. Possibly Av. mišta-, if beside mašta-*, Vid. 18·28 nmānəm...baēvarə.mištəm 'a dwelling with 10,000 towers (?)', Zor.P. bēvar mas '10,000 greater' as reward to righteous man (ašavan-). The base may be mā-:mi-, m-, m-a- 'to measure', extended to 'build', as Oss. D. amajun, I. amajyn, amad 'to build', DI. läg-amad 'stately, heroic', I. cänd-amad 'bank, ridge' (D. cändä, I. cänd heap). IE Pok. 703–4 mē- 'measure', see pamāta- for cognates.

māśąkä 'plant name', see māśąkyi, III 92·237 u na-ānahā anarva māśąkä tcerą 'and (a poultice) must be made with the māśąka- plant unmoistened (dyadic)'.

māśąkyi 'plant name', I 161, 75v3 māśąkyi rūniṃ (-iṃ =-ai) 'mācikā-, madder' BS māttraka-maṃjiṣṭā. With -śi- and -śą-, māśįkye 'a potherb (?)', Sid. 111 māśąkye =V 320·93 māśąkye, BS sāṅgaṣṭā, Tib. śārṃgasta, Sid. 143 māśįkye, =V 323·153 māśįkye, BS sāṅgaṣṭhā, Tib. śarṃgastha. The name māśikyā- is likely to be the Prakrit of BS mācikā-, glossed by the Dictionaries by hibiscus cannabinus (so S. Konow to I 161, 75v3); absent from the Bower MS; but kāka-mācikā- is solanum nigrum (or indicum). BS śārṅgaṣṭā- is 'a kind of potherb' (also a tree). BS māttraka- has not been traced.

māśta 'month', see māstā.

ṃāśḍi 'favour', III 128·14, =mṵṣḍi, adjective, III 129·7 ṃāśḍīji ḅāyi 'ray of mercy'. See mulysdi.

māṣṭa- 'oppression, oppressed', V 307·1·3 tvarau āṃ māṣṭā jsa jvīhyi 'for you (-ū) exceedingly under oppression of love (jūha-)'; participle as second component III 101·39–40 garma-māṣṭai kaśą nūyą pātca kaśa jsāvä garma-māṣṭai nātte 'heat-oppressed do you lie down in the chamber; then he goes into the chamber heat-oppressed he lies down'. Parallel to BS Suvarṇabhāsa 101·4 gharmārta-; and O.Ind. uṣṇārta-. Since -ršt- is retained in dārṣṭa- 'held', base darz- (see s.v. drays-), and replaced by -lst- in uysmalsta- 'rubbed', base malys-, here māṣṭa- is rather from base maz- 'press', see vameys- 'to massage by pressing'. IE Pok. 696–7 mag̑- 'to knead, press, smear', Iranian Orm. maz-:maṣṭak, mēz-:muštuk 'it breaks' (intr.); Pašto māt 'broken', Yidγa maz-:mōšk'-, mōz-: mašč- 'kill'; Orm. maz'ēk 'twist', Pašto mazai, 'twist thread', mezzai 'thread, cord', adj. yāla- 'evil', yālajsa, see yola-.

yi 'his, for him', see s.v. ī, enclitic -i.

yä, yi, ye 'someone', V 69, 8r5 ttānu ye ysurgyā ṣṭānā ttarandaru guhei 'of them some one harms the body, being angry', BS G 37, 11b5–6 duṣṭa-rudhira-cittam utpādayet, Tib. gnod-sems bskyed-pa-bas ni; V 69, 8v2 ttī ye (rather than ttīye=ttītā) aruvẹ saṃkhalī 'then someone smears medicaments on', BS G 37, 12a4–5 atha sa puruṣaḥ kena cid bhaiṣajyena pralimpet, Tib. de-la des sman. . .bskus-na. From pronoun ya- indefinite (not from ce).

yūṣị 'soup, broth', archaic y- maintained, II 73·178; 179; 181; 182; from yūśa-*, for -ś- preserved as -š- note also pāṣạ- 'force'. IE Pok. 507 ịeu- 'to mix' with -s-, ịōs-, ịos-, ịōus-, ịous-, ịūs- 'brew', O.Ind. yūṣ-, yūṣá-, yuṣa-, Lat. iūs, iūris, Lit. jiùšė (ịūsiịā*), O.Slav. jucha (ịousā*). With -to- suffix O.Norse ostr 'cheese', Finn. lw juusto; further with Greek ζῦθος 'beer', ζύμη 'yeast'.

yeṃ 'I was', vyeṃ, see ya-, vāta-, older V 142, 13r2 aysu braṃmanaṣṣai vātāmā 'I was a brahman's son', BS G 37, 7a3 ahaṃ māṇavo bhuvaṇ (=-ṃ); III 131·8 paśāñā yeṃ (and ibid. 10); III 131·6 a jūṃdai yeṃ.

yeśauna, yaśaina 'from migration', K 148·52–3 parye yeśauna jsāṃ śrī vījątti saṃgrauma raudi 'the honoured (BS śrī) king Vijita Saṃgrāma escaped from migration'; Manj. 439 parye yeśauna pīsā āśg 'escaped from migration the teacher, the arya-monk'; Manj. 437 parya yaśaina rradāna rrada viśų sabava jsa 'with the king of kings Viśą Saṃbhava escaped from migration'. The meaning is got from the parallel II 50·40 parya saṃtsāräna 'escaped from migration' (BS saṃsāra-). Hence yeś-, yaś- 'to revolve' from adivṛts-y-* or dialectal y-<v-vṛts- see above baiś- 'make turn', bęs- 'to turn'. (adi)vṛtsa-* with suffix -ai-, -au- or -aina-, -auna- (and -na<ṃna). An alternative is possible, vi-vṛts-*>ivṛts->yes-.

yaujsi 'operation (?)', II 127·37 paryāṃ paśte si invaśtā maṃ ttikye yaujsi ṣṭe 'we deign to state that it is a difficulty here in this operation'. Translation AM, n.s., II, 1964, 18. Possibly base yaug- 'to join' (with -āu- as in āyoysa- 'agitation'), hence 'affair, operation'. The initial y- may be archaic or derive from yy- (<adi-y- or abi-y-), see yyauvaka-.

yondämä 'we spent, passed', Z 19·21 jīvätu yondämä 'we spent our life', parallel to BS yāpaya-, jāpaya-, dhriya- 'maintain life'. Base yam- 'to hold', yonda-<yām-ta-*, see tsām-:tsoda- 'swallow', nam-:nonda- 'bow down'. The initial y- is either archaic or from yy-<adi- or abi-. For yam- see jam-, gyam- 'adhere'.

yola- 'falsehood', in list of evil acts, Z 19·80 atäraīī yole drūje ṣkālsī māstā 'ingratitude, falsehood, lies, great pride'; Z 24·268 cvī śśaṭhe byūgga drūje īrye yole 'who has tricks, abuses, lies, cunning, falsehoods', V 115, 64v3 ggūrāsa haṃdrūṣa yaule hämāre 'disputes, quarrels, falsehoods occur', BS vivādāḥ kalahāḥ śaṭhyāḥ; V 115, 63v6 śśaṭhyau jsīrgyau yaulyau hauśṃdā 'they carry off with cunning, trickeries, falsehoods', BS śāṭhya-kāryebhir haranti; N 168·36 bustī śśaṭhe yole 'you knew the cunning, falsehoods'; III 123·54 yāla ne hūña 'he does not speak falsehood', BS mṛṣā na kathayati; V 62·21 haṭha ṣṭāti ā yaula 'truth may exist or falsehood'; adjective, III 14·17 u hve yaulajsi hime u sahautti ⟨ni hime⟩ 'and he becomes a false-speaking man and is not fortunate' (BS sukhita-); III 123·59 yālajsa, BS mṛṣa-vādi; abstract, III 121·4 na yāṃlāśta huña 'he does not (or 'do not you') speak falsehood' (yaulaustä*). Outside Khotan Saka, Uigur yawlaq, yablaq 'evil' and Tokhara B yolo, BS pāpa- (A omāskeṃ) may be adduced. If the Uigur -b- is the older form yab- it, as loan-word from Saka, supports derivation from the base dab- 'to deceive', to Av. dab- (cognates s.v. dyūka-) with a preverb. Since vi-dab- is attested in M.Parth.T. wdyfs- 'be deceived', wdyftg, wdybyšn, M.Pers.T. wyyb-, wyptg, wdyb 'deception', Zor.P. wyd'p'nyk (vidāβānīk*) 'deluded', Pahlavī Psalter wydyptk'n, yola- may derive from a dialectal form idab-*<vidab- (like Oss. D. ūi-, beside i-< abi- see s.v. byāna-) rather than adi-dab-. Hence vidab(a)la->iyaβla-*>yaula-. Note also yy- in yyauvaka- below.

yausa 'musk', I 179, 97v4 yausa, BS kastūra-, III 78·15 yausa, Chinese śa hvyāṃ (K 865·2; 142 ṣə-hiang, dźia xiang) 'musk'; III 38·42 yausa jsa varkāṃdä, =III 40·18–19 yāṃsą jsa vārkāṃdä 'strewn with musk', K 63, 79v3 parkāṃda ḅā yausa 'strewn perfume musk', K 63, 79v1 vaśaiṣṭai yausä 'distinguished musk' (BS viśiṣṭa-). From yafsa-*, beside Sogd. yysh, for Chinese 'musk', W. B. Henning, BSOAS, 11, 1946, 727 from yaxsā-*.

yyauvaka 'butterfly (?)', III 47·41 yyauvaka sāñīda ttu spyakūḍä pavanakä 'the butterflies (?) rouse the flowery pollen', =III 37·23 yāṃvaka sāñīdä ttū spyakūḍa patanakä, =III 35·27–8 yyauvaka sāñada ttū spyakūḍi pavakä, conjectured from the context; 'birds' could also suit. The yy- only in this word may indicate a preverb before a base yau-, or a reduplication yi-yau-* of repeated movement. Note the reduplication in Lat. pāpiliō, O.Engl. fīfealde, OHG fifaltra to base IE Poj. 798 pel- 'fly' and IE ụe-ụer- in names of the squirrel (Pok. 1166).

-yv- 'to heat (?)', III 88·154 u śau hā tvī tvī āyvāñä uskä vaśe prrahāje 'and one must be heated (?), each one, it opens the bladder upwards'. Either tap- 'to heat', or dau- 'to smear' could result in ā-yv-.

From zara-kara- (or possibly zaram-kara-) 'making old age' with anticipatory dissimilation of r. . .r to n. . .r, see also s.v. maṃgāra-, and candarno. Cognates s.v. ysare 'old age'.

ysaṃgauña 'plundering', II 38·17·4 kīthi vā ysaṃgauñā huna parrya 'into the city, the plundering (?) Huna (men) entered', translation IV 122. Possibly from zang- 'to seize', see biysaṃj-, niysīya-, niysīs-, then from zangāun-ya-* to suffix -āvan- (see *naḍe nṛtāvan-).

ysaṃña 'in the heart', SuvP. 66v2 khīrai ysaṃña 'grieved (dark) in heart', BS dīna-mānasāh, loc. sing. to ysära- 'heart'; older Z 24·255; 494 ysraṃña.

Mug document z'mn'k 'with payment' (see V. Livšic, Bračnyj kontrakt, p. 88). The earliest Indo-European marriage was 'payment for the bride', hence the zam- 'to pay' of the noun of relationship Av. zāmātar- 'son-in-law', zāmaoya- 'brother of daughter's husband', Sogd. Man. plur. z'mt'yty 'sons-in-law'; Zor.P. dāmāt, N.Pers. dāmād, Pašto zūm, Wanetsī zōm, Parāčī zām, Yidγa zamai, Sanglēčī zəmūð, Balōčī zāmaθ, to O.Ind. jā́mātar- 'son-in-law', jāmi- 'related', djāmi- 'not akin', vijāmi- 'related by marriage', jāmā 'daughter-in-law', Greek has the verb γαμέω 'marry', ἔγημα and γαμβρός 'son-in-law', Lat. gener (gen- < gem-). Possibly Lit. žéntas, O.Slav. zętь, Russ. zjatь 'son-in-law' would suit better here, if Lit. -nt- replaces -mt- (unlike šimtas 'hundred'). The verb can be seen also in Sogd. Chr. w'zms 'he repaid'; 'wz'm- 'requite, repay'. See also for Sogdian M. Schwarz, Acta Iranica 11, 5, Monumentum H. S. Nyberg 1969, 195 ff.

ysaṃbasta- 'man's name'. Since 'garlic' or 'split' hardly offers a name, a different source seems likely. Possibly 'with (prominent) jaw'; note also Armen. zambik 'mare'; and the Celtic name cam-bél* 'crooked-mouthed' (Campbell).

ysamye 'vitriols' ('black pigment'), Sid. 12v4 ysamye dvī śā puṣkīja u śā hauṣta, BS kāsīsa-dvaya-, Tib. nag-ćhur; I 177, 96r2 ysamyā hauṣta, BS kāsīsa-. Indian medicine knows two kāsīsas, one hari-coloured and one lohita-coloured; puṣpa-kāsīsa- 'of white and black colour'. The kāsīsa- is classified as an upadhātu- 'secondary mineral'. D. äsmäg, ismäg, DI. smäg 'vitriol of copper'; D. c'äx-xūasä, I. c'äx-xos 'vitriol of copper' ('blue powder'). Since Oss. DI. sämän 'axle' seems to contain aša- (Av. aša- 'axle') by loss of a- after addition of a suffix -am, it seems that Khotan Saka ysamyā-, N.Pers. zamč may derive from az-*:z-am- with further suffix; this az- may be the ays- of aysūra-gūna- 'of aysūra-colour' above. The N.Pers. zāγ-čašm 'blue-eyed', Oss. c'äx-xuasä 'blue powder' make it likely this colour was 'blue'. The Khowar oçōnu 'blue-grey used of eyes, dark grey, of horses', from oç, oçh 'vitriol', O.Ind. akṣa- supports this. With further suffix the aǵ(h)* of (a)z- gave aźśaina-*, see above āṣṣeina- 'blue' with other cognates. Iranian had raxš- 'to make sure', preserved in Armen. lw eraśx-k' 'guarantee' (E. Benveniste, TPS 1945, 71) but Av. raš- to injure; BS rakṣā-, rakṣati is frequent and the source of Khotan Saka rakṣ-; or possibly coalescent Iranian and BS.
ragai 'fermented liquor (?)', III 73·171–2 ṣai tta hve sä nāra-ṃ ysä puṣṭaka va āṃ tsīṃ, dahaka-ṃ sattakä ṣṭe, khva-ṃ na hama ṣkūṭa ragai 'he (the ant of the folk-tale) spoke to him (the king), saying, My wife has borne a young one; I am going to get a strengthener; for me it is a male child; how should I not have liquor in my throat?'. This conjectural meaning can be supported as follows. From the two ends of the Saka sphere of dominance are attested two words which may come from the same base as ragai. This ragai is from older raka-* or ranka-/ranga- (with -aka- suffix). The one fermented drink of the nomads (such as the Saka were) was fermented mare's milk. This is known in the Avestan ritual text Nīrangastān 50a3–5 hurā glossed by maδō aspya.payaŋhō 'intoxicant of mare's milk', in Zor. Pahlavī hur explained as asp-pēm 'mare's milk'; in the non-ritual text Draxt Asōrīk (Pahlavi Texts 113·4) anōšak hur is 'immortal drink' (not here mare's milk), see below s.v. hurā-. From the east the Chinese (2nd century B.C.) reported that the western nomads had a drink called in archaic Chinese glâk, later lâk (and in modern pronunciation of an antiquated word lau, lo, K 411·13; the Japanese has raku for words in this series) made of fermented mare's milk. For this word lo see E. Pulleyblank, AM, n.s., 9, 1962, 249–50 who pointed out that it had been mistakenly connected with Arabic 'araq. From the west in the Ossetic Nartä epic tales the heroes drink rong (<ranga-), now known as name for a fermented honey drink in the K'art'vel languages Svanetian, Megrel, and the Račinskij dialect of Georgian rang-. V. Abaev, Osetinskij jazyk i fol'klor I, 1949, 299, reported the K'art'vel words and ibid. 348–53 told the story of his discovery of rang in Svanetia. Since the nomads did not carry about bees with them, this Saka word ranga- has shifted its old meaning from fermented mare's milk to fermented honey, mead. These three words glâk, Khotan Saka ragai and Oss. rong, K'art'vel rang- illuminate one another.

If the derivation of hurā- from IE Pok. 912–3 seu-, O.Ind. sírā 'intoxicant', Lit. sulà 'tree-sap', =Let. sula; O.Prus. sulo 'thickened milk' is noted, it makes reasonable a Khotan Saka derivation of ragai from rahaka-* (with -aka- suffix) to IE Pok. 536 res- 'flow', in O.Ind. rásа- 'sap', rasá 'moisture'; Av. ranhā- the river, later arang; Lit. rasà 'dew', O.Slav. rosa 'dew'. Note how the word for 'vein', M.Parth.T. rhq rahaka-*, is Khotan Saka rrā-, Sogd. Man. r'k with similar treatment of -aha-. Note also BS rasāyana- 'elixir'.

The archaic Chinese glâk poses a problem with its g-. B. Karlgren had noted that archaic Chinese had no syllable lak for a foreign word and hence had to use glâk (DLZ 1926, Zu den frühesten Verbindungen zwischen China und dem Westen 1959–1962, on column 1961). But if the g- were intended for a foreign g- or γ- two cases arise. Firstly the g- may have no longer been pronounced when glâk was used for the foreign raka-*; at some date the g- ceased to be sounded within Chinese, leading to lâk. Then the above origin of ragai will stand. But secondly if the g- represented a foreign Iranian g- (=fricative γ-) this sound may have been lost in middle Iranian Khotan Saka as g- was lost in nag- (see banaj- 'to gnaw') beside Av. γnixta-, IE Pok. 436–7 ghen-, ghn-egh-. A joint connexion of ragai from glaka-* extends to Greek γάλα, γάλακτ-, γλάγος 'milk'. If these Greek words are associated with O.Ind. Vedic jálāṣa- and Hittite galaktar- (as proposed by T. Burrow, Henning Memorial Volume 89–97) assuming IE ĝal-, it would not suit Iranian glaka-* since IE ĝ- is Iranian z-, but the connexions can be retained from IE gal-, when O.Ind. jálāṣa- has j- from palatalized g'-. Add to this O.Ind. jala- 'water' (secondary BS jaḍa-) retaining the unspecialized meaning (as Lit. sulà 'sap', against Av. hurā-, and O.Ind. rása- beside rasāyana-).

rūkīja 'food', K 15·123 rūkīja ttära paj(ā)mi phara thaga 'foods exist, begging, much exaction (=tax)', =K 31·26 rrūkīji ṣṭāre pajāme phari thāgä (thā- for thaṃ-) 'foods exist, begging, great taxes', =K 23·72 naiśta khuysa ttī jsāṃ buga 'there is not food (khāysa-), then also provisions' (BS bhoga-). Hence rrūkīji 'food', equated with khāysa-, bhoga-, can be traced to base rauk- 'to desire, please, satisfy' (see s.v. rrauṭā 'desire'). Connexion with 'food' in Zor.P. rōčīk, Armen. lw roč'ik'-i, patroučak 'sacrificial animal', Georgian lw roč'ik'-i, N.Pers. rōzī 'food, provision, goods' (reinterpreted as connected with rōč- 'day'). In rrūk- the intervocalic -k- indicates secondary contact of k-k (or -t-k- or -p-k-). Tokhara B rok- 'to please' (if not from BS rocate 'it pleases') would give IE reuk- distinct from IE leuk-, in Iran. O.Pers. rauča- 'day'. But it would also be possible to trace rrūk- to IE lau- 'enjoy', Greek ἀπο-λαύω (IE Pok. 655), O.Ind. lota- 'booty', and hence distinct from rauk- 'to please' and rauk- 'to shine'. For rrūkīji, rūkīja the origin would be rauka- with -ka- and adjective suffix -īnaa-, fem. -īṃjā-. See also ārrji 'provisions (?)' from ā-rūča-*. For the double suffix -akaina- one can point to Oss. D. nomgin nāmakaina-* 'having a name'. Translation BSOAS 29, 1966, 507; 519.

rūkyāṃ 'official title', gen. plur., II 77·6 bīrūkāṃ śā u rūkyāṃ va śā 'for the bīruka-officials one and for the rūkya-officials one'. The title bīrūka- is Turkish buiruq. The association of the two titles rūkya- (from older raukya-*) and Turkish buiruq may indicate identical bases. Turkish buyur- 'to command' can be set beside Khotan Saka rau-:ru- 'to command' (see s.v. parau, parsta- and rre, rrund-) from the base vrau->rau-. Note also rautcū variant to rruud- 'ruler'. In form rūkya- is from (v)rauka-* with adjective suffix -ya-, of agent, rather than gen. plural -yāṃ. Since the Saka title karalranga, kanārang and barmak (Saka from BS pramukha- 'prior of a monastery') are found in the Persian Islamic sources, this title rūkya- may be traced in the title rwḥ' in Arabic script for rwj' or rwč' or rwx' (rōjā, rōčā, rōxā) assumed by Vīrō in the poem of Vēs u Rāmēn of Gurgānī (ed. M. Minovi, 54·42 and ed. M. J. Mahjūb, 41·42), commented upon by V. Minorsky (BSOAS 11, 1946, 24–5). From a Saka raukya-* a later form would yield rōča-* (as -gy- became -j-). The long -ā of such a rōjā or rōčā would assimilate it to adjectives in -ā (from older -āka-). For the variation of -k- and -c-, note also the two words mvakalai 'glove' (base mauk-) and baucą- 'hat' (base bauk- varying with mauk-). The older base rauka- of rūkyāṃ is attested in the ethnic name Σακαραυκοι (variants Σακαυραικοι, Sacaraucae, Saraucae), see recently K. W. Dobbins, Antichthon 8, 1974, 77, corresponding to the Chinese sai-uang 'Saka-ruler(s)' (K 773·2 sə<sak).

V 111, 33r5 rrusïte, BS rājatvaṃ; K 42·120 haṣṭāṃdä hīya ysäta śaṃdä rruste 'they sent him to rule his own native land'; see above rusti. Derivative uncertain from various possible older forms. If the word is 'expressing one's own will, autocrat' the base var-:vr- 'to assert' could give vravant-* vruvant-*, >rrund- to Av. urvāta- 'command' (as proposed KT VI 311). The base rau-:ru- 'to make noise', paru-: parsta- 'to command' could also be considered. The connexion with inscriptional Saka muruṇḍa- from mrau-: mru- 'to speak' seems excluded by the absence of initial m-. The meaning of rai-vant-* 'rich' hardly suits and -ai- would hardly disappear without trace. The forms are rva-* with suffix -īya- rruīya- 'royal', nom. sing. rvānh* (base rvan-*)>rre; the oblique rrund- is from rvant-*; rrustä from rvat-ti-*. If one assumed a meaning 'possessor' (like the royal Vedic title bhoja-) the base could be ar-:r- 'to get, possess', for which see TPS 1959, 71 ff., with Vedic drya- glossed by īśvara 'owner, lord' (with suffix of agent -ya-). See also rrāsti (s.v. rrusti) and rraustä. With pronoun K 44·178 rre-t-ū pasti 'the king ordered them', =K 41·59 -rre-t-ū pasti, K 41·56 rre-t-uṃ, =K 43·174 rre-t-ū.

Suffix detached as separate word from pronouns ttilaka-, dilaka-, vilaka-, cilaka.

-laka-, suffix to pronouns, ttilaka-, ttīlaka, dilaka, vilaka-, cilaka, as meaning 'amount' or 'size'. Thus III 93·262 u ttilakä|||; III 92·239 ttilakä hā gyīhą rūṃ tcerä 'so much cow's oil (= butter) is to be used'; III 84·38 ttīlaka hā haumai vimathāña 'so much barley is to be pounded up' (like III 93·262 hāmai vamathāñä); II 91·93–4 ciṃga kṣīrāṣṭä vā rrvīyi muśḍä cilaka āva 'to the Chinese land how great a royal favour (= donation) came'.

-laka-, suffix to nouns and adjectives; 1. to nouns, Sid. 147r1 ysuhalakä jsa 'by the filter', Tib. čhags-las, beside ysunä jsa, ysunakä jsa and ysve jsa; III 108·7 paijalakvā 'in the breasts', with piṃja-; III 102·49 āṣkālakyau jsa 'with tears'; II 75·63 agalakvā 'in limbs', with aṃga-; 2. to adjectives, Sid. 151r1 śikalaka 'good', with śīrka-, Tib. legs-par; Sid. 145r2 bakalaka 'small', with bata-, bataka-; III 84·38 hugalakä 'soft', with hulga-; III 84·39 ttaṃgalakaña (loc. sing.) 'thin', with ttaṃga-; II 107·170 ṣīkalakau 'young', with ṣīrka-; Sid. 143r3 naukalaka u haugä (dyadic) 'soft', to nauna-, naunika-, Tib. hjam-źiṅ snum-pa dan 'soft and fat'; to loan word, II 60·b1 thavalaka 'bag', BS sthavika-. The same suffix occurs in Orm. hanwalk 'egg' (āvyalaka-*), Kurd. hilka 'egg'.

lakāna 'basin', III 89·175 dīnai hā grīṃja lakāna vīśtāña 'under it a clay basin is to be placed'. Loan-word from Greek λεκάνη, λακάνη, Armen. lw lakan, lekan, lekan, Syriac laqn-ā, N.Pers. lakan, lagan, Arab. lakan, laqan, O.Russ. legin. Here lakāna- associated with words in -āna-. Note also, though not in Khotan Saka, the Greek μηχανή 'machine', in Pašto mečan 'handmill', Orm. mučin, Armen. lw mek'enay, mek'anay, menk'enay, adjective menk'enauor, plur. mek'enay-k'. Yidγa has lingōn, Munǰānī lаŋgōn 'hand-mill', Yidγa luŋgōn. For 'dish', see also K 100·295 phalau with Greek φιάλη, φιέλη.

-laga- 'man (?)', as second component, II 85·16 (miscellany) baga-lagvā śīśpaka-jsiṃma (-iṃ- = -ai-) 'among true men (heroes) with amour-inducing eyes'. Conjectural, to M.Pers.T. bg 'sure', M.Parth.T. 'bg 'unsure', Oss. D. bägu, I. bägū 'surely, truly' (-g- < -k-), I. bägūdärtä 'most sure, true heroes' (epithet of the Nartä heroes); Ossetic Zelenčuk inscription πακαθαρ, Georgian lw baqat'ar 'hero', see Acta Iranica 1975, Monumentum H. S.

Nyberg, I, 35. For laga 'man (?)', note Oss. DI. lāg 'man', lāg-amad 'manly, brave', and loan-word in Caucasian languages, cited TPS 1959, 108, Abxaz a-lâg, Čečen laj, gen. sing. lēn, plur. leš 'slave', lolla 'slavery', Inguš laj, plur. lāš, loal, Batsbi lag, Avar laɣ plur. laɣzal (like an ethnic), Lakk lak, Darga laɣ, plur. luɣti, laɣdeš, Lezgi, Tabarsarani luk', luk'val. Further connexion remains conjectural: if dahaka-* is taken as an older form, then laga- here would have -a- < -aha-, see s.v. ragai, rrā, and bagalagvā.

laṃgara 'plant name', Sid. 109v5 laṃgara bā 'root of the plant', BS rāsnā; III 91·209 laṃgāra bāvā, BS rāsnā (of various plants) translated by vanda Roxburghii in the Bower MS (where it is frequent), of the orchidaceae. Possibly to ranga-* 'red colour', see s.v. rajsāna-.

laphūṣa 'female monkey's folklore name', III 70·114 laphūṣa śā makala panava 'one female monkey rose up'; ibid. 120 phūṣa (read (la)phūṣa?); possibly 'the snatcher', to laph- in ttralapha- 'rapacious' of the wolves (III 72·157).

labudāṃ 'proper name (?)', V 269 Dum. I, 121.

-laṣka-, see II 51·55 ālaṣkau.

laṣṭa- 'staff', in the cliché with pāttara- 'bowl', K 46·27 laṣṭa pāttarā asthīye 'he took up staff (and) bowl', III 74·204 pātte laṣṭāna vā 'he held (vāta-) bowl (and) staff' (plural for lost dual); III 69·85 laṣṭa pāttara dīśta biysīye 'he took in hand staff (and) bowl'. Note Pašto laṣṭa 'stick, staff', Waziri Pašto lašta 'thin stick'. Dardic Pašai (Areti dialect) lāṣṭ 'fathom', elsewhere Pali laṭṭhi- 'stick' (R. L. Turner, Compar. Dict. no. 10991), but O.Ind. yaṣṭi-.

lātrūysa- 'plant name', Sid. 18r2 lātrūysāṃ hīyāra 'fruits of the plant', BS kalinga-, Tib. kalinkahi hbras-bu ('fruit of kalinka'), Bower MS kalinga- 'holarrhena antidysenterica' and other plants. Possibly from alāta-* 'red' beside Zor.P. alālaka- 'anemone', N.Pers. lālah (see TPS 1955, 80–2), O.Ind. alāta- 'torch', Iranian āla- 'red'. The second component recalls ttrūysa- for BS trapusa- 'gourd', possibly 'with reddish round fruit'; for ttr-, see also ttralo 'tin' and trahā- 'radish'.

lāysgūrya- 'adorned, equipped', V 118, 67r2–3 (dyadic) ce ṣṣahānyau āysäta lāysgūrya 'who is adorned with virtues', BS yo guṇaiḥ samalaṃkṛtaḥ; Z 5·21 myānu vāte kāḍaru lāysgūrya 'equipped with sword at waist'; V 348·11·6 ⟨lā⟩ysgūrī; Z 23·137 lāy⟨sgū⟩rya āysäta. . . aśśa 'horses equipped'. From base lazg-, razg- 'covering' and bar- 'carry, wear' or var- 'cover' (see s.v. bīḍa-), to Yidya razɣ 'cloak', N.Pers. rayzah (razga-ka-*) 'woollen cloth'. IE Pok. 874 rezg-, Lit. rezgù, rèzgti 'plait, bind', O.Slav. rozga 'branch', O.Ind. rájju- 'string'. Here -ūr- < -a-var- with -ya-, nom. sing. -ī. See above prraiysge 'covering' (pi-razg-* or pari-razg-*).

lāṣīkau 'proper name (?)', II 100·208 ca lāṣīkau sagīna yai ṣa āṣī yai 'he who was Lā Ṣī-kau [? lang ši-kau) from Saga, he was an ārya-monk'. For -īna- to a place name note II 73·22 argīnīvā 'among the men of Argi'; Bud. Sanskrit kucīna, hence sagīna may mean 'from Saga' in which one could see either (more probably) the ancient name of Yarkand or the ethnic name Saka- used as a place name (for the name Saka, see H. W. Bailey, Languages of the Saka, Handbuch der Orientalistik, Iranisch I, 131–3).

lāstana- 'dispute', Z 12·81 lāstanu yīndā 'he disputes', parallel BS bhaṇḍayati; V 340, Soró ākṣutte lāstana yanä u jvānä 'he begins to dispute and to fight', BS G 37, 75b1 kalaha-bhaṇḍana-vigraha-vivādaṃ kuryāt, Tib. hthab hbreg rčod-pa ('fight, cut off, dispute'); Kroraina lastana-. By normal development lās- with -tana- suffix of action (see tvaṃdanu, Tumšuq Saka pyerdanu = BS saṃcintya 'deliberately', O.Pers. -tana- in infinitives). Variation l- and r- in lāysgūrya-, may be dialectal or archaic Saka (note rrīys- 'to lick' with r- in rīśtā, rrāṣṭe). From rā- with IE -s- increment rāstana-* > dialectal lāstana-, which, since lāstana- renders spoken injury (like BS bhaṇḍana- and vivāda-), would connect with Av. ray- in gāθrō.rayant- 'reciting verses' (see s.v. rvai⟨ndā⟩) to IE Pok. 859 rē-, rēi-, rei- of noises, Lit. rieju, rieti 'cry, scold', Russ. rájatĭ 'to sound'. There is no reason to seek a loan-word here. See rrai-.

līka- adjectival adjunct to participle, either as a compound or with separate inflexion, Sid. 155r1 basta-līkaña padānaña 'in a closed pot', Tib. mod-kha sbyar-gyi nan du; Sid. 103v3–4 jiṣṭa-līka kaṣā 'boiled decoction'; Sid. 126v5 biysī-līkä, Sid. 102v2 hamya-līka, II 60·11 haysnā-līkä, Sid. 104v5 saṃdviṃnä haṃbirstāṃ dūṣāṃ jsa hamye līkä hīya piṣkici 'section concerning (the disease) arisen from saṃnipāta- combined doṣa-states', Tib. kun-hdus-pa-las gyur-pahi bye-brag. Inflected forms occur līkä, līka, līkye, līkyi, līkya, līkaña. The use is like hīvī after a genitive and bīsai after a locative (see AM, n.s., 2, 1951, 11).

le 'epithet of cloth', II 85·26 (miscellany) ūstaṃ vī le thau jsiṃṇä (-iṃ- = -ai-) 'finally le-cloth, fine (stuff)'. If le replaces leṃ* < lenä*, it could come from laina-* adjective to līna-* 'flax', hence le thau 'linen cloth'; or, assuming the latest form (hardly satisfactory in this text), le could come from laiṃ* replacing lina-* or līna-. This proposes to connect IE Pok. 691 lino-, līno-, Lat. līnum 'flax' (Celtic Welsh llin < Latin), Got. lein, O.Engl. līn 'flax, lin(seed)', Greek λίνον, Lit. linas 'flax-stalk', plur. linaĭ 'flax', O.Slav. lĭnĕnŭ 'linen'. Tib. ras lḷe 'a kind of cotton cloth' could be traced to this Saka le, rather than to trace Saka to Tibetan. For 'flax' see kuṃbā, BS atasī.

le 'well', Sid. 151r4 arvāṃ hīye kaṣi le haṃbaḍāre 'the kaṣāya-decoctions of medicaments are well compacted', BS saṃvartita-oṣadhaḥ pāko, Tib. sman-gyi phye-ma legs-par hdres-pa gyur-na (hdres 'be mixed'). Here le 'well' may be from Tib. legs 'good', as IV 3·14 lyiba from Tib. lib 'all'.

lyāṃ 'provisions', II 127·29 u khve maṃ lyāṃ āstaṃna. . . ni bīdāṃdā īye 'if the provisions and the rest were not received by you here', translation AM, n.s., 11, 1964, 18. Possibly Chinese liang 'grain, rations' (K 541·2).

Also cu, ka, kau in the E Glossary with va. Possibly avā* 'with this' as tta 'so' < tā* 'with that'.

va 'for', older vaska, Sid. 136v4 jehume va nvaśtā 'to cure is easy', Tib. gso sla-ba yin-no, beside Sid. 139r1 jehāme vaska nvaśta, Tib. gso sla-ba yino; Sid. 150v4 jihāme vaski. See s.v. vaska. Lost final syllable, as pātcä > pā, aysu > a, vara 'there' > va. See also vai 'for him'.

va 'there', older vara, III 106·20 va na ye hīña bīśa 'there he was not in his own house'.

vaka, vākä, older vaska 'for', K 24·101 ṣa vaka, = K 16·160 ṣa vaka 'he for them' (ṣa -⟨ṃ⟩), II 95·66 mūñāṃ vākä 'for our men' (see in full s.v. māñāṃ).

vakṣāvī 'trouble (?)', v 62·9 ṣi sūttrā pīrāñä vakṣāvī bisāṃ (y)sāḍāṃ ⟨ci ṣi⟩ hvi hemāti, ci ttū sūttrā vijsyāti... 'this sūtra-text must be written; who the man may be of the old men (?) involved in trouble (?), who may see this sūtra-text...'. From base xšau- 'be agitated' to base with increment -b- in xšaub- (see s.v. kṣāv-), hence ava-xšāva-* with -iya- or -īya-.

vakṣīvä 'giving', SuvO. 54r2 varata vakṣīvä tcerä 'there giving must be practised', BS nikṣeptavyāḥ, variant with vi-; Tib. hbul-na (rendering dātavya-, nikṣeptavya-, niryātita-). See s.v. kṣāv-, but possibly BS lw vikṣepa- 'putting off, deferring' (as variant reading), for 'giving'.

vakṣesaca 'tossed out' III 38·47 nvākaka nvārīda u vakṣesaca brrāsakye 'they bring out songs and idle (?) questions', =III 48·69 vakṣisacą brrāsakyiṃ (-iṃ =-e). From ava-xšaid-*, see vakṣaista-.

vakṣaista- 'thrown, tossed', K 16·164 vakṣaista hā ahą 'he threw the noose', =K 24·104; beside K 33·53 (of the ahä 'noose') khū ıspūste āśą haṃ bāḍi panave 'when he threw, it rose at once to the sky' (āśą =āśāṣṭä, BS ākāśa-). See s.v. kṣista-.

vaja 'hold', Manj. 314–5 mvaśja ṣai baysūña vaja hanāsı satvā vaska 'holding (v(ā)ja), grasping, the Buddhas' favour on behalf of the beings', see vāj-:vāta- 'hold'. See also drau.

vaja-, 'with wandering (?)', v 346 b2 ⟨ce⟩ buru vaḍāna saṃkhāramyau hāysyau ku vā tta gyasta balysa pa⟨dī-mātä⟩ 'whoever with moving from distant saṃghārāma-monasteries where he does (honour) (?) so to the deva Buddhas'. See vaj-, vajāte and valj-.

vajāma 'movement', Manj. 28 vajāma hamarau aga āśvāsa prraśvāsa bā 'moving in the limbs (dyadic), breathing in, breathing out the wind (element)'. See s.v. valj-, and vaj-.

vajāysa 'stages (?)', II 5·71 paryāvą jsāṃ sīyai raysgą vī vajāysa vyachāva jsāṃ bęysūśtą narāṃda narapadaśaiṣ-āṣṭa 'deign to learn swiftly the stages, realize the bodhi-knowledge, set out to nirupadhi-śeṣa (nirvāṇa)'. Three stages of a Bodhisattva's career (after turning the Dharma-wheel, and saving the beings towards nirvāṇa). Hence the pāramitā-stages, here the places to be grasped. From ava-gāz-*, to pajāys- 'accept', with cognates. The form vajāys- beside pajāys- as vadanda- 'made' beside padanda-, and vachīṣ- beside pachīṣ- 'make'.

vajāṣte 'he knew', K 3, 139r3, Tib. mkhyen-nas; 'see', v 344, 87v6 aysu...ne vajāte 'I do not see', Tib. mi mthoṅ-bar gyur (BS lost); v 71, 145r1 vajiṣde 'he sees', Tib. mthoṅ-bas-na (BS lost), III 25, 27b3 vajiṣḍi, BS paśyet; Z 5·101 vajiṣṭāndä. See vajsāṣ- (-js > -j-).

-vąjū 'observe', v 99r8 natu suṣumu duṣvąjū dātu 'the dharma-doctrine profound, admirable (BS suṣama-, reverse to viṣama-), hard to conceive'. From duž- and ava-čyūka-* beside hajū 'wise' fra-čyūka-* to base kau-:ku- 'observe'. IE Pok. 587–8 (s)keu- 'to notice', O.Ind. kavi-, ā-kuvate, Greek κοέω, Got. hau-s-jan 'hear'. See also bātcūśt-, hajūva- (with cognates). If the first subscript hook indicates a recent loss of -l-, the base may be valj- (below 'to move' =BS īraṇa-) but with a meaning 'grasp', like BS acintiya.

vajya 'formula', v 203, 79a5 nūvarä hīñai vajya daśte (space) '(recipient) the new member of a hīnū-group skilled in formulae', BS vidyā 'formula, charm', see K 139·955 jsīñi ḳāka vījya 'formula, protecting life'.

Ardha-māgadhī Prakrit varaga- 'a vessel covered with gems' and Khotan Saka vara- together indicate a base var- to name a vessel. If v- is here a replacement of b- (as väta- from būta-), Chorasmian *b'r βār 'bowl' may be compared. The Prakrit vara- can be a loan-word. Note varaθyā-* 'receptacle' in Rōšānī wērθ 'corn-bin', Xūfī wirθ, suffix as Av. varaiθya- 'containing, imprisoning'. Possibly base var- 'to enclose', whence above bārman- 'prison; reservoir', cognates s.v. baṭha-, and vara 'court', hence vara 'container'.

Tibetan renders Samanta-bhadra by kun-tu bzaṅ-po 'altogether good', similarly Chinese p'u-hien (K 765·1; 369·3). BSOAS 29, 1966, 528–9 proposed ava-fšana-bara-* 'bringing bad wrenching', rather vi-xšana-bara-* 'bringing wide destruction', accepting O.Pers, a-xšata- as to O.Ind. kṣatá-, kṣaṇóti 'to injure' with vi- >va- before -ṣ- (as niš-, niš- >naṣ-, naṣ). The absence of subscript hook would exclude viš- 'poison' (see biṣka-, patābātāña-).

vaṣicha 'stream (?)', III 34·17 vaṣicha khuīśakyā jsa 'stream with ripples (wavelets)', =III 46·26–7 vaṣicha khvīśakyāṃ jsa, =III 37·11 vaṣąicha khvauśkyāṃ jsa. From vaxš- 'sprinkle, flow', see s.v. baṣṣa-, or possibly ava-šinčyā-, vi-šinčyā- with āṣṣiṃgyā- 'pool', base haik- 'pour'.

vaṣkala- 'section, chapter', Sid. 133v2 mau jsa āchāṃ jehume vaṣkalą beraysde 'the chapter of curing disease due to liquor is expounded', Tib. čhaṅ-nad gso-bahi lehu bśad-par byaho. Parallel to päṣkala-, from ava- (or vi-) śkala-, to base skard-, see ṣkal-.

vaṣki 'name of a tool made of stone', with axe, III 109·36·8 saṃgīnai vaṣki ṣi . v- ṣtām ṣte, ā vā vaṃ kauthaira hīśaṃ jsä vadaidi ṣte 'this is the stone vaṣki-tool, or it is the axe made from iron' (printed vaṣḍi but first copy in Paris 1937 and microfilm are rather for vaṣki). From base vaš- with -ka-; Iranian -aš- is ambiguous: (IE ḱᵉ) taš- 'to cut' (IE ḱs) Sogd. čš- 'to drink', čašman- 'eye'. Possibly here vaks- >vaš- connected with Oss. üäs 'axe', O.Ind. vāśī. Hence possibly a 'pointed stone' or 'stone knife', rather than a 'hammer'.

vaṣkaista- 'thrown down', III 69·93 haṃgrīhyarä brraukala maṃ, vaṣkaista haudva pasta 'lift up my eyebrows, being overthrown, both fell down', assuming it to equate with vakṣąista- with -ṣk- replacing -kṣ-.

vaṣṭ-, vāṣṭ-, viṣṭ- 'be placed, stay, become', participle vāstāta-, present 3 sing. V 116, 65v3 adātyānu pakṣä vaṣṭāte 'he stands on the side (BS pakṣa-) of the irreligious', BS adharma-pakṣa-saṃsthitaḥ; V 111, 33r2 orīṣta vāṣṭāta 'you (plur.) are in desire', BS autsukyam āpādayiṣyatha; K 33·56 na nä vaṣṭīryau 'do not stay (2 plur.)'; Sid. 125v2 paraṃjsa vaṣṭīdā 'they become adverse', Tib. log-ćin (log 'turn back'); Sid. 131v3 āsīya pā dastāṃ vī vaṣte 'at first it arises in feet (and) hands', BS pūrvaṃ tat pāṇi-padeṣu sthitvā, Tib. thog-ma ni rkaṅ lag-gi naṅ-na gnas-la. With the present ṣta- <hišta- (see s.v. ṣte); below viṣṭ- 'remain'. From ava- and abi- with base stā-:st-a-.

vaṣta 'through (time)' SuvO. 5a5 kūla kalpa vaṣta 'through koṭi-millions of kalpa-ages', BS kalpa-koṭibhiḥ; K 150·33a baiśa ysatha vaṣtā 'through all births'; K 60, 36r1 avamāva kūla kalpa vaṣtā ysaṃtha paysaidą 'he recognizes through countless koṭi-million kalpa-ages'; II 126·7 vaṣṭi vaṣṭi vī 'continuously' (translation AM, n.s., 11, 1964, 18); V 329, 1315 satā ysāre kalpa vaṣṭa ttā uysnora prāṇāvātāna pathīsindā 'for 100,000 kalpa-periods these beings abstain from killing', BS G 37, 1121 kalpa-śata-sahasraṃ prāṇa-atipātāt prativiratā bhaviṣyanti; V 395, 79V5 haṣṭā kalpa vaṣṭa jātā-smarā hāmāte 'for 80 kalpa-ages he is able to remember births', BS G 37, 7427–b1 aśītiḥ kalpāṃ jātyā jāti-smaro bhaviṣyati. From ava-ṣṭā* inst. sing. 'with continuance', see vaṣṭ- 'stay'.

vaṣṭā 'staying, delay (?)', II 101, 246–7 ca jsā chvaṃ la-ttai u sagalakā tta jsā stāna vaṣṭā hamāvai 'what in Chvaṃ La-ttai and Sagalaka may be the delay from fatigue' (stāta- 'wearied', stāta- 'fatigue'). From ava-štāta, vaṣṭ-* 'to stay'. See below stās- 'to be tired', participle stāta, Oss. I. stajyn, stad 'be weary'. For stāna 'from weariness' note ysāna hana 'blind from birth', BS jāty-andha-.

vaṣṭe 'rush down', participle to ava-ruš-*, III 72·159 gara ttrairkhya harbaiśa vaṣṭe, burṣṭe nāṣṭi śadya paste 'all the mountain top rushed down, burst, fell down on the earth'. To base rauš-:ruš, see cognates s.v. pārṣṭa- and burṣṭa-. See vaṣḍe.

vaṣḍe 'moves down to', II 81·43 śarbaida dīśa gara vā vaṣḍe 'in the eastern region the mountain rises (towards us)' possibly referring to BS udaya-giri- (see II 124·1 udayi garrā). Present to vaṣṭe 'rushed down', from ava-ruš-*.

vaṣperī 'splash', K 60, 37r4 data bajeṣāṃdi utca vaṣperī u bahya va hanāysāṃde 'wild beasts roar, the water splashes and the trees display beauty'. From base spar-, spāraya- >ṣper- with ava- 'down'. See usphīr-, sperīda.

vaṣprīs- 'scatter', JS 19V1 gara burṣḍā vaṣprīstā '(the vajra-bolt) bursts, scatters the mountain'; I 145, 54r4 cvaṃ avastya vaṣprrīsta ttyāṃ hambusaṃ 'suitable for those (women) for whom the incohate thing disperses' (avastya- negative to vastya- 'permanent'). From base sparg-, sprag-, incohative spṛg-ś- >sprīs-, see s.v. ṣpalgy-, haṣpalgy-, ṣpargga-.

vasalaka 'mark by smearing', I 139, 46V5 ttyāṃ jsa vasalaka tcerā ttera baidā 'with them marks are to be made on the forehead', BS teṣāṃ kākapada mūrdhaṃ kṛtvā (kākapada- 'crow's foot'); JS 28r4 veselakye, JS 37V3 veselake 'mark on forehead', parallel to BS tilaka- 'mark'. Possibly ava-sard-* >vasal-, see sal- 'to smear' s.v. esal-, pisal-, to Oss. D. isärdun, isärston, I. särdyn, särston, a-jsärdyn 'to smear'. IE Pok. 573–4 ker-, ḱer- 'of dark colours, and 'of dirt, mud'. For kher- see saṃkhal- 'to smear'. Here sal- may be ḱer-d-*.

vasī 'vessel', plur. vasīya, III 84·52 drai vasīya ūca jsi jṣāṇāñā khū ra va śau vasī harśtā 'three vasīya-measures of water are to be boiled so that only one vasīya-measure remains over'; III 84·47 drai vasīya uci jsa; III 92·244 śau vasī haṃbāyi 'one vasīya-measure in amount'; I 143, 51r3 uca jsa jṣāṇāña khu ra va tcahau vasīyā harśta 'to be boiled with water so that only four vasīya remains'. Possibly vas- <vats-* beside Lat. uās, uāsis 'vase, vessel' <vāts-*; or if v- <b- (see vāta-, varga- 'fruit', vara- 'jar') note Waxī vašč 'milk-pail', hence bas-* of a vessel.

vasū 'pure' plural to vasva, Manj. 387 baiśa vāysana sty(ū)de vasū 'all vāsanā-impressions strong, pure'. For -ū plural note also K 108·288 drabāḍū harbaiśa bạysa 'all Buddhas of the three times'. See vasuta-, vasva, s.v. vasūj- 'to purify'. For -ū also vīyārastū.

vasūj- 'to make pure', Bcd 52V2 vasūjī 'may I purify', BS viśodhayamāna-; Sid. 13V5 virana vasūje 'cleanses wounds', BS vraṇa-śodhana-, Tib. rma sbyon-bar byed-do; Sid. 5V2 vasūjākā, Tib. sbyon-ba; noun, Sid. 8r3 vasūjāma, Tib. sbyan-ba; V 336, 34r5 aysmū vasūjāte, BS G 37, 31a6 cittaṃ prasādayet; V 297a, b1 vasūjātā; II 101·4 aysmū vasvaṇjīryāṃ 'may you purify the mind' (translation AM, n.s., 11, 1965, 102); future participle, V 182, 43r6 aysmu vasūjāñā, Manj. 42 vasūjāña. Participle, vasuta-, vasva, V 73, 41r6 inst. sing. vasutena aysmūna 'with pure mind', BS G 37, 31b3 citta-prasādena; III 22, 1421 vasve aysmu byehīdi 'they get a pure mind', BS citta-prasādam api pratilapsyante; dyadic, Manj. 245 (and 348) vasve arīma 'pure spotless'; V 303, 2b2 vasve-t-ī arrīmajsā ttaraṃdari 'his pure spotless body'; V 149, 3b4 duva vasvata hira 'two pure things (elements, dharma-)'. Adjective -ka, JS 111r2 viysā spulakā māñaṃda sumārka (BS sukumāra-) vasuśka 'like a lotus bud delicate, pure'. Incohative vasus- 'be pure', Z 3·68 ku nā mā vasuśtā ttū varata vaṃña aysmū 'where towards him my mind now is not pure'; Bcd 54r3 vasūsīṃde satvāṃ biśā karma kleśa 'may all karma-acts of the beings, kleśa-afflictions become pure', BS karmatu kleśatu yāvata niṣṭhā (niṣṭhā 'end'); V 246, 10a1 vasusīdā, BS parikṣayaṃ gacchanti 'they perish'; =K 98·214 vasasīda; III 60·41 kṣa iṃdrāṃ jsāṃ visūsīṃdā 'the six faculties indeed become pure for them (-āṃ)'; V 265, 27b3 byanā thatau vasuśtā 'the hindrance (=BS āvaraṇa-) is at once cleared'; K 107·278 vasūśtī kīrīnai byana 'for him is cleared the hindrance of karma-acts'; K 55, 171r2 (to read) vasauuśta; V 30, 79b2 bāśśā bātaine vasusāro 'all doubts may cease'. From ava-sauk-*, see s.v. sūjs-.

vaska 'for', vaski, vaskạ, vaskā, va, with pronoun yi vaskai, vai; adjective Z 23·3 vasko; Sid. 139r1 jehāme vaska nvaśta hame 'it is easy to cure', Tib. gso sla-ba yino; Sid. 8r3 ḳāme vaskai krra tcairai 'treatment must be made for protecting him', Tib. bsrun-bahi čho-ga byaho; V 77, 145V5 uysnaurāṇu vaska hāvaṃgārā 'doing service for the beings', Tib. sems-čan thams-čad yons hdzin-pa; V 246, 10b4–11a1 vaśuṇarana satva bidāṣṭā akāla-maraṃ vaski bidāṣṭā vāṃnīha ni byehīdā 'the evil-doing (BS viyona-karaṇa-*) beings, untimely death do not get opportunity for it against him', =K 100·177 vīśuṇarāna satva akāla-mara vaska baidāṣṭa vaunīha na byehīda, BS na akāla-mṛtyur avatāraṃ lapsyante. See above va (after loss of -sk). Sogd. Bud. wsn 'for', Chr. wsyd, Chorasm. wsn, M.Parth.T. wsn'd, Zor.P. wsn'd (dialectal), Armen. lw vasn. To Av. vasna-, O.Pers. vašnā 'by wish, will', hence vas-ka- to vas- 'be willing, wish', in meaning like vaskal- 'separate', Sid. 3r4 vaskalyāmata mase 'only a moment', BS nimeṣa- ('a wink'), Tib. mig hdzum-bahi yud-cam-la (hdzum 'wink'). See ṣkal- 'cut'.

O.Pers. rādiy, Zor.P. l'd rāδ*, N.Pers. rā, O.Slav. radi 'on account of', raditi 'care for'. IE Pok. 1135 u̯ek- 'wish', O.Ind. vaś-, Av. vas-, Greek ϝεκών, ἑκών, Hittite u̯ek- 'wish, promote'. See also vai 'for him', and vāsa.

vaskim- 'prepare', Sid. 122v1 hvaḍā vaskimāṃde 'let them prepare the food' (Tib. omits). See ṣkam-.

vasta 'place', V 340, 8or1 balysūštā vasta (not vaska) 'place of bodhi-knowledge', BS bodhi-sthāmaṃ, Tib. byan-chub-kyi gnas. From avastā-* noun to ava-stā- 'to place', formed like O.Ind. avasthā. See also N.Pers. ustād 'appointed', Georgian lw ost'at'-i. Adjective vastya- 'permanent', triadic II 103·46 hajsaiṣṭa prrattaiṣṭa (BS pratiṣṭhita-) vastya ṣṭāṃdai 'may they be established, fixed, permanent' (translation AM, n.s., 11, 1965, 103). See also I 145, 54r4 avastya, quoted s.v. vaṣprrīšta.

vastya 'place, bring', 2 sing. II 1·8 ahauḍa vastya 'place (by me), bring the gourd', for Chinese hū jiā śa, where hū is (like 7 hau) Chinese xu <yuo 'gourd' (K 91·6), the rest not identified, see SDTV 18. From ava-stay- without palatalised -št- <-sty-. See s.v. ṣṭe.

vạstā 'tired', II 43·36–7 cu jsāṃ stūra ya ttāṃ jsāṃ biśä paṃḍāvi vạstā tsvāṃdä 'what were the horses (stūra- 'large beasts'), all of them became exhausted on the road'. From ava-stāta* to stās-, stāta- 'be tired'.

vastā 'separated (?)', III 11, 20r3 khu ni buḍari balysūštā jsa vastā ni ⟨. .⟩ baṃña 'so that no more from bodhi-knowledge (I may be) separated...in front of', from ava-stāta-.

vastāta- 'went down', K 24·103 vastā, =K 16·163 vīstā, =K 33·53 vahaiṣṭa 'he descended'. See vāstāta-, vistāta- to present vaṣṭ-, viṣṭ-.

vastāmo 'fatigue (?)', Z 19·17 ///vastāmo karyo pvāyso yande 'causes fatigue, effort, fear'. See vạstā 'tired', stās-, stāta- 'be weary'.

vastūna- 'depository (?)', III 19, 1a5 rrvī vī vastūnvā vajarachaidakä prajñā-pārā(me) saddharma 'at the court in the vastūna- ('archives'?) the Vajracchedikā, Pāramitā, Saddharma' (texts)', loc. plur. to vastūna- from ava-stavana-* 'place of depositing' (base stau- beside stā- 'to put'). In form, note III 52·97 haspūnaka- below, but explained as from fra-spigna-*. The books Vajracchedikā, Pāramitā and Sad-dharma-(puṇḍarīka-sūtra-) are then the beginnings of a list in a library; see another list V 43–4, 14.

vạstairma 'baggage-animals (?)', II 43·35 cvāṃ va nū stūra harya vạstairma u hvaṇḍä u herä u hvaihū:ra ttāṃ biśä cimūḍa hatcastāṃdä 'what to us remained, the horses, baggage-animals and men and goods and the Uigurs, all that of ours the Cimuḍas broke (took away)', see SDTV 110; II 43·38 ttaṃdī ra ṣacū śe vạstairmä aśä jsa ā 'with only one baggage horse he came to Ṣa-ṭṣou' (SDTV 113). From ava-stārmya-* (as pakyerma- <pati-cārmya-*) 'having things spread (=loaded) upon' to base star-.

vaspuḍai 'he trod', JS 33r3 vaspuḍai śaysdā beda 'he trod on serpents'. See base spar-.

vasva- 'pure', participle to vasūj-, vasuta-, vasvata-.

vasvajīryāṃ 'may you purify', see vasūj-.

vaha 'boiled, cooked', Sid. 9r4 hāmīnā kujsa jsa haṃbersta rruña vaha khāysa mau āstaṃna āhvaryau raysyo jsa ni hvairai 'food, cooked in oil mixed with barley (and) sesame is not to be eaten with sour juices, liquor and the rest', Tib. phag-phye dan til-mar bsres-pahi smum-khur rcabs lhan-cig mi bzah; Sid. 9r1 ṭraṃdīnai bisu jsa vaha 'cooked with fuel of the castor-oil plant', Tib. eraṇḍahi śiṅ-gi bcos-pa; III 72·161a ttākye ttu ne vau ūcä vahä (fragment of a document) '...boiled in water'; II 54·28 (SDTV 68–70) carau māñädä (-ä- =-aṃ-) vasve ssa-vahä ysīrrä '(the city) like a lamp, pure gold of 100 refinings'. In meaning the same as paha-, see s.v. vaha-.

vahạ- 'boiled, cooked', III 85·62 khū naysdä vaḷä hame ttī... 'when it is nearly cooked, then...'; III 89·158 īraṃde, phaji vaha pau 'castor-oil, onion cooked in the oven'; I 157, 67v4–5 hatca bīysma jsa vaha 'boiled with urine'; ibid. v5 rūṃ hatsa vaḷi 'boiled with oil'. From paha- 'cooked, boiled, refined' with secondary v- (as vadanda- =padanda-) or possibly vaha- <vvaha-* preverb abi-, or ava- before paha-. Hence paxθa- or paxụa- to base pak-, s.v. pajs-.

vahaj- 'accompany; give with', Sid. 106r1 pātcā hīśaṃ ⟨hīya⟩ hīsuṣka u gvīhye: bīysma jsa bīnājāñā dvī māštā buri hverai u biṃdai hā ṣvīdā jsa vahajāñā 'then it must be soaked with dust of iron and cow's urine, up to two months; to be consumed, and with milk upon it it must be given', Tib. yan-na lčags-kyi phye-ma ba-gčin-gyi nan-du yun riṅ-du sbaṅs-pa bzah-žiṅ ho-mas dbul-lo. Possibly to this vahaj-, the participle vahīta-* (as sāj-:sīta- 'learn') is found in vahī, JS 29r2 baysaṃdai gāma paṃde vahī pvehna '(the fire) rushing on a swift path accompanied by a blast'. From ava-haĵya-* to hag- 'cling to, touch', see s.v. ajs- (with lost h-), and pahej- 'to block', O.Pers. frāhaĵam 'I hanged'. IE Pok. 887–8 seg-, seng- 'adhere', O.Ind. sájati, saktá-, sanga-, Av. -zga- (vohuna-zga- 'blood-adhering'), Lit. sègti 'adhere', O.Slav. sęgnǫti 'seize', sęžetī 'hang'.

vahajū 'I give (?)', II 85·29–30 muśḍä īmū khayseṃ vahajū 'I do a favour; I give with it a banquet (khaysana-)'. Hence possibly connected with vahajāña- 'to be accompanied, be given with', Tib. dbul ('give').

vahan- 'descend', Sid. 8r4 dai vahanī 'the fire goes down', BS vahni-sādanaṃ, Tib. drod byi-ba ('heat is removed'); 3 sing. Z 5·27 valūndi; 3 plur. virasañi, 'brilliant', K 153·18 vīrasañi buśą jsatte bvaijsīje uvārre 'she, the brilliant one (Dhūpā personified perfume) disperses excellent exalted perfumes'. See rrus- 'to shine', with -us- replaced by -as-, see also āhus- 'to sweat'.

vīrā 'working', Manj. 290 śera kūśala-vīrā satva 'good excellent-working beings'; Manj. 291–2 śera kūśala-vīrai auṣka 'good excellent-working always', to kīra-, see s.v. -vīraa-, But possibly to vi-rād- 'to prepare, organize' with v- retained to Av. rād-, then not a second component.

vīrāṃ, vīrā from vīra with pronoun K 40·31 ṣve vīrāṃ tta tta pyūṣṭä 'by rumour so it was heard by us', =K 43·148 ṣve vīrā tta va tta pyūṣ⟨ṭ⟩i (subscript hook written for -ṭ-).

virāva 'rough (?)', Z 22·121 virāva patāvani nāśtā māda kāḍe śśandā nauna 'the surface is not rough (full of roots?), the ground is very smooth (and) soft'. If 'rough' is adopted the connexion is with base rau-:ru- in IE Pok. 868, O.Ind. rūkṣa-, BS lūha-, Prakrit lukkha-, lūha, O.Engl. rūh 'rough'. It could also be connected with rruma- 'dust', Oss. D. rugă, I. ryg but the contrast with śniddha- is then missed. If 'root-filled' is accepted the connexion is with virā 'root', with suffix -āva- (as in rraysāva- 'empty'). IE Pok. 681 leu-:lū-, is compared s.v. rruma-.

vīrāṣṭä 'towards the upper part', II 125·3 māje bāḍä vīrāṣṭä 'to our land'; II 111·19 saṃgalakä vīrāṣṭä tsāṣṭakä ttä tta hve 'he so spoke calmly to Saṃgalaka'; Sid. 126r1 bvāṣṭyi vīrāṣṭä naysdä hame 'he is near to knowledge', Tib. śes-ñen dav. See vīra with -ālsto.

-vīriña 'sonship', second component, JS 19r2 baysa-vīriñä 'sonship of the Buddha', see also bar-bīrye, bara-vīra-, from pūra- (puθra-*).

vīro, optative 3 plur. K 4, 141v3 (irrealis) ka. . .hvatāndā vīro 'if they had said', see the base vä- 'to be'.

vilaka-, vīlaka- 'small', Sid. 143r4 mista u vilaka 'great and small', Tib. che-chun; Sid. 14v2 vilakä, Tib. chun-nu; II 60·17 u kagṭja śkaumaka vīlaka śā hatca ttraba jsa 'and a covering of skin, one small, with fringes (?)'; K 34·64 vailaka śā strrīyä, =K 35·114 vattaka jīśka, =K 17·177 vaka jīśka 'young girl'. See cilaka-, dilaka-, ttīlaka-, laka, and vitka, vānda-. Possibly from pronoun as meaning 'only so much' hence 'little' or from base vā-:v-, ū- 'be deficient'. See also comparative (or superlative) II 39·18 miśtai kaniśta ā 'greater and smaller'. Here valaka- I 149, 59r4 valakāṃ u ysāḍāṃ 'children and old men', BS bālānām atha vṛddhānāṃ I 141, 49v5 ysāḍāṃ u vaittakāṃ, BS vṛddhānām atha bālānāṃ may belong, either from the pronoun ava- or by replacement of vi- by va-, rather than from a base vard- 'to grow' (see s.v. valaka-).

vilau 'astray, missing', III 67·51 vilau pūṃnä gvāna na tsīya 'an arrow missing its mark was not being shot at all' (the reverse of BS amogha- 'unfailing' see K 24·95 am(au)ga, K16·153 amauka, K 33·46 amauga epithet of aha 'noose', BS pāśa-). Hardly BS. Pali viloma 'against the grain, wrong'; but from base lau- (=rau-) 'to rush' in IE Pok. 331 reu-, Lat. ruo, ruere 'run', O.Engl. earu 'swift', O.Ind. ṛṇóti.

vīv- 'to shine widely', SuvP. 60v3 3 sing. optative, brrūñaṃdai khū ji urmaysdi, vīvīya harbiśä vīra, harūñe biśä dīṣą vīra 'like the shining sun, it, shining in all places, illuminates in every direction', BS jvalamānā yathā sūryaḥ samantena virocate prabhāsitā daśa diśo; participle present, SuvP. 68v3–4 niṣirrīma tcarṣva vīvaṃdā-aṃga 'pure beautiful brilliant-limbed', BS sunirmalaṃ surucīraṃ suvirājita-angaṃ; II 103·68–9 ysa-gūṇya chai jsa vīvadāva 'shining with gold-coloured complexion'; fem. participle, III 95·42 ttīśa jsa vīvace 'shining with splendour' (BS tejas-). Two derivations are possible, either vitap- through viyav-* >vīv- (see ttav-, bātäva 'lightning') or vi-ba- to bā- 'to shine' (see s.v. ḅāyi) with vī- <vi-.

From ava-mūta-* (vū-, as būṣṣātā- 'stairs', pūhẹitā 'binds on', pūmūḍa- 'faded') to mau-:mu- 'to move', see above vamūḍa-.

vūy-, ūy-, uyy- 'to survey', BS avalokaya-, from ava-day-*, see s.v. uy-, and pūy- <pati-day-*.

vūysa 'hither', K 24·87–8 mahadrasaina rai vā vā jsanāka paśāvai 'Mahendrasena the king has sent out a killer hither', =K 32·39–40 mahaidra(s)ai(na) rre vūysa jsanākā ⟨paśāve⟩, =K 16·143 mahaidrrasaina rre vā jsanāka paśāvai. Hence vā vā =vā =vūysa. If formed like hā, hāysa- 'distant', this vūysa could attest vāysa* from vā and vūysa from vū 'hither' by -sa- suffix, -sā in hāysa 'afar'. Further evidence is necessary.

-vūysaa- 'seeking, seeker', from kūys-, kūś- 'to seek' as second component in balysūña-vūysaa- rendering bodhisattva, paraphrased III 98·31 baysūśtā kuśe 'he seeks bodhi-knowledge', =III 99·37 baiysūśta kūśai. See VI 226.

-vūra- 'son' as second component, V 37f6 gyastavūrānā bhavaña āsta vye 'they were dwelling in the mansion (BS bhavana-) of the sons of the deva-gods' (=BS deva-putra-).

vūlsta- 'thrown off', Z 22.239 vūlstāndi sta ysaṃthīnau pāsu 'you have thrown off the load of births', for the BS cliché apahṛta-bhāra (see KT VI 332 s.v. vūlsta-). From ava-vart-* 'roll down', see also nyūlttе (nivartatai*) and 3 plur. nyūḍāre, ggaltte, gaḍāre, base gart- 'to roll, lie'.

vvūvayau 'of the origin of the baga-distributor' as a royal title baga-, II 82, 58 vvūvayau drūpaḍą =II 79·12 vūvayuṃ drūpaḍā 'the royal (princess) Drūpaḍī'. Hence baga-yauna-* 'of royal origin' with the Indian name replacing dropadī-* (Epic Sanskrit Draupadī) with Prakrit -aḍī <-adī (as O.Ind. RV nadá- 'reed', RV, AV naḍá-, later naḍa- and BS naṭa-; and argada-* 'enclosing bar'> argaḍa-, argaḷa-); Av. yaona- 'place of movement', O.Ind. yoni- (s.v. gyūna- 'way'). For baga- O.Pers. baga- (glossed by Akkad. ilu 'god') is Av. baya- 'distributor', Parsi-Sanskrit vibhaktar-, Sogd. Bud. βγ- rendering BS deva-, plur. βγ'yšt, gen. plur. βγ'n, βγ'yst'n 'paradise', βγδn'k 'altar', βγp'wr 'prince', M.Parth.T. bg, plur. bg'n, adjective bg'nyg, abstract bgyft; bgpwhr 'son of a god'; M.Pers.T. by, plur. b''n, adjective by'nyg, Zor.P. bg, DkM 413·9 im bay 'this god' ='his present majesty'; Turkish lw bäg, with suffix bägrāk, as proper name (of the same man) II 89·61 begarakā, II 90·69 begarā, II 89·56 berakā, II 84·18 bagarakā; in Manichaica bägräk in a name t(ä)ngrim alpīm bägräkim. To verbal base bag- 'to give or receive a share'. IE Pok. 107 bhag- O.Ind. bhájati, bhaktá-, bhága- 'good portion', agent 'distributor' (as an ādityá-, see Mithraic Studies 1975, 8–9), Greek φαγεῖν 'to eat', O.Slav. -bogŭ 'portion', bogatŭ 'rich', ubogŭ, nebogŭ 'poor'; bogŭ 'god'. For verbal cognates see s.v. būṣṣ-:būta- 'give'. The epithet baga- became also a substitute for Miθra. Hence the Kušān name vaka-mihira, and vvaga-mihira. In the Armenian history of Agathangelos (594) in a well-known passage Grigor came to a Mithraic shrine: gayr hasanēr i mihrakan meheann anouneal orduoyn Aramazdaj, i giuln zor Bagayarič koč'en ast part'euarēn lezouin 'he went, he came to the temple of Mihr, called son of Aramazd, in the village called Bagay-arič in the Parthian language'. In the Sogdian phrase of the marriage contract (quoted s.v. ysaṃtha- 'payment') Zkn βγy ZY Zkn myδr' nβ'nty 'with the Baga-, even with Miθra' (if indeed they are divine names and not simply 'with the apportioning and the agreement') the ZY = at ('t) is identifying like Greek καί =Engl. 'even', not the 'and' of disjunction and addition, the other view was taken in BSOAS 28, 1965, 248 by W. B. Henning. Since the Aramaic ZY was the relative pronoun 'which is...' as in Zor. Pahlavī for ī (<yat), the identifying meaning could arise from the original use. In vvūvayau, vūvayuṃ the vv-, v- is like b >β- >v- in vūḍa- 'covered', varga- 'fruit', vāta- 'become', and for -ūy- see būṣṣ-, būta- 'give' <baxš-*, baxta-, būṣṣātā- 'stairs', pūhẹitā 'binds on'; hence baga- >bava-* >būva-*, vvū-.

The Parthian word is -arič, -arinč, -arinǰ (modern -erīǰ) of which the -a- may be the conjunct vowel -a- of a compound. If one accepts basic -arič it could derive from ḍranīči-* as 'a place of ritual performances'; if one accepts -ṙič the initial can represent older Parthian r- (as ṙam 'people'), then the source could be base rai-:rī- in Let. rītus (-u-stem) 'ritual act', loc. rītē (to rīt-); IE Pok. 60 ar-:r- 'to fit', Av. ratu- 'fixed time', raθwya-, 'for ritual action' Zor.P. raspīk 'ritual official'. This -ṙič <rī-či-* could thus indicate 'place of religious practice', and so mean 'temple'. Bagayarič and the various other places named by this second component would all be originally cult sites. As already pointed out by H. Hübschmann O.Pers. base yad- (Av. yaz-) is excluded by the -ṙ-, not -r- (from -δ- <-d-); and a Parthian word does not contain yad- <yaz-.

vūṣṣotte 'he descended', Z 22·187 ttrāmu vūṣṣotte haṃtsa gyastyau vara gyastwo ṣṭānā, samu kho purra haṃbaḍa ṣṣīve astā ggarā vīri nāhuśdā 'so he sped down with the deva-gods from among the devas there, as the moon, full, descends upon the western mountain (BS asta-) at night'. Preverb vū- <ava- and base xšaub-, with -otta- like ārotta-, pārotta- to ārūh-, patārāh-. To IE kseu- or ksеu- (see s.v. ṣun-), beside IE Pok. 954 skeu-, skеu- 'to speed', 955 skeub(h)-, and (s)keup- in Zor.P. kōpēn <(s)kaupanya-* 'sling (weapon)'. See vū- in vūmūta-.

śararaṇa- 'doing good', III 99·27 śararaṇą satva pūñūdä, baiysūña-vūysä maista, harbīśa namasū nauda 'to all the beneficent beings meritorious (BS puṇya-vant-) bodhisattvas, great ones, I bow down with reverence', III 52·87–8 pūñūdä śarārana pīsā kaḍāna-mittra namasū 'I bow down to the meritorious beneficent teachers, kindly friends' (BS kalyāṇa-mitra-); K 47·1·5 śarariṇa harbaiśä satva 'all beneficent beings', K 146·4 arahaṃdą pūñūdi śararṇą satva 'arhant-worthies meritorious beneficent beings'; III 98·24–5 ci buri ysama-śaṃdya yāva śiraraṇa satta puñauda baysūña-vūysä maista harbiśūṃ namasūṃ nauda 'whoever are in the world as far as the beneficent beings meritorious bodhisattvas, great ones, to all of them I bow down with reverence'; =K 91·22–3 cū būre ysamäśadye yāva śaräṇa satva pūñūda beysūña-vūysä mista haṛbaśe paṣą jsa haṭca 'whoever are in the world as far as the beneficent beings meritorious great bodhisattvas all with the retinue'. Older form K 8 a6 biśśāṃ śśiraranāṃ satvānä 'of all beneficent beings'; JS 13r3 śiraraṃ mistä cu yai deva-riṣąyä 'the great beneficent one you who were a deva-ṛṣi- (god-sage)'. From śśāra- and karana- 'doing good'.

śarā 'fortune', see śirā, K 148·56 śarā drūnā bgmaña hamāve 'may there be fortune, health, good luck'; K 148·58–9 harbīśvā bāḍūā (so) śarā drūnā bgimañā hamāve 'at all times may there be fortune, health, good luck'; Manj. 128–9 ṣą bure mī śarā pacaḍna 'all this now by way of fortune'. See śirā.

śarāti 'plant name, asparagus racemosa', v 180·17 śarāti, gūra 'asparagus, grapes'; Sid. 9v5 śirāve, BS abhīru-, Tib. ñehu śiṅ; Sid. 18r3 śirāve, BS abheru-; Sid. 135v2 śerāta, BS śatāvarī. For the form note banāte, banāve 'plum-tree' named from the 'blue' fruit, base vana- 'blue'. Here also śira-* (or śiru-*) can be traced to a colour name IE Pok. 540–1 ḱei-, O.Slav. sěrū, Russ. sěryi 'grey'; O.Slav. sinĭ, Russ. sinij 'blue' (from Iranian also Caucasian Čečen sijna 'blue, green', Inguš sijna, Batsbi sein, seni; with -r-, Čečen sira 'grey', sirla 'bright', sirla-sijna 'light blue'), Armen. lw sira- in sira-marg 'peacock' (marg, North Iranian, as Oss. mary). This would give śirākā-* 'green or yellow plant', from the stalks. See for the same base below śāva- 'copper; red', Av. syāva-.

śaraima 'covering' II 77·5·6 tta śaraima va pvaica tsvāṃda tcāṃrai 'so, for covering, the pieces amounted to four'. From base śar- 'to cover, conceal', see s.v. haśirma, and śārṣṭai with ś- retained to IE Pok. 553–4 ḱel-, O.Ind. śaraṇa- 'refuge'; protecting', śárman- 'protection', śālā 'hut', Greek καλιά 'hut', Lat. celō, -āre, occulō, color, Celtic O.Ir. celim, Welsh celu 'conceal', O.Engl.

helan 'to conceal', hulu 'shell', helm. For -aima-, note also K 63, 78v3 paraima, Z 13·137 parremä, II 85·21 grähe:mä jsa. See also śalaba 'room (?)' (K 99·255).

śalaba 'room (?)', K 99·255 bīsa prrūva ysīmā ttala gaṇḍye śalaba ysīnī nāṃnda īye 'may they have taken charge of the house, strong places, covered places, halls, chambers, rooms', a list of parts of a house. Here śal- beside śar- 'to cover' (retaining ś-, IE ḱel-), to connect with Zor.P. srāδa-, N.Pers. sarāy 'dwelling', Armen. lw srah 'court' (Greek σύλή, στοά), srah, srahak 'curtain', Judaeo-Persian sr'h 'court', Arab. surādiq 'curtain', Mandaean sr'dq-'. See also śārṣṭai.

śalai 'goodness', II 101·12 dasau ra maista śalai samādāyī varttāṃ 'we will practise the ten great adoptions of goodness', beside K 156·12 dasau ra ṣṭā maista śaḍe samādāye parī varttyai 'deigns to practise', to BS daśa-kuśala-karmapatha-samādāya-vartin-. For -l-<-ḍ- (from -rt-) note also III 40·17 habāla, =III 38·42 habāḍa 'filled'. In a foreign word there is the same variation III 38·35 hūlūka-, III 47·54 hūḍūka- 'drum', O.Ind. huḍukka- (with Tamil uṭukkai).

śąvakṣa- 'dispute', III 69·101 śąvakṣä paną 'dispute arose'. Possibly adi-ā-vaxša-* to base vak- 'speak' (as O.Ind. vivāda- from vad- 'speak'). Elsewhere vak-, auk- has been traced in Khotan Saka in āvä 'spoken', to IE Pok. 1135–6 ueḱ-*. But BS pakṣa- may be contained here.

śśaśvānä 'mustard', Z 2·118 kho ggarä sumīrä śśaśvānä kaśte pata 'as mount Sumeru appears in comparison with a mustard seed' (the cliché, see also K 109·318); Sid. 151r2 śt śaśvä 'white mustard', BS śveta-sarṣapa-; I 181, 100v2 ysīdiṃ (-iṃ=-ai) śaśvāṃ, BS sarṣapa-, adjective, Sid. 9r5 śaśvānīnai rruṃ 'mustard oil', BS kaṭu-tailena, Tib. yuns-mar; Sid. 17v4 śaśvānīje hvāṣe 'mustard herbs', Tib. yuns-kar-gyi lo-mas ('leaf'). From śśaśva- and dānā- 'grain, seed', to M.Parth.T. šyfš-d'n, N.Pers. sipan-dān, Sogd. Bud. šywšpδn with δn- 'grain'. Possibly cognate with O.Ind. sarṣapa-; J. Przyluski, BSOS 8, 1936, 703–6; W. B. Henning, AION 6, 29; 42; M. Mayrhofer, Dictionary (for many etymologies).

śśā 'one' fem., beside acc. sing. fem. śśau, III 60·35 śā śā gę 'each stage' (BS gati-); K 90·750 śā kanaka 'one drop'; V 107, 29v6 śśau sutu vätä 'on one shoulder'; III 3, 8r5 śśā ṣṣava śśo haḍā 'one night, one day'. For śā- first component see śśau below; and for śa-, see above. See śśau. With -u 'and', III 58·5 śą-tt-ū, =II 6·87 śā-v-ū (note also K 41·56 rre-tt-uṃ=K 44·177 rre-t-ū, with -uṃ, -ū 'them' acc. plur. enlitic masculine).

śā 'copper', Sid. 13v2 śā, BS tāmra-, Tib. zans, see śāvä, śśātīṃje, śāvī. From syāva-'dark colour'.

śāṃ 'lying down', IV 23·22 sama khu ji hvę saśi vī śāṃ ūṣtä 'just as a man lying par amours slumbers'; JS 20v4–21r1 pāysvīrä śāṃ brīya ysirastä 'lying on his breast, with heart in love'. Participle present -āna- to śśäte 'he lies down', base śai-, IE Pok. 539–40 ḱei-, see s.v. śśä-.

śśājsano 'fork', Z 22·149 bajsu viti īsā niśtä buṇū vätä ysānū vīri śśājsano vätä huto vīri ggälserai śsūjäte vaṣta 'on the loin there is no whorl of hair, (but) on the member, on the knee, on the fork, on the thigh, on his neck (the whorls) are continuous one with another'. Since śś- of śiṃje 'jujube, BS badara-' corresponds to s- in Oss. D. sindzä, I. syndz 'thorn', the śś- of śśājsano can be seen in Oss. DI. sag- 'fork', sag-gom 'opening between finger and toes' (kom 'opening'), D. sagojnag, I. sagoj, sagojag 'fork', sagojy syg 'prong of a fork'; adjective sagelä 'forked', compound, D. sagel-duntä (Pam. 2·146), sagel-dumäg 'with forked tails', I. sadžil fättä 'forked arrows', (IAS 1·348), sadžil arc, ärcytä 'forked spear' (NK 46·373), sadžil-zärdä 'with forked heart'='hesitant'; sag-ävtä 'extremities of the body', loc. plur. sag-ävti 'between the legs' (äv 'part of foot between heel and toes'). Hence sāčanaka-* to sāk-. IE Pok. 523 ḱak-, Lit. šākė 'fork', šakótas 'forked', parallel to Akkad. ḫallu 'fork'. See s.v. sacha 'plant name' for the base, and s.v. śśära- 'good' for the sibilant variation.

śąṃña 'duality', K 55, 17r4 ttana cu mä dātīnai ttaraṃdarä, śąṃña jsa asaṃkhistä ṣte 'because here (?) the dharma-kāya (body of the dharma-doctrine) is uncontaminated with duality'; K 58, 29r3 ṣą-v-ī śamatha cu vara śąṃñä na daittą 'that is its quiescence (BS śamatha-) wherein no duality appears'; K 59·31r3 ttye herą kąṃna cu śąṃña jsa saṃ gū ṣte 'for the reason that he has escaped from duality'. From śą- 'two'<dvaya-*, with suffix -āṃña (=-auña-) as śäta- 'second' from dṿita-*. See s.v. duva. See śauña 'duality'.

śāña, read maśāña, V 182, 43r4 ⟨manā⟩ṃjavo maśāña, possibly masūña 'measure'.

śāñe 'plant name, solanum nigrum', Sid. 13v4 haryāsa śāñe 'black śānyā-', BS kācamācī, Tib. kaćimaći; adjective, Sid. 9r3 hvāṣa śāñje 'herb of śāñe', BS kācamācī, Tib. ldum-bu kaćamaća. The epithet haryāsa- 'black' would suggest a colour name śāva- 'dark, red' with śyānyā-> śānyā-. See s.v. śāva- 'copper' and 'red', to IE Pok. 540–1 ḱei-.

śśāta- 'lying down', Z 13·54 haṃtsa purātä māye jsa śśātä 'he lay alone with Māyā', participle to śśä- 'lie down'. See also śśāna-.

śśātīṃje 'made of copper', Z 22·248 śśātīṃje māje mūre 'our copper mūrā-coins'. See śāvī, śāva-, śā.

śāna- 'lying down', K 136·871 śānaṃdä śāna (dyadic) 'lying down', Tib. ñal; JS 20v4–21v1 pāysvīrä śāṃ 'lying on his breast (pāysa-)'; IV 23·22 śāṃ ūṣtä 'lying down, he falls asleep'; K 110·338 ttiña beḍa khu śāna rrautte 'then when lying he is in pain'; K 111r5 hūsandä śśānye 'sleeping, lying down', Z 22·129 varata śśānye mīḍe 'there lying he dies'. Uncertain context V 211·42·5 śāna hamā⟨r⟩i. To present 3 sing. śśätä, see śśä-. See also śānaṃda-.

śąnä 'night-watch', K 40·7 khvai paḍauysä śąnä śivi parya, =K 43·128 khvai paḍauysä śąnä śivi parya 'when for him the first watch of the night had passed'. Possibly adi-yāna-* (see above śa-) to base yā- 'go', as BS yāma- 'night-watch'; so rather than Prakrit śāna-* from śāma-*, with y->ś- as śama- 'Yama'. Note M.Pers.T. 'dyn 'entrance' (ady-ayana*).

śānaṃdä 'lying down', K 136·871 śānaṃdä śāna 'lying down' (dyadic), Tib. ñal; SuvP. 71r2 śānaṃdä diśyā attrāṇa 'dwelling in the regions without deliverance' (BS trāṇa-), BS nistrāṇa-bhūtāś ca diśa-diśāsu; preterite, JS 28r3 ttī śąḍī huṣṭī saṃ pāśere ṣṭāna 'then you lay, you dried up in the sunshine'. From śān- as base to śśä- 'lie down', with present participle śān-anda-, preterite-śān-d-. See also āna- 'sitting', present participle ānanda-.

śānā 'consolation (?)', v 65·13a vye jä ī vīyai ysira śānai thaṃjū 'has there been pain, the heart draws out consolation'; v 65·12–3 kalyāṇa-mitträ ustāka⟨ji ḅisaṃ⟩gā, ttye vīra śānā yani kṣamauca haṣṭā 'the kindly friend (spiritual adviser, BS kalyāṇa-mitra-) of the Ustāka bhikṣu-saṃgha (mendicant community), in him I get consolations, vast favour'. Possibly to base śā- to IE ḱei-, ḱi-ē- beside IE Pok. kʷei-, kʷi-ē-, Khotan Saka tsā- 'be quiet, at rest' or dialectal śā-<čyā- as Av. šyā-, šā-, O.Pers. šiyā-, Zor.P. šā-, see s.v. tsāta-, tsāṣṭa-. For variation kʷ- and ḱ-, note IE Pok. gʷei- and ǵei- 'overpower'. For the meaning note bitsāṃgya 'alleviation'.

śśāman- 'face' (but tturra- 'mouth'), v 330, 20r6 āṣkaraundāna śśāmaṃna bremaṃdā 'weeping with tearful face', BS G 37, 17b1 aśru-mukhā rudanti; K 136·865 śira-śāma 'good-faced', BS su-mukha-; voc. plural K 142·1044 sirayyau śira-śāmyau, Tib. bźin 'face'; III 52·97 sa khu āyaña śāma 'as a face in the mirror', Z 22·167 dvāsu puke śśāmāña hvāhä 'broad twelve cubits in face'; K I, 135r4 dāti śāmani parallel to BS dharma-mukha- ('introduction to the dharma-doctrine'); compounds, Manj. 347 ā khu śā ye hama dva-padya satva saitta śe-śāmai vasve arīma śe-śāme avasve saitta ttu māñada aysmva prrara 'or as one and the same two-fold seems to the being to have been one-faced, pure, spotless, the one-faced seems impure, so the nature of thought' (=BS vijñāna-svabhāva-); III 69·102 hama-śāmā śīje mūṃdāṃdā '(the monkeys) having the same face resembled one another'. Uncertain source, if ḍi̯ā->źā>śśā- it is from base dai-:di- 'appear, see', to be connected with Av. daēman-, Zor.P. dēm, Sogd. Man. δym 'eye-ball'. If styā->syā-, styāman-* could be connected with Greek στόμα 'mouth'. In use śśāman- rendering BS mukha- receives the various meanings of mukha-.

śāma- 'entrance (?)', II 2·30 tcaurrvā śāmvā 'in four entrances', translated SDTV 25. See śśāman- 'face'.

śāmāśaumä 'face to face', II 95·44 śāṣṭai 'looked', compound with -ā-, as N.Pers. gōn-ā-gōn 'various in colours', bar-ā-bar 'breast to breast; equal', like O.Ind. keśākeśi 'hair to hair'.

śśāraṇa- 'service, honouring', triadic, v 107, 29r4 rrundinu rrundi pajsamä śśāraṇä pārśä käḍäna 'for the service of the king of kings', BS sūtrendra-rājasya pūjā-satkāra-; v 15, 1b2 ⟨rruṃdä⟩nu rruṃdä väte nu ata śśāraṇä 'their great service towards the king of kings'; adjective -ya-, v 118, 67r4 rre ttīśaundä śśāraṇī pajsama-jserä hämäte 'the king becomes splendid (BS tejasvant-) honoured, revered', BS tejasvī bhavate nṛpaḥ. From base śśar-, causative śśār-, whence śer-, adjective, III 128, 29v2 ce tvo dārañu vätä haspäsaṃdai hīṭhei hämāñu sa-gauravä śerākä 'who is zealous for this dhāraṇī-formula, he must be reverent, servant of truth' (dyadic with BS sa-gaurava 'reverent'); nouns śerāña 'servants', II 4a5 hvāṣṭāna cu śerāña miḍāṃ jasti hīya 24 'twenty-four who are men of the bounteous god (=king), servants of the chiefs (magnates)'. Form śśāraṇa- like tcāraṇa- 'capable' to base kar- 'do'; with śśār-, śer- like bār-, ber- 'to rain'. Initial ś-<śu-, śi̯-, ḍi̯- and retained ś-, possibly tsi̯-; since 'service' may imply 'quick movement', this śśar- could be traced to tsi̯ar- beside tsar- in Av. sar-, glossed by Zor.P. ōštāp, see s.v. sarau.

śāranai 'wanderer (?)', Manj. 321 h(ā) ttrema nairvāṇa kīthe satsera śāranai har(ba)śa 'may (the Buddha) bring into the nirvāṇa city every migrator in saṃsāra-migration'. Possibly śar- 'move fast', see s.v. śśāraṇa-.

śārāna 'service (?)', II 87·56 baiysai ra śārāna īda 'to the Buddha also he will do service'. Noun of action from śśār- to serve (like -āna- infinitive).

By comparing IE ḱer-: ḱr- with increment -ei- in Av. srayah-, srī-, srīra-, O.Ind. śrī-, śreṣṭha-, Greek κρείων a good meaning 'good, exalted' is offered. The alternative IE ḱei- 'to lie down' (see above śśä-) leads only to 'home' or 'civil'. Other Iranian connexions can be sought in Orm. śir, sir (with variant initial) 'good', Balōčī śar, śarī 'good, goodness' (also šarr), if -a- replaced -i-, but mirag 'to die' retains -i- (here Oss. D. mälun has kept -a-). Sogd. Bud., Man., Chr. šyr- with short -i- šir-* has š- which could be normal from a variant IE ḱier- (as IE ĝeu- and ĝ̑eu- 'to taste' co-existed; see for -y- BSOAS 20, 1957, 58–9). M.Parth.T. šyr in šyr-g'mg 'friendly, wishing well', may be like myr- 'to die' (mṛya-*) and also with initial š- < śṛ. Pašto has mrəm 'I die' < mṛya-*, hence šə 'good' may be šṛyə-* with -ə from -ya-, as zṛə 'heart' from zṛdyə-. This comparison with šə excludes šira-*.

śvāña gūra 'a kind of grapes', I 141, 49r1–2 halīrā dva, vīhīlā, aumalai, śvāña gūra kaśmīrya, 'the three myrobalans, the three grapes', BS triphalau 'the two groups of three'; see also Sid. 19r1 kaśmīrye, BS kāśmaryaḥ, Tib. tri-bal (=BS triphala-); III 17·11 śvāña gūra, huṣkyi ttrahe 'śvāña grapes, dry radishes'. Hence an epithet of grapes, possibly an ethnic like kaśmīrya- or O.Ind. gostanī 'of Khotan'. Hardly adjective to śvān- 'dog', but possibly a variant of the name Saka, Saga: śava-* with adjective suffix -ānya-. It could be from the old name of Yarkand; hence suffix śvānya-*>śvāña-, or a place name.

śve 'dog', V 30, 73v2 śve hämäte vātco ṣe nasphūstai oṣku 'becomes a dog, he is then driven out for ever'; III 14·13 period of two hours 7–9 p.m., presided over by the Dog ///ri hime ttā śve (paśārī?, 'evening'); II 116·35 śvai au bāstai haḍā 'the day presided over by the Dog'; III 45·12–3 śva tcāma śalarbe 'dogs, locusts', dyadic (BS śalabha-, with III 15·53 śalarbi); II 103·45 śvą tcāma śalarba, K 100·278 śvą tcāma śalarba; III 15·51 śvā salya 'in the year of the Dog'; plural Z 2·46 śvānä, Z 20·30 śśuvānä; gen. plur. śvrrai 'sūtra-text (?)', III 100·8–10 (a list of studies) drrayvā pīlyā artha ausairma bāyāka ttī jsāṃ būvāvā avaṣṭa ṣīya haḍāya śvrrai u mālai ṣṭīka ttī jsā jāvā ttyau ysyai hūrāka sa khū ācārī prrabhā 'controlling the vital meaning in the three basic texts, then also studying in the philosophical books night and day, the sūtra-collection and the formula-collection, the commentary, then also in the prayers, giving the taste of them, just like the teacher (BS ācārya-) Prabha'. For these Buddhist technical terms the following commentary is necessary. The pīla- from Prakrit pela- of the collection of sacred texts (see KT VI 108, and 195), Pali piṭaka-; bāvāva- may be bhāva-vāda- 'discussion of being', hence 'philosophy' (see also KT IV 83); śvrrai may be Prakrit from surta-* for older sūtra-, with -rr- replacing -rt- as in the lw parramā- 'image' from partimā-* older BS pratimā-, and also with śv- in place of sv- as in Kroraina śvasti beside svasti- 'welfare', śvasu 'sister'. The word mālai contains a form of mantra- through mānla-* (as a dialectal Iranian māhra-*, which also became mahr and mār-; see s.v. mātṛvālai, BS devapālaka-). The ṣṭīka is BS ṭīkā 'commentary'; jāva- is older BS jāpa- from japati 'to murmur prayers'. For ācārī Prrabhā, note the similar JS 213 ācārī Devā. In Khotan Saka avaṣṭa 'studying' may occur abišta-* 'occupied in' from abi-šta-* to base ah-, Av. aiwi.šti- 'study', Orm. aw-, haw-:hištak 'to read' (from abi-ah- and abi-šta-). The word ysyai 'savours' is the older ysvye, base ysūṣ- 'to taste', hence used for BS rasa-, like the cliché eka-rasa- of the one taste of the dharma-doctrine (Khotan Saka śau-raysa-). The text is the description of a beloved person who has gone to China.

ṣa- 'this', nom. sing. V 70, 8v2 tta uspūstä rro. . .ṣä uysnorä hämäte 'so this person is restored (to health)', BS G 37, 12a6 śakyaṃ sa satvaḥ punar apy utthāpayituṃ; later ṣā, ṣī; with pronoun yi, ṣai, ṣei, ṣe, ṣai, ṣg; with -ta-, ṣätä, ṣäte; ṣā ṣāra-, ṣāra-, fem. ṣā, ṣā, ṣa, with pronoun yi, ṣai; with -ka- ṣīka; III 39, 43b4 ṣī baudhisatvä=Manj. 277 ṣī ṣā baudhasatva. Inflected with ta- (after nom. sing.), Av. aēša-, O.Ind. eṣa. IE Pok. 286 e-, ei-, i-. Gen. plur. Sid. 142r4 ttīkyāṃ ttīkyāṃ hīyāṃ gūnāṃ jsa 'with these various marks'. Late ṣa without hook in K 111·355 ṣa akhauṣṭai jsa dharma-kāya 'this dharma-body with motionlessness', and 349 ṣa dā 'this dharma-doctrine'.

ṣä 'indeed', older ṣṣu, ṣu, K 40·32 u ttye hīye ṣä cimeṇī hervī śirkye=K 43·150 u ttye hīya ṣi tcimaña hevī śirke 'and indeed than his eye nothing is finer'.

ṣakala- 'dry', see ṣkala-.

ṣakye 'ladder', III 81·177, gloss to Turkish cattā (=čatu, šatu 'ladder') and ibid. 177 cattākīrā 'rung of ladder' from Iranian, see s.v. būṣṣāta 'stairway', with -kīrā, Iranian kīḍā, kīra- (see above) as 'rod' for the rungs. Here ṣakye can be traced to šatukā-, from śritu-kā-, base śrai-:śri- 'lean on', see cognates s.v. būṣṣāta.

ṣakṣāvi 'commandment', V 63·28 ṣakṣāvi nāsāñi 'the commandment is to be obeyed'; III 71·146 tta varttāña tcaura ṣakṣāte 'so the four commandments must be practised' (BS vartaya-), rather from BS śikṣāpada- with ś- replaced by ṣ- and -āpada- become -āvā-, than Iranian to base sak-, saxš- in sāj-:sīta- 'to learn'.

ṣṣaṃga 'a measure for grain', for rrusa 'barley', gausā 'millet', jsārā 'corn', II 15·4 ṣaṃga rrusa; inst. sing. IV 4·4 ṣṣaṃgna, V 222·9·4 ṣaṃgäna; IV 26·4 ṣaṃgana, see SDTV 37. The ṣaṃga is 4 BS prastha-, and 8 śiṃga (see śiṃga). Tokhara B ṣank see IV 77. Gloss III 124·86 ṣaga to BS aṇḍa=āḍhaka=4 prastha. In the case of śśära- 'good', three initial sounds are attested (Saka śś-, Sogd. šyr, Orm. šir and sir 'good'), hence one could expect Saka ṣaṃg- 'to weigh' to correspond to Zor.P. saxtan sanjīt 'to weigh', N.Pers. sanj 'weight, measure', sang 'a weight', sanjīdan, saxtan 'to weigh', sanjah 'scales, a weight', diram-sang 'of the weight of a drakhmē', Zor.P. dram-sang of a measure (in medicine), but here Sogd. Bud. δrγmδnk suggests draxma-θanga-* to the base θang- 'draw' (see thaṃga- above). For the variation Iranian s-, ś-, š- (if inherited) it could indicate IE ḱ-, ḱi-, ḱs-, but the variants may be of middle Iranian age. The alternative to seek a Chinese source has not succeeded.

ṣṣaṃgila 'part of man's body', IV 17·1 sa⟨ttaṃ⟩ ṣṣaṃgila jīy⟨e⟩, 'seventh, this part fails (becomes diseased)', hence either like Waxī šəngər 'intestines', Khowar lw ṣangūr, or Pašto ṣangarai 'cloven hoof; ankle'. Possibly from śrang-, but initial ṣṣ- is ambiguous in origin.

ṣṣaṇirä 'give', V 26, 49r3 uvārna aysmūna vā āysda yanīrā muhu ṣṣaṇīrā u||| 'may they guard us with exalted mind may they give us and. . .'. Here only, possibly śran- 'to bestow', to Pašto ṣandəl, present ṣandəm 'to give', Wazīrī Pašto šandəl 'to spend'; O.Ind. Dhātupāṭha śraṇati 'give', attested in causative vi-śrāṇayati.

ṣaṇā 'noise', I 179, 98v4 kāryi gva prrahāji gvaña ṣaṇā rāhä jiṃda 'opens deaf ears, removes pain of ear-noise', BS bādharyaṃ karṇa-nādaś ca. From ṛr->ṛ-, base ṛran- 'to sound', incremental to ṛar- 'make noise', see above ysār- (of birds), Oss. D. ærun 'to sing', with ærdr- Oss. D. ærælun 'to echo'. IE Pok. 352 ĝar-, Pašto ṣāγ from śrāga-* 'noise'. Hence three forms ṛar-, ṛran-, ṛrā-.

ṣapā 'broth', Sid. 9r5 priyaṃgīnai kaḳä jsa saṃkhaista aṃgā, ṣṭāna ṣapā ni hverai 'the body smeared with paste from priyaṅgu-millet, the rice broth must not be eaten'. BS priyangu-kalka-digdhāhvaṃ pāyasaṃ na samācaret, Tib. priyankuhi lde-gus lus bskus bźin-du, hbras-kyi ho-thug mi bzah; Sid. 9v1 u mo u rīysvanai ṣapā haṃtsa ni khāṣāñā 'and liquor and rice broth together must not be drunk', BS surā-kṛsara-pāyasān na⌣aśnīyāt ('he should not consume together surā-liquor and rice broth'), Tib. čhan hbras-kyi ho-thug rnams lhan-čig mi bzah. From dyadic srata-pāka-* 'baking-cooking', -p- retained from secondary contact -t-p-, O.Ind. RV śṛta-pāka-, to base śar- 'mix, cook, prepare'. IE Pok. 582 kerə-, O.Ind. śrīṇāti, śrāyati 'cooks', participle śrītá-, śīrtá-; śrāta-, śṛtá-, Av. sar- 'to join', Greek κίρνημι, κεράννυμι, κρατός, O.Engl. hrēran 'stir', O.Saxon hrōra 'movement', see TPS 1954, 129–32. Connected here is Šuγnī, Sarīkolī šipik 'bread, food'. See also ṣapāña; nāṃji.

ṣapā 'bare-footed (?)', II 130, 2b2 khvai ṣapā ma kaiṇa dvīda vīnai na hamai 'if because of me they beat him the bare-foot one, he has no pain'. To 'bare-footed', note Balōčī šafād, šawāδ, Brāhūī lw šapād, Waxī špuδk, from fša-* 'naked, bare', to IE Pok. 163 bhes-:bhs-, bhoso-, OHG bar (baza-*), O.Engl. bær 'bare', Lit. bāsas, O.Slav. bosŭ 'bare-footed', Armen. bok (bhoso-go-*), Greek ψ- in ψιλός 'bare' to bhes- 'rub off'. Note also Balōčī p'āš, p'ašpāδ 'bare-footed' (from fš-* > faš-* > p'aš-, p'āš-).

ṣapāña 'cook', conjectured from contexts, IV 11·3 a mara ṣapāña kaṣṭūṃ būki āṃ ni byehī 'I am here attached as a cook; I was not getting the food'; plural ṣapāñara, II 28·35·9 jsārā thyau vā ṣapāñara haysa 'convey the corn at once here to the cooks'. Passages are cited to IV 11·3 (pp. 100–1). Possibly ṣapā 'broth' as a major product of cooks has given the word by suffix -ānya- and -kara- 'maker of broths', similar to N.Pers. āš 'soup', āš-paz 'cooking soup, cook' (Turkish āšč), with āš-xānah 'kitchen', see also below JS 8r3 hurāšña 'in the kitchen'. Kroraina ṣitġa-potġeya, from śrita-puxta-* from the same bases as ṣapā and O.Ind. śṛta-pāka-, is also connected with the commissariat. See TPS 1954, 129–32. Cooks are mentioned in parallel Tibetan and Chinese documents.

ṣabajsyau 'with claws', JS 22r3, see ṣaṃbajsa-.

ṣaṃbajsa- 'claw', JS 7v3 ṣaṃbajsyau rrijsyau ḥistāṃde aga 'with sharp claws they pierced your limbs (aṃga)'; JS 22r3 ṣabajsyau rrijsyau tvī baistāda ttāra 'with sharp claws they pierced your forehead'. With variant š- and č- šam-baja-* could contain čanga- 'claw' as in Zor.P. pančang 'five-clawed' (animals), or čamba-*, in Oss. I. kärd-dzäm = D. kärd-badzä 'knife-edge'. (See s.v. cambuva-.) The second component may be traced to vak- 'be crooked' (with the badzä of Oss. D. kärd-badzä), to Zor.P. w'hr vahr*, vaxr* 'crooked', Pāzand avāhar* for huvahr*, huvaxr*, M.Pers.T. xwhr 'crooked', Pahlavī Psalter hwhly. IE Pok. 34 ǫenk-, ǫek-, 1148 ǫeng-, and 1120 ǫāg- 'bend', O.Ind. vancati, vakrá, vánkri- 'rib'; with ǫek, Av. nivaštakō.srva- 'with bent horns'. For the absence of conjunct vowel note duṃ-berra- 'tail feather' and biś-paḍā 'first of all'.

ṣara 'nut, seed', III 86·104–5 ttīra ahāḍā hīya ṣara 'seeds of the bitter gourd'; III 88·153 ttīrā ahauḍā hīya ṣarā like III 92·241 ttīrā ahauḍā hīye ttīme, hence ṣara variant ttīma. From xšara-* Oss. D. äxsärä, I. äxsär, plur. äxsärtä 'nut', D. äxsär-bun, I. äxsär-byn 'nut-wood', adjective D. äxsärgun, I. äxsärdžyn; with -aka- suffix DI. äxsäräg 'squirrel' (see BSOAS 20, 1957, 58). Waxī ṭōr 'walnut' has ṭ- (initial only in this word) for xš-; like the later Khotan Saka ṭh in thra 'six', in Tibetan script (V 382 no. 340; 424), thras 'sixteen' (no. 425) threr-lhes '26' with thr- = kṣ- (no. 423), the Tibetan indicates retroflex sounds by -r- so that thr- = ṭh-. Within Khotan Saka -ṭh- of the older language was in latest text often written -kṣ- (haṭhṭhā- 'truth', hakṣā-). From axšar-ta-* came also Indo-Aryan, O.Ind. akṣoṭa- 'walnut', beside ākṣoḍa-, ākhoṭa, Prakrit akkhoḍa-, akkhula-, Romani akhor, Hindī akhroṭ, akroṭ, Iranian Orm. waṭk might derive from axšarka-*. Note also Khotan Saka tharka 'walnut', Tibetan star-ka, star-ga, star-kha, dar-sga which could also be traced to axšarka-*. The base will therefore be Iranian xšar- (or possibly fšar-), IE kser- or k^{u}er-.

ṣarr-, ṣṣar-, 'be exhilarated', with negative K 3, 139v1 aṣarrāmata 'indolence, despondency', Tib. źum-pa, Chinese hie-tai-sin (K 366·3; 184·10; 801·1); Z 7·24 suhāna ṣṣarri klaiśa 'with pleasure exhilarates the kleśa-afflictions'; participle, Z 20·8 āṣṣuḍa tsīndā bāysañuvo murka date 'the excited birds (and) beasts roam in the groves', parallel BS mada-mudita-vihaṃga- 'birds delighted in exhilaration'. II 58b4 ttūtūvā); IV 71a2 ṣau ṣīlā, IV 68a2 spāta ṣīlā. The title is preceded by a toponym: II 74·44 hvaṃna kaṛā ṣau ṣaṃdū 'of the Khotan kaṛa-'; II 73·9 and 74·43 ttāgutta kaṛi ṣau ṣarrnadattä 'of the Tibetan kaṛa-'; II 73·10 naṃpajaṃñai ṣau śvānakai. The name of the ṣau official is preceded by the royal name or kṣūṇa- (regnal period): V 2·6393·2·1 ///hvaṃnä rrāṃdi vāśqvāhaṃ ṣṣau ṣanīrä salya '(in the. . . th regnal year) of the king of Khotan Viśqvāhana, in the year of ṣṣau-official Ṣanīrä'; V 4·2·1 17mye kṣānä ṣau ṣacū salya 'in the 17th regnal year, in the year of ṣau-official Ṣacū'; II 72·8·1–2 hvaṃna rrāda viśakīrtta ttya tcī-ṣī āmāca ṣṣau viśaraka salya 'the king of Khotan Viśakīrti, in the year of the tcī-ṣī āmāci ṣṣau official Viśaraka'. For the titles āmāca-, tcī-ṣī see IV 62; 54.

For 'king' Khotan Saka has rrund- (nom. sing. rre), Tumšuq Saka riḍ- (gen. sing. riḍe) for 'prince' rrispūra-, for queen rrīṇā- (base raz-); rrāysan- translates BS īśvara- 'owner, lord'.

Final -au is of various origins: mau 'liquor' (madu-*), hau, ho 'word', śśau 'one', in older Khotan Saka dau, acc. sing. to dai 'fire' (dāga-*), rrau, acc. sing. to rrai 'plain' (rāga-*), nau 'nine' (nava*), pau 'onion', Kušan coin legend ÞAO, ÞAYO gen. plur. ÞAONANO 'king'. Three bases xšā-, xšai-, xšau- 'to possess, rule' can be traced in Av. xšaθra- 'power', O.Pers. xšāyaθiya- 'ruler' (=Akkadian šarru); Av. xšayeiti, Waxī šāy 'rich'; ṣṣau (xšāvan-*); ṣavā- 'property'. See BSOAS 12, 1948, 327–9. A leader of the Üe-ṭṣī (in 90 A.D.) is named Chinese fu-uang sie 'subordinate ruler sie', older p'iuk jiwang-zia (Japanese ša) (K 52·10; 1298·1; 865·3). The sign 865 had final velar zia, ziek, and here represents Iranian šāha-, from older xšāyah-* in O.Pers. xšāyaθiya-, but for the subordinate ruler, similar to Khotan Saka ṣṣau, and the western Sasanian šāh as provincial governor (a similar difference is claimed for Mykenean Greek wanax 'king' beside basileus 'provincial governor'). The Chinese background of the title sie (K 865·3) is treated without the Iranian evidence in Kazuo Enoki, A contribution to the chronology of the Kushans, Memoirs of the Research Department of the Tōyō Bunkō no. 26, 1968.

The beasts of prey are described as creeping upon and pouncing upon their prey: thus Oss. I. biräγty lāburd 'the pouncing attack of wolves' (NK 49·507); Geste of Igor 155 skoći otai ljutymū zvěremū 'to leap like a wild beast', Oss. translation ärra syrdau fälidzäg i; Pindaros Pyth. 2·84 λύκοιο δίκαν ὑποθεύσομαι 'I will rush upon like a wolf'; JS 34v4 dyūma-baste sero 'ravage-intent lion'; Armen. k'ōš, k'ōšoumn 'leap of a wild beast on its prey'; Akkadian kima tiṣbut labbi 'like attack of a lion'; the cheeta proceeds to stalk its prey, finishing with a few gigantic bounds; poetic, the lion...springs bounding upon his enemies; Byzantine epic 'his spring was like that of a lion'; poetic, a very hunter did I rush upon the prey with leaps and springs; Soslan hunting, Oss. I. qūzyn bajdydta 'he began to creep' (NK 46·76). This concept indicates that sar-, sar-g- would mean 'creep and pounce', as L. Renou, EVP 12·106 to RV 1, 145·4 explains tatsara (perfect to tsar-) as 'attaque subreptice', see s.v. sar- 'rush at, pounce'. The verb is without increment and without preverb in Yazg. sar-, sard, Šuynī sār-, sārd, Rošānī sōr, sērt, Sarīkolī sur-, sord, Iškāšmī sur-, surd, Tājīkī sar- 'creep upon' (sāraya-* from tsar-, not IE ḱel-), Oss. The suffix -au<-āva-* as in rraysau- 'empty' (base raz-) and Oss. D. fijjau 'herdsman' (payāva-* 'protector', see Mithraic Studies 1975, 12 on pūṣdu-). Here sarau is from sarāva-* but, since -g- is absent in mura- 'bird'< mṛga-, it would be possible to trace sarau to sargāva-* and so to base sar-g-, as for Sogdian and M.Parthian. Variation of s- and š-, see s.v. śśāra-.

Accepting haiśśa with -śś- as the basic form, the hatīś-, haiś-, haiṣ-, haiṣ-, haiṣ- will contain the -ś- =-śś- (often occurring in the one text), and the subscript hook, which is placed in later texts, under the first or second syllable and also under both, indicates the recent loss of a syllable when -aiś- replaced -atīś-. The base is then fra-aiš-y- > haaiša- > hatīš-, haiśś-, with participle hatāṣṭa-, hataiṣṭa- (restored from haiṣṭa-) and haiṣṭa-. The retention of -a-ī- in hatīš- could imply fra-ā-aiš-*, with -ā- as found in Georgian lw aešag-i 'scout', N.Pers. āš, āišah, āišanah, āyištanah 'scout' from the similar base aiš- 'to search for', Av. aēš-, O.Ind. eṣ-:iṣṭa- (see s.v. gvetāṃ). The participle hīṣṭāta- with -āta- to a present in -t-, and infinitive hīṣṭe show fra-išta-* (with -ī- <-ai- as usual). The same -t- present is in Zor.P. frēstātan, N.Pers. firēstādan 'send', beside M.Parth.T. *fryštg frēštay 'messenger', M.Pers.T. prystg, N.Pers. firištah (dialectal). To Av. aēš-, infinitive -išti-, with frā-, infinitive fraēšti-. To O.Ind. eṣ-:iṣ-, present iṣṇáti, participle iṣitá-; with pra-, preṣita- 'sent'. This explanation of hatīš-, haiśś-, haiš- is preferred to assuming -śś- to be secondary from -ś- (=-ź-), and -ś- > -ź-, whence -źy- > -ź-. For the reverse case of -ś- basic, and once -śś- see s.v. kūysda-. See also heṣṭyāṣṭi. Note also IE eis-sḱ- could result in -ais-, see s.v. byūs-, Av. usa-, O.Ind. ucchati.

After long search the following is proposed. If the basic meaning was 'rejoice', dyadic with ram-, connexion can be sought in IE sker- with increment. Above hayär- fra-kṛ-ya-* and tcarkä- are derived from (s)ker-. Av. xrāh- 'excite', aŋxrāxvanu- 'most excitant' has been traced with Armen. lw xrax 'joy; joyful', xraxčan-k' 'feast, public rejoicing' with verbs xraxanam, xraxčanam; both can be traced to older krāh-* (IE skr-es-). An increment -g- has been seen in OHG screcchōn 'to jump, hop'. For hahäls- an older form fra-xṛs-* to xras-:xṛs- is possible, which in turn is IE (s)kr-ek-:(s)kṛk- or (s)kṛk-sk- (like puls- from pṛk-sk-). The treatment of -är-, -äl- for -ṛ- can be seen in därṣta-, därṣda- 'firm'. Further search is invited by the ambiguities.

Z 2·95 hārvyau; loc. plur. K 17·176 hārrvā. Adjective Z 13·31 härñä ggūtträ 'family (BS gotra-) of merchants', formed like stārīa- 'female', from strīyā- 'woman'. Tibetan translates śreṣṭhin- by ćhoṅ-dpon 'chief seller, merchant', Chinese by ṣang-ṭṣu 'merchant' (K 859·1; 1244·2). At the court the king's intimates are amātya- and śreṣṭhin-, Khotan Saka āmāca-, hāruva-, Turkish Uigur bayaγutlar and ämränčlär, Kroraina ṣoṭhaṃga and Tokhara ṣoṣtank- correspond to śreṣṭhin- (see BSOS 8, 1936, 905). Since the basic concept in hāruva- is the rich merchant (probably dyadic with tsāta- in II 34·4·2 above), it may be an agent noun in -uka- or -uva- to a base har-, hār- to indicate 'trading' (like the Tibetan translation ćhoṅ-dpon and Chinese ṣang-ṭṣu 'merchant'). This suggests IE Pok. 899 sel- 'take, offer', Germanic Got. saljan 'offer', O.Norse selia, O.Engl. sellan 'hand over, sell', salu 'sale'. It would be desirable to find other Iranian evidence. Attempts to find another satisfactory connexion have failed (har- 'to watch', (h)ar- 'to get and give shares', Khotan Saka hāra- 'thing, wealth', frā-ruda-* 'call out', like Zor.P. fravaxt, frōš-, or hārā-*, like mārā- 'measure', from a base hā-, or -āxθra- of a base hak- or hag-).

This hītala- 'strong' or the like can be analysed as hī-ta-la- with base hai- of Av. haēm, Zor.P. xēm 'character' and hence also in Got. saiwala- 'soul' (as the innate strength), O.Engl. sāwal, connexion with Buxārā Iranian haitāl 'strong man' (proposed by V. Livšic, Kara Tepe II, 1969, 67 fn. 103) and with the name Heftal indicates a base hai- and hai-p-:hip-. This is important for West Central Asia c. 300 B.C.–A.D. 300 as showing a Saka type of ethnic name.

Since 'fruit' can be called the 'swollen' or 'swelling' thing the base IE Pok. 772 obhel- giving (a)var- is a possible source with Armen. beln 'fruitful'; Zor.P., N.Pers. bar 'fruit' is from bar- 'to bear, carry'; M.Pers.T. 'yw'r, 'yw''r 'bud' may be adi-bāra-*. The word hīyāra- could also be a compound with hīya- connected with the hī- of hītala-tsaa- 'strong' or the like. Note also Zor.P. ālūk, N.Pers. ālū 'plum'. The use in I 147, 56v3 (hīyāra-, BS vṛṣaṇā) suggests a basic meaning 'swell', hence perhaps one should accept either (h)-adivāra-* base IE (o)bhel- (see bharṣa- 'sea-monster' above), or a compound haiya-āla-* 'growing strongly'. hälysda- 'present', K 1, 135r1 hälysdu vät⟨ä⟩ pyū⟨ṣṭä⟩ 'as soon as heard', Tib. ma-thag-tu (Tib. rendering of BS -mātra- with participle), translation E. Adjective, I 251, 1v5 hälysdājsyānu u ustamājsyānu gyastā⟨nu⟩ 'present and final (=future) deva (Buddhas)', BS anāgata-pratyutpanna-; V 107, 29r7 paḍāṃjsyānu hälysdāṃjsyānu ustamāṃjsyānu gyastānu balysānu; SuvP. 67r1 hiysdāṃjsva, BS etarhi; III 50·48 vaña haiysdāṃjsva 'now, present'; note also SuvO. 54r4 biśśä gyasta balysa hatäḍarāṃjsya vaysñaṃjsya ustamāṃjsya 'all deva Buddhas, former, present, final (future)', BS sarva-buddhānām atīta-anāgata-pratyutpannānāṃ. Hence hälysda-=BS pratyutpanna-, of isolated and highly ambiguous origin; if the -l- is in the base, it gives harz- with hṛzata-*>hälysda- (like Tumšuq Saka jezda-<yazata-, but Khotan Saka gyasta-, -zd->-st-); such a base harz- could be IE ser-ĝ(h)-; if the -l- is intrusive, the base is hiz- with hizata-* to haiys- 'rise, reach'; there is still the -ysd- from -z-d- as in naysda- 'near' which offers a base hid- not noticed in Khotan Saka, but known in O.Ind. sādh-: sidh- 'to reach', Av. hāiδišta- 'reaching most', IE seə-dh-. A further possibility lies in rzda-* (with prothetic h-) formed (like mṛžd- from marz- in mulysdi 'favour') from base IE reĝ- 'go straight to, attain, reach' or from rzata-* direct to IE reĝ- (see s.v. rrays-); this would give älysda-*, so explaining the presence of -l-.

humo 'soft, spongy', Z 21·27 hevira dasta kye ṣṣu humo ttone väta 'the dried up hands which indeed had been spongy and fatty'. Here humo (from hume u) and ttone are -e plurals beside the -a plurals of hevira and dasta. The cemetery scene is illustrated by contrasts of the state of the living body and the discarded corpse, a favourite Buddhist topic. A cemetery text exists in the Śmaśāna-vidhi (ed. L. Finot, JA 1934, 2, 51). Here the fat (ttona-) hands are contrasted with shrivelled, dried hands (hevira-) of the corpse. In huma- there is thus dyadic relation with ttona- 'fat', not as conjectured in KT VI 427 with au- 'be cold', which the context excludes. In III 18·29 reference to a swelling has huma bāva paśtä 'the soft root matures', where the same huma- can be seen. Above ḥābä recorded I 173, 91r1 is a balsam shrub, which has the soft, spongy stalk of the balsams, from humpa-. These two words can be seen to derive from huma-, or humba-* and humpa* 'spongy' to IE sṷem-, sum-, sumb- in O.Engl. swamm 'fungus', Got. swams 'sponge', OHG swam, swamm, swamb 'fungus', O.Norse svǫppr 'mushroom, ball', New German schwamm 'sponge, fungus', Engl. swamp, sump, all named from their soft and spongy character. Pašto xomba 'mushroom' is older hvampā-*. O.Ind. RV 1·84·8 kṣúmpa- 'mushroom' (glossed by ahi-cchattra 'snake's umbrella, mushroom'), has received a prothetic k-. The Oss. D. xumä, I. xūm 'cultivated land' could be thought of as 'soft' land, rather than connected with xurmä-* 'dust' in Sogd. Bud. ywrmh, Man. xwrm, xrwm, Sarīkolī xorm (Shaw, p. 73), as proposed TPS 1945, 34. Yazg. xūm, xūmb, xəmbay (-ay suffix of abstract) 'even, smooth spot' may also fit here. For a proposal, made at the Congress of Orientalists, Canberra 1971 that Av. haoma-, Zor.P. hōm, the sacred drink of the yasna ceremony, and O.Ind. RV sóma-, the drink of the yajñá- ceremony should as the 'spongy' plant be traced to this same IE sūem-, see Memoirs of the Research Department of the Toyo Bunko 29, 1971, 8 Trends in Iranian studies; JRAS 1972, 105; Mithraic Studies 1, 19 (1975). The use of 'the branch of the red tree' (RV 10·94·3 vṛkṣásya śákhām aruṇásya) causes difficulty, see Mémorial Jean de Menasce, 1974, 374. It is further possible that Sogd. Man. xwrm, xrwm, Sarīkolī xorm 'dust' is from xumra-<humra- as an epithet of dust as the 'soft, smooth' thing; or that here the -r- is intrusive, as in Sogd. Bud. ywrnw 'blood', s.v. hūnä).

RV avasá-m 'food'; and with -š-, oṣa-dhi- 'bearing awns' for 'herb' (see BSOAS 20, 1957, 57). The subscript hook could either distinguish this haṵ from hau 'word', or indicate a recent presence of -š-, which would suggest auš-* in the base like Let. fem. plur. ḋuzas 'oats'. IE Pok. 77 has auiğ-, but quotes also aues-; Pok. 88 unconvincingly set O.Ind. RV avasá-m 'fodder' with au- 'to help'.

hau 'title', frequent in the miscellany II 50, as line 2 hau gūle hau śvaikale hau saiġūra (and repeated below). This can be identified in Chinese xou < γəu 'sir' (which is also used of a feudatory prince) in K 79·1. But if it is compared with hauka- may be rather Iranian ava- 'a relation on the mother's side'. See cognates s.v. hauka-.

hauka- 'a title', II 50·52 bārai khacai u veṃja-haukāṃ hīyai pūra śvakale (a miscellany) 'rider Khacai; and Śvakale son of the veṃja-haukas'. This may be an honorific title with veṃja- connected with viṃjalaka- 'boy; prince' and haukā- from hau. In this hau it would be possible to see older aua-* to be taken with IE Pok. 89 aṵo- 'maternal grandfather', Armen. hau, gen. plur. hauoc' 'grandfather', Lat. auus 'ancestor', Lit. avýnas

'mother's brother', O.Pruss. awis 'uncle', O.Slav. ujī*, ujka 'aunt', Celtic O.Ir. Hence ttye paḍā hvaśtī=BS tatra ādau 'at this beginning', =Tib. de-la ni thog-mar, which indicates a dyadic paḍā hvaśtī. Since it is hardly to be read hva ṣte or hva śtā 'it has been stated', the word hvaśtī may be a palatalized hvaṣta-, with suffix -ya-, for 'first'. See hvaṣta- and s.v. brū.

hvaṣī 'a food', III 117r01 paiha paṃna : hauśa hūlāṃ pvaiskha hvaṣī pāraka (list of foods), from hu-aśīya-* to N.Pers. āš 'meat, soup, gruel' (see s.v. hvaśā 'broth') from aśśīya-*, base as- 'to eat'. Cognates s.v. śidī.

hvaṣṭa- 'first (?)', III 41a2 ⟨pa⟩ḍū hvaṣṭā biśśūnya vara spye viśtāña (sacrificial, BS bali-text) 'first (dyadic) all kinds of flowers must be placed there'; V 152, 160a2 ///hvaṣṭā śijīndī harbiśśā kā⟨ra⟩ 'first they learn it; all the karma-acts. . .'. From frav-:fru- (see brū, bruṃbāte) with hu- (as ha-<fra-), hence fraviśta-* 'first'>havaṣṭa->hvaṣṭa-* (for hv- note also hvāha- 'wide' frapāθa-, if not hu-pāθa-). From fraviśtya* can derive hvaśtī dyadic with paḍā (see for -iśtya-, Av. xəviśtya- 'swiftest').

hvasta- 'beaten', participle to hvah- (see s.v. hvaittä), SuvP. 71r4 cu tti cu vā basta cu hvasta, haṃtharkvā vyaysaña ṣṭāre 'who are these who are bound, who beaten, in troubles, in ruin', BS ye tāḍitā bandhana-baddha-pīḍitā vividheṣu vyasaneṣu ca saṃsthitāni, as IV 7v5–6 pasti bani u pasti hvaśti 'he ordered to bind and beat'; 'beat (drum)', K 25·123 kūsa hvastāda, =K 17·188, =K 34·74 kūsä hvastāṃdi 'they beat the drums'; V 66·8a pajsa śaṃdya hvasta 'beat strongly on the ground'; III 75·233 ṣai nāṣṭä śaṃdya hvaste 'he struck him down to the ground', III 67·58 haṃgrautta śaṃdya hvaste 'he lifted him up, he struck him to the ground'; III 66·34 śaṃdā hvaste 'he beat on the ground'; K 42·117 kṣipalai hvaste 'he struck him a blow'; III 67·53–4 na paysāṃdāṃdä hvastāna parya tti khu āta haṃdä garāṃ 'they did not know (they had) escaped from the stroke; so when they came into the mountains (?)'. See cognates s.v. the present hvaittä. Possibly gara- 'the people Gara-'.

hvasta- 'coloured', III 38·35–6 cha-hvasta pākū gesaca 'feet colour-stained and (-ū) whirling', =III 47·54 charrvana pā u gesaca =(K III 35·37, =III 40·11–2 śair-chä hvū pā u gaisaṃcä. Hence cha 'appearance, complexion' (BS varṇa-), with hvasta=rrvana=śair- (see above), possibly hvarsta->hvasta-* to hvar- 'to colour', see cognates s.v. hvāraka-.

hvā- 'both', see Z 24·496 hvā-daśtä 'with both hands', and above hū-duva 'both'.

hvā 'dried', Sid. 128v3 guśta u ẹhä, hvā mase muse haṃthrra-jīṃdä ma ā ā ñuṣṭīṃdä 'the flesh and bone, dried, are drawn together greatly, as if wrapped', BS śoṣād veṣṭana-, Tib. śa skam-pa dan, drag-tu bčir-ba hdra-bar na-ba rnams yin-no (bčir 'press'). From base hau-, hu-, with -ā-, hvā- 'to dry', here hvāta- (Tib. skam-pa). See cognates s.v. hīṣ-, huṣka-, hyāñ-, hvās-.

hvāñ- 'speak', see s.v. hvan-.

hyāñ- 'to dry', SuvO. 27v5 śāma-lovyānu dukhānu hyāñākä 'drier up of the woes of Yama's world', BS yama-loka-duḥkha-saṃśoṣakaḥ; with pa-, SuvP. 69v2 pahvāñarī (for -ārī) in the passage beṣa ysīra vegaste pahyāñarī biśna 'the fierce violent (BS vega-) whirlpools are wholly dried up', BS arṇavaṃ parama-karkaśa-caṇḍa-vegaṃ saṃśuṣyate. With hyaiñ-, Sid. 111r4–5 jsahera pī hīvī āchai hvaiñe, =V 320·99 hveṃñe, BS medo-viśoṣaṇa-, Tib. ćhil rgyas-pahi nad skems; Sid. 149v2 pajsāñä u hvaiñāñä u kūṭāña 'to be cooked and dried and ground up' (BS koṭaya-),

With pa-, II 104·73 drraiṣṭīyīnai pāttāla pahvaiñākä 'the drier up of the underworld (BS pātāla-) of heresies' (BS dṛṣṭīgata-). From base hau-:hu- 'to dry' see above hūṣ-, huṣka-, beside hvä<hvāta-* 'dried'; hence huśānya-* causative.

hvāña- 'eloquent (?)', II 54·25 hvāra hvāñä vīcakṣa (BS vicakṣaṇa-) edrrāṃ jsa śūrä 'bold (rapacious), eloquent, intelligent, with his faculties, valiant'. To hvan-.

hvāta- 'well-winnowed', Z 24·520, from hu-vāta-* to base vān- 'toss', see vāñite.

hvāta- 'grass', III 73·185; 186, see hvāṣṣa-.

hvāta-, hvä 'dried', Tib. skam-pa, see hvä.

Here hvāysīmą, Tib. lḥan-čig-tu 'together'. Possibly hvä- 'both' (as in hvä-daśtä 'with both hands' and hvälai 'both') with -ysīna- from sanmya-* 'birth' from zan-.

hvāra- 'food; eating', II 87·51 śara hvāra śara khāṣą 'good food, good drink'; ibid. 54 khaysmą hvāra 'drinking, eating'; JS 24v4 ysāysa hīyāra chaka bāgara hvāra anattägä nāma sarrau datā rre '(being) the lion named Anantānga king of beasts, eating (as an ascetic) grass, fruit, buds, leaves'. See cognates s.v. hvar- 'to eat'.

hvāra- 'bold', II 85·15–6 vegasti hvāri diraujsa 'violent (BS vega-), bold, audacious'; II 54, 25 hvārä hvāñä vīcakṣa (BS vicakṣaṇa-) edrrāṃ jsa śūrä 'bold, eloquent, intelligent, with (all) faculties, valiant' (BS śūra-), translation SDTV 69 to be changed. From base hvar- 'to seize', hence hvāra- 'rapacious, raptor', see above hvarāka- 'robber'.

hvārakā- 'sister', see s.v. hvar-.

hvāraka- 'colourer, painter', V 149, 3b5 ///o hvāraka o pīsai o pīsā(nu biṣta?) 'or colourers or painter or painters' (pupils)', from the context of the pīsaa-. From base hvar-, Oss. D. xūarun, xurst 'to colour', xūarän 'colour', I. axoryn, axurst, axūrsyn, axūrst 'be coloured', axorän 'colour'; Sogd. Bud. hvaijīnaa- 'sanguineous', see hūṃjīnaa-.

hvaiñ-, hveṃñ- 'to dry', see hvāñ-.

hvetä 'he spoke', v 40, 56r3; v 28, 32r4 tta hvete sä 'so he spoke, saying', archaistically from hve for hvate.

hvetä 'cleft (?)', Z 22·116 dara ṣkala hvetä alava ggaṃpha säyate briṃje jiyāre 'ravines, dry places, clefts (?), forests (BS aṭavī), expanses, sands, dry grounds will vanish'; loc. plur. SuvO. 55v3–4 kīntha o garuvǫ āraññanuvǫ o hvętuvǫ o rrundä kūṣḍu vätä 'in the city or in the mountains, in wildernesses (BS āraṇya-āyatana-), or in clefts or in a king's palace', BS nagare . . . āraṇya-pradeśe vā girikandare vā rāja-kule vā; here hveta-, BS kandara-; SuvO. 55v3 āraññänä o garuvǫ o a⟨la⟩vä o rrundä kūṣḍu vätä 'in wilderness (BS āraṇya-āyatana-) or in mountains or forest or a king's palace', BS āraṇya-pradeśe vā girikandare vā rāja-kule vā, Z 17·10 vabeḍä bärä vañi varūvändä ggaryau hve⟨tyau⟩ 'the rain rains down; the streams flow down from the mountains (from) the clefts'. A similar geographical list is in Uigur Turkish Säkiz yükmäk (p. 74) tayda arïyda öng körtäkdä qunta kötkidä 'in mountain, forest, desert, sands, highland'. For 'cleft' Khotan Saka has also dara-, draha-, and ḳęca from dar- 'to break, tear up' and kart- 'cut (ḳęca < kalčā*). If hveta- is traced to fra-pāti- (see hv- in hvaṣṭa- 'first', and hvāha- 'wide'), the base is pat-, present pāt- 'to cut, split' in Oss. D. fadun, I. fadyn, fast; mit fady 'cuts through the snow' (quoted V. Miller, Dictionary s.v. märγgä 'breast-straps').

hvaittä 'he beats', participle hvasta-, Z 2·16 kho ye siyato hvaittä bajsīha 'as one beats sand in a mortar' parallel Brahman-Sanskrit Bhartṛhari, Nīti-śataka, śloka 5, labheta sikatāsu tailam api yatnataḥ pīḍayan 'would one get oil among the grains of sand even if one pounded it vigorously?'; v 30, 73v1 amatauya kaśte hvaittä 'he falls into distress, he is beaten (for older hvaitte*). Participle, SuvP. 71r4 cu vā basta cu hvasta 'who are bound, who beaten', BS baddha-pīḍitāḥ; Z 2·218 hvasta bremandā basta 'beaten, weeping, bound', parallel Suvarṇa-bhāsa 3·79 tāḍitā bandhana-baddha-pīḍita-; with negative Z 22·158 ahvasta ṣṭāna abasta, uysnora dātu yanīndi' although not beaten, not bound, the beings practise the law'; 3 sing. JS 10r2–3 biśä śadya hvaste 'he beat all to the ground', K 17·188 kūsa hvastāda 'they beat the drums' (see hvasta- above). Noun, Sid. 149r4 tciṃñä (-iṃ-=-ai) hvaiya 'injury to the eye', Tib. mig snad-čiṅ (snad 'injure'), for the form see khaiya- 'contusion' (base khad-). From base, hvah-:hvasta-, hvahati* > hvaittä, Av. xvāδaya- xvasta- 'thresh', Sogd. Bud. γw'y-, Man. xw'y- (xvāy- < xvāhy-), Oss. D. xūajun, xuaston, I. xoin, xojyn, xost 'to beat' (-hy- > -y-, but -d- is kept), Zor.P. xvastan 'thresh, beat', xvahēt; pīl-xvast 'elephant-trodden (of a road)', xvastak, xvahišn 'trampling'; M.Pers.T. frxw'h- 'tread'; Yayn. xuay-, xoy-:xuasta, xasta, Chorasmian uxvāh-, xāst; Yidya xāim:xāstəm, Sanglēčī xūy-:xūiδ; Orm. xay-:xŭst, 3 sing. xīd, Baxtiārī axū 'threshing'. hvąide 'is said', Manj. 166 ttyū jsa maṇḍe hvąide raṣṭa 'because of these it is rightly called female (?)'. See hvīnde, s.v. hvan-.

hvaina 'messenger', II 120·206–7 ttāṣṭa ttą janavai vīrāṣṭa tsamadai hvaina yai 'he was a travelling (tsumaṃdai*) messenger to that country'; II 121·222 ca ma drrau ttāṣṭa tsamadai hvaina ya 'who here was such a messenger travelling there', see translation BSOAS 30, 1967, 103. Adjective from hau- 'speech' formed like āhvainaa- 'fabulous' from āhau 'tale'. See hvanainaa-.

hvaiya 'injury', Sid. 149r4, Tib. snad, see s.v. hvaittä.

hvaiyä 'possession', II 34·5·7 stūrāṃ hvaiyä ni pajīdä 'they do not demand possession of the large cattle (horses)'. From base hvad-, Zor.P. xvāstak, N.Pers. xvāstah 'property', to xvāh-, xvāstan 'desire'. IE Pok. 1039–40 sṷād- 'be sweet; to like', O.Ind. svādate 'enjoys', svādú- 'sweet', Greek ἡδομαι, ἡδύς, ἀδύς, OHG swōti, O.Engl. swēte; to O.Ind. svāttá- 'spiced', Av. xvāsta- 'fermented', Balōčī wād 'salt'.

hvęyyau 'men', second component, I 250, 214a1 vasutyau tvatare-hvęyyau 'with pure superhuman (eyes)', BS cakṣuṣā viśuddhena atikrānta-manuṣyeṇa. See hvąnd-, nom. sing. huvę.

hvera- 'sweet', hvarra-, hvara-, Sid. 16r2 cu ganaṃ ṣi pvā u garkha-gvāchä u hverä, vrrīṣaṇī 'what is wheat, it is cool, and heavy of digestion and sweet and giving virility' (BS vṛṣaṇeya-), BS vṛṣyaḥ śīto guruḥ svādur godhūmaḥ, Tib. gro ni bsil-žiṅ lči-la mnar-ba yin-te; N 76·4 khāysä hverä tcārbä 'food, sweet, fatty' (Suv. ed. Nobel, 179–80 differt but probably madhura-). See hvarra-.

hvera- 'food', SuvO. 53r3 hverä āstanna khaśä pattarre 'food and drink, the edibles and the rest', BS annena vā pānena vā; SuvO. 56r7 hvera khaśa 'food (and) drink', BS pāna-bhojanāni.

hvera- 'to be taken, suffered', V 3·2·6 pạjse phạuva hvera himāra 'severe penalties are to be suffered', with phạuva from Chinese pau<pâu 'punishment' (K 664·4). See SDTV 57. See the base hvar- 'take' s.v. hvarāka- 'robber'.

hvaira 'bold (?)', II 116·34 śūra-pacaḍa hvaira hama-jūnaka dāśīda āṣạ ttā yaña 'heroic in behaviour, bold, all youthful, they have deemed worthy'. See hvāra-.

hveraa- 'to be eaten', Sid. 9r1–2 gvīhä rruṃ paṃjilīña bājinaña dasau haḍā vistā-līkä ni hverai 'cow's oil (butter) left for ten days in a bell-metal vessel is not to be eaten', Tib. mar mkhar-bahi smod-kyi nan-du źag bču phan-ćhad lon-pa mi bzah, parallel to hvarāña- 'to be eaten'. See s.v. hvar- 'to eat'.

hverāṃ 'food (?)', III 14·14 ⟨...⟩ma hverāṃ pāsi 'the period (of two hours) for eating (supper?) presided over by the Hog', the period 7–9 p.m. Possibly adjective hverānā- 'of food'. To N.Pers. šām 'supper'.

hvairai 'to be eaten', Sid. 9r4, Tib. zos-na. See hveraa-.

hvauraka 'sisters', K 16·166, =K 24·106 hvaura, =K 33·55 hvaräka. See above hvar- 'sister'.

hvauṣṭa 'best', III 109·4 hamīḍa hvauṣṭa 'associated, chiefest'. See hvāṣṭa-. For -vau-, see Manj. 368 akhvauṣṭa- 'unmoved'.

-hvyāñe 'produced', second component, III 128·2 ahvyāñe 'non-produced, eternal (of saṃsāra-migration)' to base hau-:hu- 'to bring into existence', see also ṣū 'produced'. IE Pok. 913–4 seu-, O.Ind. sūté, sauti, savati; Av. hunāmi, haota-, O.Ind. sūnú-, Got. sunus, O.Engl. sunu, Lit. sūnùs, O.Slav. synū, Greek υἱύς, υἱός, Tokhara B soyä, A se 'son'.

SUPPLEMENT

anāraṣṭa- 'unexcited (?)' (with blurred akṣara after a-), III 104·35–6 na ra pā āyvena āyāṣṭa pāśaṛai anāraṣṭä 'no more thereafter distressed by heat, undisturbed in the sunshine'. From base ā-raz- 'to raise up', see āraṣṭa 'he built', and cognates s.v. rrays-. Possible would also be the base rauś- 'burst' but of unsuitable meaning.

apaucalīka- 'plant name', BS sugandhaka-, could with corroborative a- (see s.v. abvātta- 'abundant') be traced to pau- 'to purify', see s.v. pā 'purified', and so approach BS gandha-.

amaye 'a title', could with corroborative a- be traced to amaya- with maya- 'good fortune', like humaya- and N.Pers. humāyūn, see below mīrai, if rather from base mai-.

alīya- 'nourished', here Armen. parar, parart 'fat' belongs, and not, for the meaning, to padār- 'to maintain, honour', against E. Benveniste, Études sur la langue ossète, 99.

ārya- laudatory epithet of the Buddhist bhikṣu- 'mendicant', rendered SuvP. 61v1 parrīyastāna- 'saved', is glossed by Uigur Turk. qutluγ 'fortunate' (P. Zieme, Acta orientalia hungarica 22, 1969, 109).

ālaṣka-, ālaṣṭa- 'settlement, city', possibly as a 'camp', like the name Madaktu of the ancient Elamite city and the Greek report of Περσῶν στρατόπεδον 'camp of the Persians' as the meaning of the Persian name Pasargadai, city of Cyrus (see Acta iranica 1975, Monument H. S. Nyberg III 309–12). The two forms are like huṣka- 'dry' and huṣṭa- 'dried'. If Zaza läš, läj, läž 'fight, war' is connected with Zor.P. laškar, N.Pers. laškar 'army', the laṣ- of ālaṣka- could mean 'warding off' rather than 'lying down'. That would then be lax-š- to IE Pok. 32 alek- 'ward off' (possibly retaining IE l- (like N.Pers. lištan 'to lick'), beside Khotan Saka rrāṣṭa- 'licked'). The Chinese reported from Turkish two words: ia-lau-ṣan (from at-lâk-ṣan K 206·3; 673·4; with radical 93; 849) 'god of war', and ia-lau-xo (from iäi-lâk-yâ K 188·1; 566·2; 414·9) 'fighter' which would attest this Iranian base laxš- in two loan-words in early Turkish. For the usual spelling with r-, see above rakṣ- 'to protect'.

āska- 'antelope' translates Tib. khar-go-sol (ed. Pekin with s-). This is the Khotan Saka khara- in the adjectives kharīña and khyera. Tib. khar-go could replace an Iranian * xaragau-. For Tib. sol 'antelope' the Chinese gave xuang-iang 'yellow sheep' (cited by P. Pelliot, Histoire ancienne du Tibet, 1961, 143).

āstaṃ, older āstana- 'beginning', in II 32·9 āstaṃ kaṃthi vī hīysda hvaṃḍi 'men present at the entrance to the city' (partitive adjective).

īrū 'oleander'. The trees are mentioned in Keriya near Khotan by E. Maillart, Forbidden Journey, 1937, 198. The BS karavīra- is transcribed in the Tibetan translation of the Avadāna-śataka (ed. J. S. Speyer 1902–6) where BS karavīra-mālā 'oleander garland' is rendered by Tib. karabirahi metog-gi phren-ba.

kaṇaiska- the Khotan Saka name of the Kušan Emperor Kaniṣka occurs in II 107·156 BS kaṇaiskä naumä 'Kaniṣka by name', and 160 Khotan Saka kaṇaiska naumä. The same word kaṇaiska- is also used of the little, smallest finger, for which Munjānī has kandir (older kanatara-* 'smaller') in kandir āguškikä 'little finger'. In kaṇaiska- 'smallest' the suffix -yah- : -iš- of the comparative is turned to superlative by suffix -ka-, as the superlative Iranian -išta- is formed from -iš- by suffix -ta-.

The meaning of IE Pok. 563–4 ken- ranges over 'young, small, fresh, new'. For 'small' Oss. I. k'anäg, k'addär; for 'young' Av. kainyā- 'girl', Zor.P. kanīk, Sogd. Man. qnčk 'boy', knčyk 'girl', M.Pers.T. knyg, M.Parth.T. qnyyg. Related are O.Ind. kanīna- 'young', kaniṣṭha-, kanyā- 'girl'. Greek κενός 'new', Celtic Welsh cenau 'young dog or wolf'. See also above tcānai 'goat'. As a programmatic Kušan name Kaniṣka- might combine 'youthful vigour' with 'like a young wolf' as an early Wolfgang.

kanthā- 'city', add Yaγn. kät, känt 'city', and Sogd. Chr. qnṯčyq-t 'citizens', to knt, qṯ.

kaṃḍä 'city name', in Arabic script ktk and k'd'x, see AM, n.s., 2, 1951, 11.

kīrä 'rung' of a ladder, see s.v. ṣakye.

kṣäv- 'to make noise', add Oss. D. äsk'ot 'piping' with variation ks- and sk-.

gäräta- 'bought', note also Sogd. Man. pṯxryṯ δ'rm 'I bought'.

gukṣapa 'huge (?)'. For Av. viśāpa- a new connexion is proposed from a base -šap- to refer to copulation, hardly acceptable (I. Gershevitch, Voprosy iranskoj i obščej filologii (dedicated to V. I. Abaev), 1977, 62–73).

cāśa in the phrase kṣasą cāśa renders Tib. bču-drug hgyur-du 'sixteen times'. This might indicate for cāśa a connexion with a word for 'time' (like gyūna-, tcīra-, rrāyā- and II 7·118 hauda kāla 'seven times', BS kāla-). Hence IE kēs- in Slav. Russ. časŭ 'time, hour', O.Pruss. kīsman acc.sing. 'time', and Alban. kohë (kēsā*) 'time'. The c-, not tc-, is from č- before front vowel, as in canda- 'quantus' (čiyant-*).

ttāgutta- 'Tibetan'. The further shift in spelling to -ḫ- to express the voiced fricative -γ- is found in III 123·59 ttāṃḫatta, 67 ttāṃḫatta rendering BS bauṭa (bhoṭa) 'Tibet' from Tib. Bod. The medial vowel is then extruded in II 120·205 and 220 ttāṃḫtta-vadāṃ pada 'the road of the Tibet road'.

tturaka- 'covering'. The BS tula- 'umbrella (?)' of the Bäzäklik picture may be connected here (see H. Lüders, Philologica indica 265).

tca- the preverb, can be also connected with Oss. cä-, c-, see I. äpparyn, cäpparyn 'throw down'; D. niccaraun, araun 'to echo'.

tcānai 'goat', with pā-čana- 'mountain goat', see pāmir in TPS 1960, 76.

tcäṣ- 'to pour' in vatcäṣ- 'to sprinkle'; here can be added Sogd. Bud. čš'ntk 'thirsty' (Dhyāna 105).

tcūlye 'splendid' offers an explanation of the name of the grove in Tcarma (Tib. ćar-ma) called ću-le (see R. E. Emmerick, Tibetan texts concerning Khotan, 103.)

tsām- 'to swallow' is connected also with Yidγa śam-; śamd 'to drink', Orm. śam- 'to sip', Zaza šim- 'to drink'.

data- 'wild animal' in the double phrase also in Pāzand Skand-gumānīk-vičār 4·63 daδ u murā.

deka 'so much', here the translation is incomplete: 'may all beings become Buddhas'.

naḍe 'man' in V 341, 80v2 renders BS bhoḥ 'sir'.

naṣi- add II 40·3 naṣiphuśtu to the list.

närāko tīndä 'punishes' V 114, 63v3, BS daṇḍa-, from BS nirākāra- with lost syllable, as V 95·16 parävā 'abuse' if from BS parivāda- but see p. 254.

pacaḍa- 'manner', here untranslated: 'next there is the wound by cutting instrument and the like', with BS praharaṇa-, Tib. mdhon.

pande 'path'. A Celtic origin is, indecisively, proposed by Th. Binon in TPS 1976, 67–87, but Iranian contact still seems preferable.

pā 'purified' has lost -v- as in III 24, 23b4 pāti 'he may hear' from pyūγ-.

pira 'house (?)', add also Lydian bira 'house', A. Heubeck, Lydisch, 1969, 421.

pūstya- 'book', note also Turk. b(o)sd'ik from Sogd. pwstk, A. van Gabain, Hungaro-Turcica (Németh volume), 1976, 73.

pyūṃj- 'deny', add Pahlavī Psalter w'ngy 'voice'.

phara- 'much', add Tumšuq Saka phuru.

baga-laga- 'hero, galant' with baka- 'true, sure', note the Chinese use of ṭṣən 'true, real' in ṭṣən kin 'true gold' (K 386·2; 1194·1) quoted in P. Pelliot, Notes on Marco Polo 278.

byavāre 'are morbid', with untranslated: 'these arise from wind'.

briṃjā- 'dry place', for the connexion with brīṣ- 'dry, parch', note also Av. daya- 'bald', N.Pers. day, dāγ 'plain', Sogd. Chr. dxšt-, N.Pers. dašt 'desert' from dag- 'to burn'.

brya- 'dear', add Tumšuq Saka jeɔdanu bre 'dear to the yazatas'.

bhātai 'you gave', JS 16v3 krrañīnai bhātai ttu haṃdara muśḍe 'through kindness (BS kṛtajña-) you bestowed on him this other favour, may be traced to a base bāg- 'to give a share', with bag-, if it is desired to avoid the writing of bh- for na-.

mīrai 'kindness' as from miθra-* is possible, but the context in sau mīrai vau 'profit, mīrai, goods' suggests connexion with the adjective mīra- 'increased in size, powerful, great' to mai- 'to increase', in Av. avō.mīra- 'rich in fodder (?)', and maya- 'fortune', see TPS 1960, 66–7.

mrāhe 'pearl', add Sogd. Man. mrγ'rt 'pearl' and mrγ'rṯ swmbčyq 'borer of pearls' (W. B. Henning, Sogdian Tales II 466).

yola- 'false'. For Turkish, beside yablaq 'bad', note also yabīz, yawuz, yawrī-, T. Tekin, Acta orientalia hungarica 22, 1969, 58.

ysamye 'vitriol', in Arab.–Pers. zāj; the zājāt are five in colour: safēd 'white', aḥmar 'red', asfar 'yellow', sabz 'green', kabōd 'blue'.

rūkyāṃ 'rulers'. Three Iranian bases rauk- exist, 1. 'shine', 2. 'please', 3. 'rule'. The first component of the ethnic name Roxalani might best mean 'the royal Alans', like Herodotos's Royal Scythians (4.20), βασιλήιοι Σκύθαι.

rutā- 'season', a similar -ā- stem from older -u- is in pa 'food', from pitu- above. Sogdian also has -ā- from older -u- stems, as in Sogd. Man. β'z' 'arm', Av. bāzu-; prs' 'side' from pṛsu-*, and Sogd. Bud. prs'kh, N.Pers. pahlū, see W. B. Henning, BSOAS 12, 1948, 316.

rre 'king', has also been traced to IE ṛal- 'rule', see R. E. Emmerick, BSOAS 40, 1977, 403, the usual uncertainty for Iranian r and l.

varga- 'fruit', also K 152·7 ttani cu vīna ttīma na hama vīvā vargą 'because without seed there is not ripening (BS vipāka-), fruit', quoted s.v. ttani cu.

-vādī second component of pyaḍa-vādī corresponding to BS rabhasa- 'violent' has long resisted interpretation. For the present it is proposed to trace to a verbal pati-dai-* 'to attack' connected with dai- 'to fall' and dīn- 'to make fall' (see 2 sing. dīnā 'throw down'). Hence to pā-dīta- or pā-dīya-* 'attacking'. It is however still unsatisfactory. A hybrid compound with BS vāda- 'speaking' seems out of place.

vistāna 'condition, state', II 83·97 śauśī hīya vistāna rāśa pastāda yuḍi (rather than yuḍa) 'they deigned to bring into force (cause) a state of excitement'. From vi-stā- 'to stand, be in a condition'.

śauśi 'excitement, joy', II 83·97 śauśī hīya vistāna 'condition of joy'; K 148·56 śauśī śarā drūnā bemañā 'joy, fortune, health, luck'; Ch 1.0021 c (unpublished) tsāṣṭā śauṣī muñā 'may calm joy endure'. This can be traced to a base śaux-ś- to saus- with retained initial ś- (see s.v. śiṃje, beside Oss. D. sindzä). The connexion is then with Armen. lw sōs (sāusa-*) 'haughty, high-mettled' in sōs erivar 'prancing horse'. The same word is probably also in the Ossetic epic Nartä name Sosäg father of Soslan, Čečen Soska Solsa, which fits the violent character of Soslan. For IE one would try to find (s)ḱeuk- from sḱeu-, Pok. 954 sḱeu- and skeu- (with -k-) in skeu-d- 'be angry'.

ṣakye 'ladder' gloss to Turk. Uigur čatu, šatu 'ladder', frequent also later as čatī and šatu.

skoda 'secret', connected with Oss. D. äsqod, äsqot, asqot 'secret', Pam. 2·52 äsqot känun 'to hide', äsqodi 'in secret'. The Ossetic treatment of -afta- varies. In avd 'seven' from hafta the change has been to -āvd. In I. uäfti, D. uftinä 'weft' the result has been -aft-; variation of -v- and -ū- occurs in D. stevdzä, steŭdzä, I. stivdz 'yoke-peg'. Hence here -od- can be taken as for older -aft.

sthyeṃ 'firm' should perhaps rather be taken in a compound ṣadu-sthyeṃ 'firm in faith' from BS śraddhā and sthitaka-.

ḥamatcī for 'sherbet, fruit drink', see also A. C. Moule, Christians in China before 1550, p. 155; note also cytiacum ibid. 255 'drink made of fruits', Greek ζῦθος. This Greek word is also found in Sogdian Bud. zwt'k, zwtk 'intoxicant', zwt-yw'r 'drinker of zwt'. Thus P 2.388 môw APZY (=at) zwtk 'wine and intoxicant'. Syriac has zwtyn and zwtws rendered 'beer'.

hāmye 'awakened', SuvP. 6or1 bīysāṃdā hāmye dyadic. But here the BS text has samāna- 'being', that is hāmye.

hāmvaja 'forgetting' in K 112·371 (quoted s.v. gvanastai) is to be set with hāmurjā-.

hämäte 'it occurs (to the mind)', Z 2·124 ttai hämäte 'so he thought', quoted s.v. nimānā, like the Pali phrase etad ahosi. Similar is K 34·63 tta ye 'so he thought' and JS 1114 ttai ya si 'so he thought that. . .'.

hīys- has partly untranslated K 90·732–3 'and in one birth become jāti-smara- (having memory of previous births)'.

hvąnd- 'man', note also Pindaros, Olymp. 13·31 ἀνὴρ θνατός.

hvāṣṭa- 'chief', in v 123, 343 voc. sing. hvąṃdānu hvāṣṭa renders BS nara-vīra 'hero of men'.

Further to -vādī, connexion with vād- 'to thrust' seems now more likely.

mañ- 'think' 322, add Av. man-, IE men-, O.Ind. man-.

pīr- 'write' 238, add pai-r- 'to scratch' with Oss. D. per-, I. pir-, as in KT VI 195.

aysmū, page 7, origin undecided in the lemma above, but a solution can now be stated. The word aysmū renders BS manas- 'mind, thinking tool', mata-, cetana-, citta- and vijñāna- 'theoretical knowledge'. The base is azmuv-* formed from az- with suffix -ma-; and then secondary suffix -u-, as in bāysū 'arm'. This is az- 'to drive', beside the form hays- with secondary h-, as two forms occur from angušta- 'finger' in āṃṣṭī 'thumb' and haṃguṣṭa- 'finger'.

The base az- 'to move, cause to move, drive, hunt, lead' is in Av. azrā- 'hunting', glossed by Zor.P. višhar 'hunting', and in Greek ἄγρα 'hunting'. In hīnāysa- 'commander of troops' the compound has hainā- and āza- 'leading'. From this Indo-European base aĝ-, Latin has developed agō, agere 'to move, drive' and in the derivative agitō, agitāre 'to drive, think' applied to the mind. The O.Indian base aj- 'to drive' has two derivatives ájma- and ájra- 'place of movement'.

The older Iranian vocabulary has been largely lost so that it is necessary to trace lost words in Iranian loanwords in alien languages. Here the Ibero-Caucasian Georgian can at times assist. It has Armaz-i from Iranian Ahuramazdā, and imed-i 'hope' connected with Zor.P. aδmēt, and ešmak'-i 'demon', beside Armen. hešmak from Iranian aišma-. Armen. lw nirh, nirhem 'sleep' preserves the only trace of this word in Iranian; in O.Ind. ni-drā- corresponds. Similarly Georgian gušag-i 'sentinel', Armen. goušak 'informer' is found elsewhere only in the Old Persian in Aramaic gwšk- 'a government official' (see s.v. gva).

It is satisfactory therefore to adduce here the Georgian hazr-i (10th century), later azr-i 'thinking', with derivative azreba, azroba, mohazreba 'to think', and verbal preterite azra. A secondary h- is attested also in the Georgian loanword haer-i 'air' from Greek ἀήρ.

It is possible to go further in Indo-European. Here Greek ὄκνος 'doubt' may be traced to the o- grade to a base ak-, as IE ak- and ok- occur in the base ak- 'to sharpen' (Pok. 18–22). This ak- may then stand beside aĝ-, as IE pak- beside paĝ- 'to be firm'. Then here belongs also Germanic Gothic aha 'mind' for Greek νοῦς; ahjan 'to think' for Greek νομίζειν; and ahma 'spirit' for Greek πνεῦμα. From this verb ah- O.Engl. æht and OHG ahta 'observing' are derived. For the base IE u̯eį- for both 'hunting' and 'intelligence' see above byaha- and vīma-.

puñaṃdai 'thickened, compact, firm', overlooked above, in JS 27r3, see s.v. nīyaka-, from base nai- 'to thicken', with pu- from pä-, from pa-.
